BALTIMORE PAPER INDICTED TO TEST TAX PUBLICITY LAW

Daily Post, a Scripps Organ, Faces Trial for Publishing Tax of Daniel Willard and Others.

SIX MORE TO BE INDICTED

Movement to Repeal Publicity Clause in Coming Congress Session Gains Headway.

SENATOR HARRISON FOR IT

Democrats and Radicals May Back Plan to Make the Entire Tax Return Available to Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The first of the indictments for the publication of income tax payments was voted today by a Federal Grand Jury at Baltimore, which indicted The Baltimore Daily Post, one of the Scripps chain of newspapers, on five counts. In each instance it was charged that The Post, in violation of the law, had published information contained in the tax return of a taxpayer made under the provisions of the revenue laws.

Meanwhile it became certain today that a fight for repeal of the tax publicity clause of the Revenue law would be made in the short term of Congress which convenes on Dec. 1. Senator Harrison announced during the day that he had changed his mind on tax publicity and would now vote against it. This was followed by a compromise move by Representative Oldfield of Arkansas, Democratic whip, which may win the support of the Democrats and Radicals. The Oldfield plan is to repeal the tax publicity clause and replace it with one authorizing either the Democratic or Republican members of a Congressional committee to examine the full return of any taxpayer.

Following the indictment of The Baltimore Post, Attorney General Stone indicated that every effort would be made to obtain an early court trial. If decisions in the lower courts are against the Government's position, Mr. Stone will carry the case up to the United States Supreme Court. If the decision favor the Government, the newspaper is expected to make an appeal in order to obtain a final review in the Supreme Court of the issues involved.

Choice of Paper Causes Comment.

The fact that the first indictment was returned against The Baltimore Post, which since it came under the Scripps control about two years ago has consistently advocated publicity of income tax returns, caused some comment here today. All of the Scripps papers supported the candidacy of Senator La Follette in the election.

Mr. Stone has instructed the United States Attorneys in six or seven other cities to seek indictments in order to have a thoroughgoing test of all phases of the income tax publicity provisions of the Revenue law. It is expected that some of the indictments returned will be against individuals. The understanding here, however, is that the Government is not seeking to recover damages or obtain imprisonment of any alleged offender, but primarily to obtain a final ruling in the Supreme Court so that there may be no doubt remaining as to the situation confronting the newspapers in the future.

A statement was issued by the Department of Justice today with copies of the indictment found against The Baltimore Post. It was noted with interest, in view of the action taken before the Grand Jury, that these copies of the indictment given out for publication contained a statement of the amount of the income tax of five taxpayers, the very figures which the department contended before Federal Grand Juries that the newspapers published in violation of the law.

Text of Stone's Statement.

The statement issued by the Department of Justice reads:

"Attorney General Stone announced today that an indictment had been returned in the United States District Court for the District of Maryland against The Baltimore Daily Post as a result of the publication by that paper of information contained in income tax returns recently made available for inspection by the Collector of Internal Revenue for that district.

"This is the first of several test cases which the Attorney General has directed United States Attorneys in various sections of the country to bring against periodicals publishing tax lists, with a view to establishing a judicial interpretation of the provision of Section 257 of the Revenue act of 1924, which provides that there shall be made available to public inspection in the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue lists containing the names and post office addresses of persons making income tax returns, together with the amount of income tax paid by such persons.

"By Section 257 of the Revenue act it is also provided that the income tax returns shall be 'open to inspection only,' and Section 1,018 of the same act re-enacted Section 3,167 of the Revised Statutes as amended, and provided among other things that 'it shall be unlawful for any person to print or publish in any manner whatever not provided by law any income return or any part thereof . . . ' and further, it provided that 'any offense against the foregoing provision shall be a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, at the discretion of the court.'

"Attorney General Stone expressed the view shortly after the tax lists through

German Aviator to Wed Sister Of American Foe in War Duel

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 20.—Two air pilots, a German and an American, fought a thrilling duel in the air over Dijon, France, during the World War. The German was captured after being wounded by gunfire from the American's plane.

The German, Baron Hans von Ringhausen, came here today to marry Mrs. Bertha M. Wendell, sister of the American, Charles E. Cummings, former air pilot of the Foreign Legion.

Mrs. Wendell nursed the Baron back to health while she was a Red Cross nurse in the American prison camp. The Baron and his bride will make their home in Omaha, he having disposed of his holdings in Germany.

DELAY ON PROTOCOL SUITS THE FRENCH

They Also Want Time for Examination and Approve the British Attitude.

CHAMBERLAIN IN NEW ROLE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—All except that section of the French press which is anxious to proclaim all M. Herriot's work at Geneva idle and useless treats as reasonable and comprehensible the British request to have examination of the Geneva protocol adjourned.

At the Foreign Ministry, too, the official spokesman today declared that encouragement rather than otherwise could be derived from the British Cabinet's action. It showed, he said, that the British conservatives were willing to consider the protocol carefully from every point of view, including that of the Dominions, before pronouncing judgment, and that whatever the final decision the protocol would retain its value as one more useful effort in the evolution of a peace plan.

The French realise that any plan for arbitration or disarmament must be most carefully studied before being put into operation and for that reason more than for any other would regard with some hesitancy the proposal which it is suggested may come from Washington for a disarmament conference there. There would be no question of France not taking part.

French Official's View.

"We would at once respond to any suggestion," was the reply of a Foreign Ministry official to an inquiry on French reaction to the reports that an invitation might be expected from Washington. "But exactly the same arguments would apply in that eventuality as applied in the British case. Time for most careful examination is essential to any really solid and well-founded scheme, and we would strongly prefer that such a European question as European disarmament be discussed here.

"Further, it is felt now more strongly than ever that a single conference with no permanent organization could ever produce a scheme which would take account of eventualities in the same way as can a permanent agency like the League. Disarmament must be a work of slow growth toward which this possible conference at Washington might help materially. At the same time we realise the danger of such a conference meeting only one or two emergencies and then breaking up and leaving the idea that the problem had been permanently settled."

The form in which the British attitude is published is found particularly agreeable because of the stress it lays on the desire of the new Government to examine and find a formula that will have popular support in all countries, for a system of organization of Europe which will provide peace and security.

For many reasons the French would prefer that an Anglo-Franco-Belgian entente should be made the crown of the system developed in the Geneva protocol and that it should be formed subsequent to ratification of the protocol. But they accept with satisfaction the indication that whatever may be the decision of Great Britain and her Dominions with regard to the protocol itself, there

ANDERSON PAROLED; TO LEAVE SING SING ON CHRISTMAS EVE

Board Acts After Reversing Rule That All Convicts Must Serve Minimum Term.

RIGID EXAMINATION IS HELD

TO HAVE SERVED 9 MONTHS

Pecora Says He Sent Communication to Commission, but Made No Recommendation.

William H. Anderson, former Superintendent of the New York State Anti-Saloon League, who was sentenced to Sing Sing last March for from one to two years on his conviction on a $4,400 forgery charge, will be released from the prison on Christmas Eve. By then he will have served nine months.

The State Board of Parole, at a meeting in Sing Sing Prison last evening, reversed a ruling made last month by which Anderson and seventy-three other convicts would have lost the privilege of being released for good behavior in advance of their minimum terms.

The reversal of the ruling was agreed upon by the three members of the board, George Benham of Auburn, Dr. Elmer Larkin of Plattsburg and James L. Long of Oyster Bay, L. I., who also is State Superintendent of Prisons, before the meeting and shortly after Anderson had filed a form application for parole. Anderson was called before the board at 5 o'clock and for almost an hour was subjected to a barrage of questions by the three Commissioners.

Many of the questions were repetitions of inquiries Anderson had answered in his form petition. In some of his answers Anderson had indicated the defiant attitude which characterized him during the investigation of his management of the Anti-Saloon League by Ferdinand Pecora, Chief Assistant District Attorney, and in subsequent statements made by him after his indictment for forging the books of the league.

Pecora Issues a Statement.

Other questions indicated the members were reluctant to release him on "short time" unless he showed that he did not still retain this antagonism to the courts and officials who had brought about his imprisonment. A report was circulated outside the prison while Anderson was being interrogated that Mr. Pecora, in a letter to the board, had opposed the release of Anderson in advance of the minimum term of one year imposed on him by Justice Arthur S. Tompkins. Mr. Pecora, however, said last night that while he had written a letter to the board about Anderson's case he made no recommendation.

Mr. Pecora's statement explained to a considerable extent the purpose of the Parole Board in subjecting Anderson to such a rigid examination. It said that last week he received a letter from Warden Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing saying Anderson intended to apply for release and asking him to state the facts of the case.

The prosecutor said the Warden's communication was a usual form letter sent to a prosecutor to obtain information for the guidance of the board in interrogating a convict.

"In reply to the Warden's communication," Mr. Pecora said, "I reminded the board that the Anderson case had taken several days to try, that the facts of the trial had been widely published and suggested that the members of the board probably were as familiar with the facts as I was, but if they required detailed facts I would send them.

Mentions Anderson's Attitude.

"I then called the attention of the board to the attitude assumed by Anderson since his indictment in July, 1923, and up to and including the affirmation of his conviction by the Court of Appeals last month. I also stated that at frequent intervals Anderson had issued public statements in which he attacked the integrity of the members of the Grand Jury which indicted him, of the prosecutor and of every judicial and other public official who had had anything to do with his case.

"I said that attacks of that sort had a tendency to bring the courts and their

Twice Under Shell-Fire, Washington Floats; Armor of Hull Withstands Guns of Texas

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 20.—Twice withstanding bombardments today by 14-inch shells and bombs from the battleship Texas, the uncompleted dreadnought Washington was afloat tonight about thirty miles off the Virginia Capes.

Tomorrow it is planned to subject her to an aerial attack with nine bombing planes taking part, and should she survive the Texas gunners again will try their hand at sending her to the bottom.

The Texas opened her first attack today with 14-inch shells fired at the upper or more exposed portion of the Washington's armor. Experts found on boarding the target that, except for big dents made in the armor and incomplete punctures in several places, the Washington was not materially damaged and had she been in commission easily could have made port.

The second attack was directed against more vital parts. Underwater charges were fired to test the resistance of her hull, and shells were fired at the after section and amidships where engines would have been located. The Texas fired nine 14-inch shells and five underwater bombs, and at the end of the attack the observers found the hull practically free of water and the armor unpierced in a vital spot.

If the aerial attack is made tomorrow, which was not certain tonight, each of the planes will carry five bombs weighing 1,600 to 2,000 pounds, and will release them while passing over the Washington in battle formation.

QUIZZES BROTHERS OF FURNACE VICTIM

HUSBAND IS NEAR COLLAPSE

Officials Incline More to Theory of Attempt to Hide Suicide by Burning Body.

CANTON, Ohio, Nov. 20.—"Important information" toward a solution of how Mrs. Addie Sheatsley, 50, wife of the Rev. C. V. Sheatsley, pastor of Christ's Lutheran Church in Bexley, met her death, was obtained here tonight, Prosecutor John R. King of Columbus announced following two hours of questioning of Charles and Harry Sponseller of Canton, brothers of the dead woman. Mrs. Sheatsley's charred body was found in the furnace of her home Monday.

Prosecutor King did not disclose what new angles he had discovered, but announced he would remain here tomorrow in an effort to determine whether Mrs. Sheatsley was a murder or suicide victim.

Charles and Harry Sponseller rode from Columbus to Canton yesterday in an automobile with Clarence and Milton Sheatsley, sons of the dead woman.

With Detective Harry Carson of Columbus Mr. King arrived here shortly before noon and awaited the return of members of the family from Paris near here, where funeral services for Mrs. Sheatsley were held today. Mr. Sheatsley and his four children are spending the night in Paris.

Dr. Sheatsley reiterated his theory that his wife committed suicide by casting herself in the furnace in a note sent tonight to Prosecutor John R. King which was signed by Mr. Sheatsley and his 20-year-old son, Milton.

The note said the son was the first person to examine the furnace and commits himself to a statement opposite those previously made—that he found the little upper furnace door open. The note was delivered by the Rev. G. M. Schmucker of Canton, a friend of Mr. Sheatsley's.

Poison Theory Strengthened.

The possibility of Mrs. Sheatsley having taken poison from a bottle which, authorities said, was missing from its customary place in the Sheatsley home at Columbus, and that the woman's dead body was placed in the furnace by some one who did not want it to appear as though she had committed suicide, seemed strengthened tonight, authorities said.

Mr. King expressed hope that a chemical analysis of the lungs and esophagus of Mrs. Sheatsley, the result of which will be announced on his return to Columbus, would disclose whether or not she breathed after entering the firebox.

Paris, Ohio, the girlhood home of Mrs. Sheatsley, turned out en masse this afternoon for the simple funeral and burial services for the victim.

Clarence, the 18-year-old son, who heretofore has displayed little emotion, broke under the strain during the services and sobbed at intervals. Mr. Sheatsley appeared to be on the verge of collapse.

Heard Sounds in Basement.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20.—While the principal activity in the investigation into the cremation of Mrs. Addie Sheatsley on Monday shifted to Canton today, two more persons were questioned by detectives here.

The two persons questioned were neighbors who live across the street from the parsonage. They said they saw nothing unusual and verified the stories of C. O. Strader, who made a delivery of bread at the home and of E. E. Brideweser, a divinity student, who came to return a book he had borrowed from the minister, who was also a professor in Capital University.

They said they saw the "bread man" go around to the rear of the house with bread in his arms and come out a few moments later, apparently having left it there. They said also they saw the divinity student go first to the front door and ring and then to the rear door and come out again.

This testimony tallies with the stories told by Strader and Brideweser. Strader testified he went to the rear door of the parsonage with two loaves of bread at 2:30, as was customary. He found the kitchen door slightly ajar. He called and knocked and when he got no answer he pushed the door open, walked into the kitchen and laid the bread on the table.

"I went to the front door at 2 o'clock and rang the bell," Brideweser said. "I got no response and was about to turn away, thinking no one was around when I heard a noise in the basement. It seemed to come from the vicinity of the furnace. The sound was like that of some one shaking up the fire.

"Then I went around to the rear and knocked again. I knew there must be some one in the basement. I could still hear them down there. But the noise stopped after I had knocked several more times and then I went away, thinking that whoever it was they didn't want to be disturbed."

SIRDAR OF EGYPT DIES OF HIS WOUNDS

GREAT FEELING IN LONDON

British Cabinet Earlier in the Day Had Met to Consider Sending a Strong Note to Cairo.

CAIRO, Nov. 20 (Associated Press).—Major General Sir Lee Oliver Stack, Governor General of the Sudan and Sirdar of the Egyptian Army since 1919, has succumbed to the bullets of assassins. He died late tonight in a Cairo hospital.

The Sirdar was attacked yesterday by a group of men who, failing to achieve their purpose with a bomb, opened fire on him with revolvers. General Stack was wounded in the abdomen, the hand and the foot, one of the bullets passing under the lung.

From the first his condition was serious and there was very slight hope this morning that he would recover. After an operation, performed yesterday, he passed a fairly good night, but the loss of blood was so great that two transfusions were necessary.

He remained comatose until the afternoon; then a change for the worse occurred, and he gradually slipped away, dying about midnight.

Lady Stack, who had been induced overnight to take a much needed rest, remained by her husband's bedside almost the entire day.

The whole country is profoundly shocked at the outrage, and the gravity of the situation is everywhere realized. The press denounces the crime in the strongest terms. The Zaghlulist papers unanimously declare that Egypt's honor demands the discovery of the culprits and their exemplary punishment. Nothing, they assert, will be neglected "to wash away the bloody stain on the country's honor."

Thus far the assassins have not been traced, although several arrests have been made on suspicion.

British Cabinet Holds Conference.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The British Government, though it has no intention of interfering in any way with the status given to Egypt by its proclamation abolishing the protectorate or with the condominium established twenty years ago over the Sudan, is determined that it will make it clear to the Egyptians that such outrages as the assassination of Sir Lee Stack cannot be tolerated.

The steps it will take will be announced in the first place to the Egyptian Government, but it is pointed out here that it has abundant justification in the action it proposes to take in the obligation which it has always retained to protect the life and property of all non-Egyptians living in Egypt.

It is understood that the grave news from Egypt was the only matter under consideration at the meeting of the Cabinet which was hurriedly called this afternoon, and Austen Chamberlain, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, had been in consultation with the permanent officials of the Foreign Office earlier in the day. It is understood that the business before the Cabinet was to consider the nature of the protest which should be made to the Egyptian Government.

It was recognized in official circles that the Egyptian Government was doing its utmost to apprehend the criminals who attacked the Sirdar, but it was pointed out that in view of the persistent campaign against Britain which has been carried on in Egypt a heavy responsibility must rest upon the Egyptian Government itself.

Death Arouses London.

LONDON, Nov. 20 (Associated Press).—The announcement from Cairo of the death of Major Gen. Sir Lee Stack has aroused tense feeling in London. The British Cabinet held a specially summoned council today probably for the purpose of discussing the outrage and the policy to be followed. At that time, however, the Sirdar had not succumbed to the wounds inflicted by the assassins.

Although the King of Egypt and the Sudan authorities have taken a correct attitude, it is expected that the British Government will dispatch a strong note insisting on prompt satisfaction for the assassination and guarantees for the cessation of anti-British propaganda.

FUSION FIGHT OPENS; ATTACKS ON HYLAN AND G. O. P. LEADERS

ASSAILS PARTISAN PRIMARY

ANNOUNCES HIS PLANS

Also to Fight for Dollar Gas and Cheaper Phones—War on Bucketing.

Mobilization of the fusion forces of 1925 began last night when a small advance guard rallied at the Hotel Pennsylvania and, breathing defiance at Mayor Hylan on one hand and the Republican bosses who have come out against fusion in next year's Mayoralty campaign on the other, took preliminary steps toward the launching of a city-wide organization on more pretentious lines than four and eight years ago.

The opening gun was a broadside against Mayor Hylan by Joseph M. Price, veteran of many fusion fights, who had issued the call for the meeting. The Mayor was referred to by Mr. Price as our "Buncombe Mayor" and his failure to provide additional transit facilities, his alleged interference with the public schools assailed, while his administration was broadly characterized as one of "hunk, buncombe and slander."

While the prospective fusionists were making their preliminary plans for next year's municipal campaign the Republicans let it be known that immediate steps would be taken after the newly elected State officials have taken hold at the Capitol to enforce the statute enacted in 1922 under which the installation of voting machines in this city was made mandatory. This law has remained dormant because the Board of Estimate and Apportionment has refused to provide the necessary funds.

Fight for Voting Machines.

Albert Ottinger, Attorney General-elect, at a meeting of the Republican County Committee last night, announced that he would make it his business to see that the law became effective.

The Republicans are under the impression that the voting machine is about the only means through which they can be assured of an honest count on Election Day in this city and that the installation of the machines would mean thousands of additional votes recorded for Republican candidates. There has been talk in Republican circles of having the State assume the expense of putting in the necessary 5,000 machines if the courts should refuse to grant a mandamus on the city authorities to supply the necessary funds.

About twenty-five persons, among them seven women, assembled in Parlor A at the Pennsylvania Hotel last night in response to the summons issued by Mr. Price.

Oppose Partisan Primary.

One feature of the speeches made at the rally was the proposal by former Tenement House Commissioner John J. Murphy, an old Citizens Union war horse, that a bill be prepared and sent to the Republican Legislature next year, with a view to the abolition of partisan primaries in city elections. The partisan primary has proved a drawback to all fusion movements in recent years, especially in 1917, when Mayor Mitchel, a Democrat, was compelled to go into the Republican primaries to win a renomination, with the result that he was defeated by William M. Bennett, whom the Republican organizations throughout the city afterward found it impossible to support.

A non-partisan primary in municipal elections, Mr. Murphy said, would make fusion movements unnecessary in the future, and the submission of the proposed legislation, he added, would afford a test of the sincerity both of the Republicans in the Legislature and of Governor Smith, who would have to approve the measure before it could become law.

Mr. Price called the meeting to order and delivered an introductory address, in the course of which he said:

"A Mayor of the City of New York will be elected next year and it is not too soon to prepare for this election. The city has had several years of Government by bunk-bunkum and slander and during that time none of the vital problems confronting New York City have been solved, though we had pre-election promises galore.

"The transit problem was to have been solved and the result is that we have

Coolidge Message to Congress To Be Brief and Stress Economy

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—President Coolidge today began work on his message to Congress at the forthcoming session. This document is awaited with great interest by leaders in the House and the Senate. It is the general understanding that the President will stress the need for economy in Government expenditures, which, the leaders believe, will be the outstanding feature of the message. A reference probably will be made also to the World Court.

A spokesman for the President recently made the statement that Mr. Coolidge was of the opinion that it would not be practicable to make any attempt at a further revision of the income tax laws until the books of the Treasury have been balanced for the current fiscal year.

There is reason to believe that the President's message will be brief, and that it will contain few suggestions for legislation in the remaining days of this Congress, which will assemble Dec. 1 and expire by constitutional limitation March 4.

POLICE GRAFT INQUIRY VIRTUALLY ASSURED

WIRTH SEEKS COURT ACTION

Confident He Can Get Four Colleagues to Join Him in Bringing About Investigation.

An investigation of the activities of the Special Service Division of the Police Department appeared certain yesterday when Commissioner Enright wrote to Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield and "earnestly requested" a thorough investigation of the charges of graft made Tuesday on the floor of the Aldermanic Chamber.

Commissioner Enright's action followed the threat of Aldermen John Wirth, Republican, of Brooklyn, that, exercising the provisions of Section 1,824 of the City Charter, he would ask four other members of the board to join with him in petitioning the Supreme Court for an investigation. Before the fact of Commissioner Enright's request became known Alderman Wirth announced that three other Republican members of the board had agreed to sign the petition, and that he expected no difficulty in obtaining the fifth signature necessary to the appeal.

Although the charges originally were made by Democratic members of the board, it appeared unlikely last night that any Democratic Aldermen would sign the petition. Certainly neither Alderman Edward J. Sullivan nor Alderman James F. Kiernan will assist their Republican colleague. Both were reported to have said yesterday that they were going to let the matter drop. Their decision followed the letter of Commissioner Enright to Mayor Hylan, in which he charged that personal animus prompted their criticisms of the vice squad.

Commissioner Enright in his letter to Commissioner Hirshfield outlined the charges that had been made in the Aldermanic debate, and, after requesting an investigation, suggested that if any violations of the law were disclosed the facts be placed before the District Attorney for prosecution. His letter was as follows:

The Commissioner's Letter.

Nov. 20, 1924.

Hon. David Hirshfield,
Commissioner of Accounts,
Municipal Building, City.

My Dear Commissioner: At a meeting of the Board of Aldermen on Tuesday, the 18th inst., members of that body, including Aldermen McGuinness, Sullivan, Kiernan and Quinn, took occasion to severely criticise the Police Commissioner and our police forces. Various newspapers in their issues of Nov. 19 published an account of these charges and criticisms, among which the following were attributed to the above named Aldermen:

"Through zeal to secure arrests, methods are used (by police officers) that are not strictly in accord with good judgment, and officers make searches or seizures without due regard or warrant by law."

"Members of the Special Service Division flirt with poor shop girls and then when these girls respond to their flirtations arrest them as disorderly characters, and I have seen how they have tried to stamp these girls as bad characters."

"These young men in this squad (Special Service Division) are open to the contamination of graft, and we cannot fool ourselves. We know many of the young men are taking money and ruining their careers."

"Police recruits are taught to go out and get convictions, and the methods they employ are often extremely improper."

"Everybody knows that there are

HYLAN REVEALS PLAN FOR BIG ART CENTRE IN THE UPPER BRONX

200-Acre Tract Where Jerome Park Reservoir Now Stands Will Be Used, He Says.

TO BE SORT OF HIGH SCHOOL

Musical, Dancing and Dramatic Courses Planned for Students Showing Exceptional Ability.

AID OF THE POOR ITS AIM

Extensive Program Is Outlined by the Mayor's Committee at a Dinner Given by Bernheimer.

The complete new plans for Mayor Hylan's Music and Art Centre, over which a storm of indignation burst at the suggestion that it be placed in Central Park, were made known last night at a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria, which the Mayor attended as the guest of his Committee on Music.

The site, originally planned to take away six acres from Central Park and then changed to the block bounded by Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth Streets and Sixth and Seventh Avenues, has been changed again, the Mayor announced. He said the Jerome Park Reservoir tract in the Bronx, adjoining Van Cortlandt Park in the south, seemed altogether desirable for the centre. He described the project as a music and art high school.

It was in a report submitted by the Committee on Music, however, that the details were given. This report disclosed that music, dancing and the dramatic arts were to be taught and for this purpose the centre is to have an auditorium seating 2,500 persons, a modern theatre seating 1,200, a chamber music hall seating 600, more than 100 classrooms and a dance floor. In addition the centre is to have a gymnasium, a cafeteria and a library.

The Mayor in outlining the project said there was no dearth of private schools for instruction in music and in art, but that there was no adequate provision for the fostering of the spark of genius in those unable to afford training in private schools.

Admission to its courses, he suggested, might be based on a certificate of graduation from the elementary schools and the teachers were not only "to fulfill the usual requirements of our educational system," but would have to qualify further in the special subjects to be taught. He indicated that a board composed of men and women would be appointed to examine students seeking admission and suggested that in the evening the centre might be used for collegiate purposes.

The Mayor's Speech.

The Mayor's speech was as follows:

The Mayor's Committee on Music and the Board of Education, of which groups there are many representatives here tonight, have cooperated in a very laudable way for the extension of the cultural and recreational opportunities afforded in our city.

Our original plan of a music and art centre, of one or two buildings, to be situated on a six-acre plot in a corner of Central Park, has been temporarily supplanted by our proposal to erect a large high school and other buildings upon a plot of ground of some two hundred acres, with the buildings placed in the midst of esthetic and spacious park lands. The Jerome Park Reservoir site, now a wilderness, which has been suggested by President Hulbert of the Board of Aldermen, seems altogether desirable for the purpose in mind, its three subway stations conveniently located, making access easy for all city residents.

I feel that the delegation of the work of determining upon the scope of the activities to be included in the proposed educational centre and the location to be selected was well entrusted to Chamberlain Berolsheimer as was the absolute freedom vested in him to select his own advisers.

Mr. Berolsheimer, who may be considered as a pioneer in this city in the field of establishing a municipally operated centre for the development of latent musical and artistic talent, has worked very zealously in furtherance of our plan for a high school of the arts.

There is no dearth of private schools to which aspiring students may go for the development of artistic talent, but the extension of opportunities even to those with little except their own dormant possibilities to gain them admittance to such institutions was, up to the present time, received but scant attention.

It was after consultation with Mr. Berolsheimer, the educational authorities of the city and many men and women connected with the several branches of the arts, such as music, painting, sculpture, architecture, literature and the drama, that the establishment of such a municipal educational centre was decided upon.

Still in Preliminary Stage.

Of course we are still in the preliminary stages of this development. Rules governing admission to the new high school of the arts have still to be formulated. It is believed that a certificate of graduation from an elementary school or its equivalent should be the first requirement. The teaching staff will not only be expected to fulfill the usual requirements of our educational system, but will be expected to qualify independently in the particular subject to be taught.

Attention will then be given to the possible creation of a board to be composed of men and women of acknowledged standing in the subjects we would include in the new high school of the arts to methodize the sifting of the elementary schools for the purpose of discovering those pupils

Zinovieff Letter Was Forged in Berlin With Connivance of Police, It Is Charged

Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, Nov. 20.—The climax of the $5,000,000 police graft case here came tonight, when officials accused the group of arrested police heads of forging and planting Russian documents, "including a series of forged Zinovieff letters, one of which caused an international sensation recently."

Simultaneously, a $10,000,000 fund for buying the elections for the Monarchist and Nationalist parties was uncovered and a series of other graft.

The officials have asked the local press to remain silent on the Zinovieff letters in the hope of obtaining confessions. The officials assert that a conspiracy existed between the Prussian police chiefs and Russian refugees here to forge and plant documents to influence international politics. When asked whether evidence existed that the Zinovieff letter was made here, an official said:

"We have evidence that several documents signed with M. Zinovieff's name were forged here. We feel certain that one of these letters caused the recent sensation. We believe we have only touched the outskirts of the Berlin graft case and cannot disclose more now."

The main person accused is the Police Chief in the foreign section of the Berlin Police Department, who is working also as representative of the Minister of the Interior. His name is Herr Bartel. He is already notorious for using the expression, "Damn those Americans," and "foreign swine" in his office at the time thousands of Americans and other foreigners flocked to Germany during the cheap living period. Yet, at the same time, it is alleged that the $5,000,000 grafting was done through foreigners.

The Vorwärts, official organ of the Social-Democratic Party, has published documentary evidence accusing Herr von Borsig, President of the Borsig Locomotive Werke, one of Germany's largest industrial undertakings, of organizing the $10,000,000 election fund. Herr von Borsig's alleged letters told how a special bank account was opened to which all industrialists who favored a Monarchist-Nationalist victory in the December election must contribute 1% for each man employed. This fund was believed to be ample to carry the elections, inasmuch as all parties were suffering from a money shortage.

Several other officials, including Government Councilor Bushmann, are accused of obtaining places for many persons, who paid 1 per cent. of their monthly salary.

Girl's Singing Heartens Shipwrecked Crew, Adrift at Sea in Open Boat With No Help Near

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 20.—The story of a girl singing while facing death in an open boat at sea to keep up the courage of her shipwrecked companions was told in a radio message received here today from the steamer City of Atlanta.

The girl was 18-year-old Katherine Woodworth of Rockport, Mass., who was picked up with another woman and five men on Wednesday morning, 150 miles off the Virginia Capes. They had been adrift in a lifeboat since Monday night when their ship, the three-masted schooner, Susan B., coal laden from Hampton Roads to St. Stephens, N. B., went down in the storm that swept the coast the first of the week.

These in the boat beside Miss Woodworth were Captain L. B. Bishop and his wife, both of Providence; August Sylvia and John Bishop, also of Providence; Wilbur S. Jerrord of Vineyard Haven, and A. Maladi, a Hawaiian.

The crew and passengers of the Susan B., abandoned their vessel in a blinding snowstorm. They had little food and suffered intensely from cold. Messages from the rescue ship told how the girl time and time again sang to keep the spirits of her companions up until the rescue ship came in sight.

dual talent in music and art which individual training would develop.

At the present it would seem that all elementary school graduates of demonstrated capacity should have the right to strive for admission and that the actual admission of any student to the proposed new technical high school would be dependent upon the recommendation of the contemplated board of selection. To all students who are residents of the city tuition will be free; but if it be deemed proper to extend the opportunities of this new high school to non-residents we will then have time to consider the advisability of imposing a tuition charge upon such non-residents.

It may also be decided to make the widest possible use of this proposed new high school by utilizing it as a college institution during the evening. A certificate of graduation from a high school or its equivalent and the passing of an examination by the Board of Selection would be among the requirements for admission.

The City of New York, whose people comprise so many racial strains, should not be a difficult one in which to find exceptional talent. Where the spark of great intellectual capacity or creative ability glows, however flickerfully, we should be prepared to blow upon it until the flame of genius bursts forth. Many a promising bright light in the musical and artistic spheres has been permitted to languish and become extinguished because of poverty and the denial of the opportunities for development which poverty so often inflicts.

On behalf of the people of this city I wish to thank most sincerely Mr. Berolsheimer, the members of the Mayor's Committee on Music and those in our educational system, as well as all others who have cooperated in the advancement of this splendid work for the children of their city. For their public-spiritedness and unselfish devotion to the public interests they have my heartiest appreciation, as well as my assurance that the recommendations which have been made will have both my personal as well as official attention.

The Committee's Report.

William C. Carl, Chairman of the Committee on Music, read the report of the committee. He said the purpose of the centre would be to foster a love for music and for art. The report follows in full:

Hon. Philip Berolsheimer,
Chairman Mayor's Committee on Music.

Dear Mr. Berolsheimer:

Your subcommittee, composed of Dr. William C. Carl, Chairman; Alfred Human, Leonard Liebling, George H. Gartlan and William Tachau (in advisory capacity on the music building), respectfully reports as follows on the establishment of a new school to be known as the Music and Industrial Arts High School of the City of New York:

The object of this school will be to foster the love and appreciation of good music and further to provide instructions to all eligible candidates.

The following subjects are to be taught:

1. Music in all its branches.
2. Dancing.
3. Dramatic arts.

An apartment is to be provided for piano, organ, voice and all instruments of the band and orchestra, including ensemble playing, church, theatre and recital music, oratorio, opera, languages, physical education and pageantry.

In no wise will this institution compete with existing musical institutions or individual instructors, for it is the specific purpose of this conservatory to aid and serve the cause of music, to cooperate with all recognized bodies devoted to musical education.

The advice of leading musicians will be solicited.

There will be provided instruction in dancing, including ballet, solo, pantomime, folke, classical and interpretative.

There will be proper facilities for the study of the dramatic arts, including elocution, acting, playwriting, stagecraft, properties, scenic art, lighting and electrical effects.

The Physical Requirements.

The physical requirements of the edifice will be as follows:

A. Music in all its branches. An auditorium seating 2,500, a chamber music hall seating 600, a modern theatre seating 1,200, twenty-five classrooms, seating twenty pupils each; twenty-five rooms for organ study, with piano in each; forty practice rooms for piano practice, twenty-five seminar rooms, three rooms for master classes for fifty pupils each, with a modern organ in each; twenty rooms for vocal practice, ten rooms for vocal teaching.

B. Dancing. A large hall 60 by 125 feet, two small rooms for individual instruction, a locker room and individual dressing rooms for thirty pupils, with adequate showers.

C. Dramatic arts. A theatre as above mentioned, a lecture room for 100 pupils, two small lecture rooms, a scenic workroom, a studio for scenic painting, a studio for costume designing rooms for the study of lighting and electrical effects, a reading room. All common to the three departments, there is to be provided a gymnasium, a cafeteria, a library and proper space for the administration facilities.

The same non-competitive policy to be followed in the school of music will be adopted for the schools of dancing and dramatic arts. The whole spirit of this project is to work in close cooperation with recognized institutions and individuals.

Respectfully submitted,
WILLIAM C. CARL,
Chairman.

Nov. 20, 1924.

Applause Greets Report.

The report was received with applause. Alfred Human, managing editor of Musical America, then discussed the cultural and the civic value of the project. New York City, he said, was peculiarly lacking in community spirit and he believed this would be a foundation stone for cultural and civic development, such as had been attained in other cities in the country.

Other speakers of the evening were Sigmund Spaeth and Joseph Haag, Assistant Mayor.

The original plan of the Mayor to build the Music and Art Centre in Central Park brought on a storm of adverse criticism. Men and women prominent in the life of the city protested. The Mayor, however, would not listen to the complaints that this would mean the beginning of serious encroachments on the park and there was talk of a law suit to prevent the plan from being put into effect.

In June the Mayor abandoned the Central Park Plan. At a dinner given in his honor by Mr. Berolsheimer he said that a new site had been selected. This he announced as being the block bounded by Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth Streets and Sixth and Seventh Avenues and he said that men of wealth "disgusted at the criticisms of professional critics" had offered to contribute toward its purchase.

"You all know of the great criticism brought about by professional critics," the Mayor said then in explaining his position. "There was a great demand for a music and art centre, and the Chamberlain undertook that work. Of course we looked about for a suitable location and we selected it north of Fifty-ninth Street in Central Park on the rocks.

"After that criticism, brought about by some of those men who live out there in Long Island and in New Jersey, a prominent citizen, I am informed by the Chamberlain, came forward in disgust at the criticism and offered to aid with large sums of money if this great project could be accomplished."

The plan then was to place the matter before the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and the Mayor announced that in view of the offers to help in the purchase he did not think any difficulty would be encountered in getting favorable action on both the project and the site.

What brought about the change in plan the Mayor did not disclose last night, and others who talked to him later declined to discuss the matter.

Explosion Affected Two Blocks Only

The Brooklyn Edison Company said yesterday that the explosion in Williamsburg on Wednesday afternoon did not leave "a large part of Brooklyn" without current as THE TIMES of Thursday said it did, but that two blocks were affected. The company also declared that service was restored in three-quarters of an hour. The proprietors of several stores across Broadway and Flushing Avenue said, however, that they were without light from three to three and one-half hours.

DEPARTING GUESTS FOIL HOTEL THEFT

Party Interrupts Hold-Up of Clerk at the Pasadena.

DEADLINE HOLDS FIRM

Bandits Operating on the Fringe Get $4,000 in Cash and Jewelry in Hat Store.

No crimes of violence were reported from the midtown deadline zone yesterday, but before dawn, on the edge of the district, two hold-up men attempted to rob the safe of the Hotel Pasadena, Central Park West and Sixty-first Street, of $500. A few hours earlier three bandits made a successful raid on a hat store at 125 Second Avenue, in which they obtained between $3,000 and $4,000 in money and jewelry.

In the attempt to rob the hotel the police arrested one man, Alfred Cole, 27 years old, of 16 Manhattan Avenue, who was held in $50,000 bail for the Grand Jury when he was arraigned before Magistrate Louis B. Brodsky in the West Side Court on charges of robbery and felonious assault. The police said he pointed a pistol at Clayton Barnes, the clerk, after a confederate, who escaped, was alleged to have demanded that Barnes hand over to him $500 from the safe.

Cole's arrest followed the unexpected appearance of ten men and women guests of the hotel, who stepped out of an elevator shortly after 1 A. M., to find the clerk nervously manipulating the combination handle of the safe in the office while a short young man trained a pistol on him. The women screamed and bolted for the side door leading to Sixty-first Street, and the men followed precipitously, while a taller gunman blocked the main entrance with a pistol in his hand.

Noise Scares off One Robber.

The uproar freightened the robber at the entrance, and he fled, leaving his confederate, whom Barnes later identified as Cole, impatiently awaiting the delivery of the money from the safe. A negro employe of the hotel learned what was taking place from the fleeing guests, and he ran to Policeman Thomas Killoran of the West Sixty-eighth Street station, who was in Broadway near Sixtieth Street.

With pistol drawn the policeman ran into the lobby of the hotel a few seconds later and said he found Cole still threatening Barnes with his pistol. Killoran said that as he leaped for Cole the latter pressed his pistol against his body and attempted to pull the trigger, but the safety catch had locked the mechanism. The policeman added that his prisoner then scuffled with him in the lobby and managed to get to the sidewalk, where Killoran felled him with several blows of his club and started with Cole in a taxicab for the station. On the way, he said, Cole made three attempts to get away.

Cole wouldn't reveal the identity of his confederate, saying he was a stranger whom he met earlier in the evening in Harlem and whom he accused of slipping into his pocket the pistol found on him. He said that the stranger invited him to call on two actresses at the hotel, but Barnes said that when Cole walked up to the desk while his confederate stationed himself at the door, he asked for a Mrs. Stone, "the wife of a jockey," a guest.

Identified by Woman.

Mrs. Stone called at the station soon after and identified Cole as one of two men who a week before had aided her in opening the front door of the hotel, which had become jammed. She said the men got out of an automobile, but she had never seen them before. She couldn't understand how Cole obtained her name, Cole, before his arraignment in court, was taken to Police Headquarters, where, after his fingerprints had been taken, Inspector Coughlin, head of the Detective Bureau, said that Cole had a criminal record.

The other robbery, on the fringe of the east side of the newly established deadline zone, occurred in the establishment of George Holstein. The highwaymen drove up in a large automobile. Holstein and a friend were driven into a rear room and stripped of jewelry amounting to $1,200, and about $500 in money. Five customers who entered the store later were driven into the rear room with the first victims and robbed, after which the bandits made their escape in the car. The description of the robbers tallied with those of three young men who two weeks ago held up the Savioff-Irving hat store at 110 Second Avenue.

Woman Robbed in Street.

The most daring crime reported to the police of the city last night was the holdup of Mrs. Catherine Lambert, 68 years old, of 320 Sixtieth Street, Brooklyn, who was robbed of $500 by two youths within two blocks of her home. The robbers drove up to the woman in an automobile as Mrs. Lambert, who is the proprietor of several large boarding houses in the Bay Ridge section, was on her way home with the $500 in a handbag. One of them leaped from the running board of the car, and snatched the bag and jumped back into the auto, which started off at high speed, and hit another automobile at Seventh Avenue, a block and a half from the scene of the holdup. The robbers' car was so badly damaged that both occupants ran off in opposite directions. They were not captured.

Policeman Kelly of the Greenpoint Station became suspicious shortly after 1 A. M. yesterday when he saw two men driving at a reckless speed in a motor truck through Franklin Street, Brooklyn. He pursued the truck in a commandeered taxicab, and after a mile chase, arrested the two, who said they were James Giraffia and Samuel De Nicolo of New Brunswick, N. J. The policeman brought them back to the warehouse of the Saxon Financial Co. Company at 154 Franklin Street, where he discovered that the basement door had been forced and two barrels of wine, valued at $200, taken. The truck was empty, but the policeman arrested the men on suspicion of knowing something about the robbery.

Frank Marone, 22, who gave his address as 2,278 Second Avenue, walked into the Sixth Avenue Hospital at 4:30 A. M., and applied for treatment for a bullet wound in the left hip. He later told the police that when he was on his way home three robbers pounced on him at Third Avenue and 47th Street and when he put up a fight to save a $50 scarf pin which the robbers got, he was shot.

INQUIRY ASSURED INTO POLICE GRAFT

Many readers of these newspapers who are not informed regarding sinister purposes of the persons making these charges and the propaganda which will probably use this unwarranted attack on the Police Department as a pretense, may actually believe that there is basis of fact or truth in the accusations, and it is well known that persons who fall into the clutches of the criminal law and the friends and backers of such persons are always ready to believe that public officers and men wearing a police uniform are dishonest, without first giving them an opportunity to show the motive of the persons making such charges and proving the falsity thereof, a right guaranteed and accorded by law to other citizens not in public life or wearing a police uniform, who must be given an opportunity to be heard and who are presumed to be innocent until proven guilty.

I therefore earnestly request that the charges, accusations and innuendoes made by the above named members of the Board of Aldermen, or either of them, or the persons referred to be made the subject of a thorough investigation by you as Commissioner of Accounts of the City of New York, and that you invite and summons these above named persons, their supporters or clients, and each of them, who may have any evidence or knowledge of any dishonest practices, graft or unlawful conduct on the part of any officer or member of the Police Department to appear before you and furnish you with any such evidence, knowledge or information, if they have any.

If, in the course of such investigation, there are facts or information given by these persons, or any of them, worthy of belief which would constitute a violation of any law and warrant prosecution of any person connected with the Police Department, you should submit the same to the District Attorney having jurisdiction thereof.

Very truly yours,
R. E. ENRIGHT,
Police Commissioner.

Wirth to Continue His Efforts.

In announcing his determination to bring about an investigation under the City Charter, Alderman Wirth said that he already had obtained the consent of Aldermen George Harvey, William F. Quinn and Harry Meyer to join with him in the petition. He pointed out that his original resolution on Tuesday for an investigation was offered only after Democratic members of the board had attacked the special service division. His resolution was defeated and it was then that he determined to proceed in the manner of the Van Wyck investigation, in which he assisted.

At that time the petition was presented to the late Mayor William J. Gaynor, who then was a Justice of the Supreme Court. It was signed by five Aldermen, who made affidavits that they had reason to believe certain high officials were involved in the ice trust scandal.

"It is just as easy now as it was then to bring about an investigation," Alderman Wirth said. "Three Aldermen stand ready to join with me, and I expect no difficulty in obtaining a fourth. However, I will bow to the will of the majority of the Republicans in the board. We are to meet tomorrow, and if they believe we should go ahead no time will be lost in drawing up the petition and presenting it to the court."

Although bitterly assailed in the Police Commissioner's letter to the Mayor, the three Democratic members who attacked the vice squad declined overtures from the Republicans yesterday to join with them in a request for an investigation. Alderman Klernan, whom the Police Commissioner accused of having "a fat grudge" against him because he would not transfer a patrolman who had "put this pseudo statesman in his proper place," declined yesterday to make any reply.

"I am not going to answer the Commissioner," Alderman Klernan said. "Nor am I going to take part in any request for an investigation. I understand, however, that Alderman Wirth is going ahead with his plan."

Alderman Sullivan, who, the Commissioner said, bore him ill-will "because his numerous relatives in the Police Department are not taken care of to his satisfaction," could not be found yesterday. He was not at his home, and he did not visit the City Hall in the afternoon.

Alderman Peter J. McGuinness, whom the Police Commissioner referred to as a "two-cent politician," and who can be charged with "constantly bombarding the Police Comomissioner with his personal requests for the transfer or promotion of his friends," also decided that he would make no reply.

"I will not make any answer to anything the Police Commissioner has said against me or about my Democratic colleagues," said Mr. McGuinness. "I will not indulge in personalities. As a matter of fact, I have always been a champion of Mayor Hylan and Police Commissioner Enright and my resolution was not directed at the head of the Police Department but at the Special Service Squad. The Police Department of New York has done its duty in keeping the city clean, and for six years I have stood on the floor of the Board of Aldermen and defended the rights of the Police Commissioner. My resolution called for the wiping out of the Special Service Squad and in offering it I represented the sentiment of my constituents. I had a perfect right to offer such a resolution."

Message From Mayor Hylan.

Mayor Hylan also was absent, but he, too, sent a message.

"The energy and foresight," wrote the Mayor, "of those who have made it their peculiar care to foster and promote the development of Fifth Avenue must be accorded every credit. Their spirit of cooperation and civic-mindedness is reflected in the avenue's pageant of progress.

"Working both as individuals and through various agencies, particularly the Fifth Avenue Association, they have derived the tremendous advantages obtainable in trial term only, and by which comes from intelligent organization. They have enjoyed the fullest cooperation of the City Administration as well as the State Government, because they have been able to agree upon programs of development, formulate definite policies, and, at the same time, adjust their requirements to those of the other public needs of the city and State which had also to be considered.

"Indeed, more than one movement they have set afoot for their own purposes has resulted in direct benefit to the city at large. The zoning law, to augur one instance, came as a result of the effort they started some years ago to regulate the height of buildings and to determine the character of factories that should be permitted in the shopping district.

"The idea has since grown to something far greater than that. It has made possible groupings of related business, institutions and industries which have worked out for the good of all of them, and many another street has profited, directly or indirectly, from it.

"The spirit which has helped to make Fifth Avenue may be counted upon to withstand encroachments tending to jeopardize the attractiveness of the avenue and to work steadfastly for the fulfilment of a prophecy of still greater development."

Others who spoke were former State Senator Bernard Downing, the Rev. Dr. Howard Duffield, Dr. John H. Finley and R. C. Benchley.

REPUBLICANS WRANGLE IN CONNECTICUT RACE

Roraback or Bingham May Run for Brandegee's Senate Seat to Shut Out Merritt.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 20.—Representative Schuyler Merritt of Stamford, until recently the leading candidate to succeed Senator Frank B. Brandegee, who committee suicide just three weeks before the national election, according to a report today, has been definitely dropped by the State organization, which is guided by State Chairman and National Committeeman J. H. Roraback.

Governor-elect Hiram Bingham is generally understood to have been picked for Brandegee's seat in 1926, and the Senator's suicide upset political plans for the next two years. It is said there is no assurance that Merritt, if nominated and elected for the unexpired term, would relinquish the toga to Bingham in 1926, and Roraback is faced with the possibility of having to take the place himself so as to guarantee his pledge to make Bingham a Senator.

Another solution of Roraback's dilemma and a possible prevention of a stampeded convention here Tuesday is to nominate Bingham now and have him run at the special State election on Dec. 16. If elected, he would be inaugurated Governor Jan. 7, so that Lieutenant Governor-elect John H. Trumbull of Plainville might become Governor when Bingham resigned to qualify at Washington.

Hamilton Holt of Woodstock, former editor of The Independent, and ex-Congressman Augustine Lonergan of Hartford are now the leading candidates on the Democratic side following a statement today by Congressman R. B. O'Sullivan of Derby that he was not a candidate and would prefer working for the election of some other Democrat.

In spite of the 135,000 Coolidge plurality in Connecticut two weeks ago, the Democrats feel they have a chance for Brandegee's seat, due to the violent dissension in the Republican ranks and the historical fact that a special election always draws a very small vote.

5TH AV. CENTENNIAL OBSERVED AT DINNER

1,200 GATHER AT WALDORF

Oscar Cooper, Who Presides, Speaks of Traffic Congestion and Retail Zone Problems.

Twelve hundred men and women attended the dinner of the Fifth Avenue Association held last night in the Waldorf-Astoria to celebrate the Avenue's centennial. Messages were read from President Coolidge, Governor Smith and Mayor Hylan, and a birthday cake with a hundred candles was brought into the room just before the speaking began.

Oscar Cooper, who presided, said that traffic congestion and the proposal to create a retail zone were the major problems now confronting the association.

"Centennial Week shows Fifth Avenue in action; our celebration is an event of artistic significance. The traditions of fine workmanship as expressed in the production of linens and silks and dresses; in the cutting of precious stones, in fine furniture and decoration—these traditions are emphasized in the exhibits of merchandise for the celebration. To show the development in this wise is to separate the permanent from the transient, to reveal the underlying artistic forces which renew themselves in varied forms with the march of time.

"May I sum up the Fifth Avenue Centennial as a dramatization of the living continuity between the past and the present, showing how tradition and inherited standards are incorporated into the useful refinements of business and home life; of buildings and of men, so that the very quality of life is somehow bettered by Fifth Avenue standards.

"There is much cause for rejoicing in the high estate which our avenue has reached and the golden opinion it has won the world over."

Mrs. Cooper then read the following message from the President, which was addressed to Colonel Michael Friedsam:

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Washington,
November 18, 1924.

My dear Colonel Friedsam:

The Centennial Anniversary of Fifth Avenue, which you are celebrating this week in New York, is, of course, an event of vastly more than merely local interest. As you look back, it is not difficult to realise that the men whose wisdom and vision recognized 100 years ago the need for opening up this noble avenue have made a great contribution to that century of marvels in the history of the metropolis. It is altogether a good thing that this anniversary is being observed in a way which must compel attention to the many problems involved in the growth and amazingly rapid evolution of so great a city. Doubtless New York's expansion, and the increasing complexity of its physical and administrative problems in the next century will be quite as great as in the past century. In this regard they will only keep in step with the experience which the nation will encounter in the same epoch. As your great city will require the wisest leadership and direction which its loyal citizens can give, so will our country likewise need the best in patriotic interest and broadminded statesmanship that can be given by a devoted people.

My congratulations to the people of New York on this notable anniversary. They will have the best wishes of all their countrymen for continued and ever-increasing success in the development of the Republicans that any attempt on the part of up-State bosses to interfere in the city election next year would be resented by the voters.

Samuel F. Hyman, who spoke next, proposed that a call be issued setting forth the principles of the fusion fighters and inviting citizens throughout the community to join.

Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw said that in her opinion it would be unfortunate to call the new movement a fusion movement and better to have it appear merely as an independent movement.

Thomas Gilleran of the Bronx also spoke. When Hearst ran for Mayor in 1905, Mr. Gilleran was on his ticket as candidate for Controller. He was active in the fusion movement four years ago. He said there was as much discontent within the Democratic organizations in this city with the present administration that in organization entered it would be referred to as sedition. He added that in his opinion Senator Wadsworth had a perfect right to be highly indignant with the local Republican machines as a result of the barter, bargains and deals with the enemy upon which they entered at every election.

The two resolutions, one offered by Mr. Gilroy and the other by Mr. Gilleran, providing for committees on organization and plan and scope were then adopted without dissenting votes, whereupon the meeting adjourned, subject to the call of the Chair.

Among those who attended were former Tax Commissioner John J. Halleran of Queens; Mrs. Frank Keep, Julius Blumberg, Harry Hynes, David Hunton, Mrs. James C. McCurrach, Mrs. James Erskine Neal, Mrs. M. Morgenthau, Jr., James M. Fauiding, Edward Potter, Michael Potter, Lionel Sutro, Schuyler N. Warren Jr., Herbert A. Wolf and Leo Armstein.

PRISON FOR BEATING SON.

Father Gets a Year for Clubbing 3-Year-Old Son for Going to Sleep.

Vincent Polillo, a big, powerful, unshorn man, was sentenced to a year's imprisonment in the Essex County Penitentiary by Judge Daniel Brennan in the Family Court at Newark yesterday for beating his three-year-old son with a club because the boy fell asleep without his permission Wednesday night in the Polillo home on St. Cloud Avenue in West Orange. As Polillo was led away to serve his sentence his son, Vincent Jr., was reported in much improved condition in the Orange Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Maria Polillo told the Court that her husband had habitually abused not only her two children by a former marriage, Frank and Louise Partarimano, 11 and 10 years old, but also their own offspring, Angelina, 7 months old, and Vincent. She said he would not permit them to retire before he went declaring because if they did they arose earlier and disturbed his slumber in the morning.

Wednesday night, Mrs. Polillo related, Vincent fell asleep in the warmth behind the kitchen stove. The boy's uncle and she carried him to his bed. When his father found out that he had gone to sleep without his consent, she said, he pounced on a club and beat the boy.

A short time later Joseph Partarimano, Mrs. Polillo's brother-in-law by her first marriage, who lives near by, came to the Polillo home and discovered the marks of the beating on Vincent's body. He notified the Orange police and Polillo was locked up by Detective Barney Health.

Polillo declared in court that he had been unable to buy proper food or clothing for his family and for himself because he was poverty stricken. When Health stated that he had found $50 in cash on Polillo, and a bank book showing he had more than $700 in a Montclair bank, Judge Brennan pronounced him guilty and sentenced him.

Curley Invites Coolidge to Boston.

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—Mayor Curley today invited President Coolidge to be the city's guest at the rededication of the restored Faneuil Hall on April 19 and 20, the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Lexington and Concord.

ATTACKS ON HYLAN AND G. O. P. LEADERS

worse overcrowding than before with no relief in sight, with the exception of the promised paper relief plan to be used no doubt in the coming election to convince us that something will finally be done. Our Mayor has at last discovered there is overcrowding in the subways; he has, with a great fanfare of publicity, visited two congested stations. When he took office seven years ago he made a practice of going to the City Hall on the elevated, but soon gave up that for the more luxurious automobile, which no one grudges him, only we do not like the bunk.

"The City of New York owned its streets before the Hylan Administration and it also owned its parks before this unhappy event, and we therefore object to Hylan streets and Hylan parks. There were also band concerts in these parks before our bunkum Mayor was elected, so we object to Hylan band concerts, as though he were the creator of all things.

After referring to the Ward's Island fire and the west side New York Central trains problem, Mr. Price continued:

"The schools, which should be the last thing touched by politicians (and should now be touched by them at all), have been a seething mass of politics. Serious attempt has been made to break down the merit system in the appointment of teachers and the appointment of higher officials in the system."

Mr. Price then attacked the use of the city broadcasting station used by the Mayor, "where slightly either he or one of his underlings can more effectively broadcast the slander and misstatements." He then spoke of the rent question and of the Board of Estimate hearings, where, he said, citizens are "received like subjects of a conquered province."

"Much has been seen in the press the last few days apropos of Senator Wadsworth's statement and dictum that the Republican Party will go it alone in the next Mayoralty election and nominate candidates of its own," he continued.

"Chairman Koenig started to prove an alibi for their action for next year about ten days ago, virtually abdicating any effort to defeat Hylanism for next year, and it looks very much as though the Senator agrees with his position. I would say, however, there are thousands of Republicans in the City of New York that will not agree to see Senator Wadsworth fill the role of Tom Platt when he turned the City of New York over to the tender mercies of Van Wyck by the nomination of Benjamin F. Tracy.

"Furthermore, we now have our Home Rule act in force in the City of New York and I seriously doubt whether the Republicans of this city will abdicate their powers over municipal affairs at the dictation of up-State Republican leaders. But there are also other allies to be found in this great City of New York, and we will take them where we find them."

In conclusion Mr. Price said:

"It is my sincere belief that a ticket for Mayor and other members of the Board of Estimate will be nominated that will so appeal to the civic pride of New Yorkers that the blight which has been put on our city for the last seven years will be removed next November.

Vincent Gilroy, four years ago the Fusion candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, followed Mr. Price. He warned against making "any man" the target of the Fusion movement in prospect.

"What I mean," he said, "is this: Suppose we came outsas an anti-Hylan organization and Mayor Hylan for some reason should be eliminated from the campaign next year—where would that leave us?"

Mr. Gilroy, who later became the sponsor for a resolution under which Chairman Price was authorized to appoint a committee composed of ten members to prepare a plan or organization, also served notice on the Republicans that any attempt on the part of up-State bosses to interfere in the city election next year would be resented by the voters.

Samuel F. Hyman, who spoke next, proposed that a call be issued setting forth the principles of the fusion fighters and inviting citizens throughout the community to join.

Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw said that in her opinion it would be unfortunate to call the new movement a fusion movement and better to have it appear merely as an independent movement.

Thomas Gilleran of the Bronx also spoke. When Hearst ran for Mayor in 1905, Mr. Gilleran was on his ticket as candidate for Controller. He was active in the fusion movement four years ago. He said there was as much discontent within the Democratic organizations in this city with the present administration that in organization entered it would be referred to as sedition. He added that in his opinion Senator Wadsworth had a perfect right to be highly indignant with the local Republican machines as

HULBERT SUES CRAIG FOR UNPAID SALARY

Also Seeks Writ Requiring Controller to Restore His Name to City Payroll.

ENGAGES PRIVATE COUNSEL

Plaintiff Says His Membership on State Commission Does Not Invalidate Municipal Job.

Murray Hulbert, who in the opinion of Controller Craig invalidated his title to the Presidency of the Board of Aldermen last Spring by accepting appointment to membership in a State commission, has begun legal proceedings to compel the Controller to pay to him $1,250 as his October salary and to restore his name to the city payroll.

Mr. Hulbert's attorney, Charles S. Tuttle, of the law firm of Davies, Auerbach & Cornell of 34 Nassau Street, served upon the Controller late yesterday a petition and notice of motion for a peremptory order of mandamus, which is made returnable for argument before Justice Joseph Proskauer on Monday, Dec. 1, in Special Term, Part I, Supreme Court. Under the proceedings the Controller is obliged to file answering papers and affidavits on or before Nov. 26.

Controller Craig canceled Mr. Hulbert's October salary check after it had been made out, on the ground that the President of the Board of Aldermen automatically had vacated his city office by becoming, under Governor Smith's appointment, a member of the Finger Lakes State Parks Commission. In support of his contention the Controller cited the provisions of Section 1,549 of the City Charter.

Mr. Hulbert referred all questioners to Mr. Tuttle, who said concerning the proceedings instituted:

"After a thorough study of the facts and the law, we entertain no doubt that a member of the Finger Lakes State Parks Commission holds a local office, and that he is not an officer of the State within the meaning of section 1,549 of the City Charter, preventing an officer of the city from also holding an office of the State. Section 2 of the Public Officers law distinguishes a State officer from a local officer, by defining the latter as 'every officer limited in the execution of his official functions to a portion only of the State.' The statute creating the Finger Lakes State Parks Commission limits the commission's official functions to the control and management of parks in the Finger Lake region in the central part of the State. Of these parks, the principal are the Enfield Falls Park of about 387 acres and the Watkins Glen Reservation of about 104 acres. Altogether they are less than the area of an average rural township.

"It would be hard to imagine an office more strictly local in its functions. As said by the present Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals in People ex rel. Werner vs. Prendergast, 206 N. Y. 405, the test of a local office is not whether the officer is the servant or agent of the locality, but whether the office was created for the locality, 'unconnected with any other territory.'

"This office carries no compensation. Undoubtedly it was bestowed upon Mr. Hulbert because he spent his boyhood and obtained his education in this region and has always had a warm affection for it. His appointment to the position last April was a public act of the Governor, with which the City Administration and the community were entirely familiar, and for seven months thereafter he has continued to act as President of the Board of Aldermen without challenge from any one. The act of the Controller in now declaring vacant the Presidency of the Board of Aldermen is merely a belated and unwarranted attempt by one man to undo the work of the electorate, who by over 250,000 elected Mr. Hulbert to his present office."

The petition filed with the notice of motion declares that the petitioner (Mr. Hulbert) has not felt it necessary or appropriate to the petition to answer or refute any of the "personal aspersions" contained in Controller Craig's letter explaining his action. "As your petitioner is advised," the petition states, "these aspersions have no relevancy except to show that Controller Charles L. Craig is actuated entirely by personal malice."

It is also pointed out in the petition that since the Controller canceled Mr. Hulbert's salary check, Mr. Craig has paid the salaries of clerks in Mr. Hulbert's office and has recognized also the signature of Mr. Hulbert as Aldermanic President in certification of other office papers. The document also sets forth that it is well known to the fact that since Mr. Hulbert was appointed to the Parks Commission last April many matters have been adopted by the Board of Estimate and the Municipal Assembly which could not have been done without Mr. Hulbert's three votes.

Mr. Hulbert's salary as President of the Board of Aldermen is $15,000 a year. His counsel, Mr. Tuttle, last year won a mandamus action against the city in behalf of his client, the College of the City of New York, after Mayor Hylan and his colleagues had undertaken to eliminate from the park budget a large sum of money for maintenance of that educational institution. The Court held that the appropriation was mandatory.

SHAW MAKES DEBUT ON RADIO TO 4,000,000

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—George Bernard Shaw made his first appearance tonight as a broadcaster. He went down to a London radio station and, shutting himself up in a room with an operator, read his play "Flaherty, V. C." to an audience that probably numbered 4,000,000 people.

His reading was broadcast all over England, Scotland and Wales and to the Continent. It went also to Southern Ireland, but the British broadcasting company made no arrangements to send it to Ulster.

Mr. Shaw thoroughly enjoyed himself. He sat before a little table with a transmitter upon it. His book was in his hands and this alone prevented him from breaking out into gestures.

His fans' worked as he passed from the English Colonel to the Irish soldier and from the old peasant woman back again, and he let himself go as he crooned a few words of an Irish ballad or imitated Flaherty's mother's weeping. Yet in spite of quick changes of pronunciation and tone his voice carried extraordinarily well, and what seemed strangest to those listening in was the absence of applause or pause in reading as they saw their companions break into broad smiles at Mr. Shaw's shrewd hits.

Mr. Shaw began by explaining that he was about to show exactly what happened when he read a new play to actors and then he uttered a warning as to the proper pronunciation of the title of his play. It was not O'Flaherty, he said, but Flaherty, and as he shouted his version of it he remarked genially: "Got it? That's all right!"

Then he gave a brief explanation of the scene where the action of the play takes place and described how the lads bars of "God Save the King" and three cheers are heard as the curtain goes up.

He sang a snatch of "Tipperary" with great gusto and settled down to the opening dialogue between the General and Flaherty. The contrast between the English accent and the Irish brogue was carefully marked, and then when Mrs. Flaherty was introduced—the old woman who thought her C. O. C. son was fighting against the English—the way in which Mr. Shaw made her blarney the General and then turn and rend her son made the difficulty of applauding the hidden reader absolutely exasperating to the audience.

So the play progressed to the finish, which came with a distinctly audible sigh of relief as Mr. Shaw exclaimed: "The play is over. I hope I have not bored you."

CAN'T LABEL MINDS, EXPERTS DECLARE

Russell Sage Foundation Reports on 5-Year Study of Employment Agencies.

A great deal of quackery and pseudo science is being exercised in the technique of selecting applicants for employment, and the greater part of the experimentation, scientific and otherwise, that has been carried on in regard to the selection of workers is still comparable to the "home remedies" stage of medicine and surgery, according to an exhaustive report on "Public Employment Offices, Their Purpose, Structure and Methods," which has just been issued by the Russell Sage Foundation.

The value of the judgment regarding an applicant for work which is based on the look in his eye, the condition of his hands, or the condition of his collar, is minimized in the report, as also is the practice of arbitrary classifying applicants for employment according to any standard list of types of personalities.

"No system or method of character analysis has yet produced results which justify its adoption or even suggest its trial in a public employment office," says the statement. "This is not to be taken as decrying research in the field, but as a warning against depending too much upon any schemes for rating individuals with appeal to the imagination because of the greatness of the need for something of the kind, rather than because of the demonstrated success.

"The human mind has been grouped by some persons interested in employment questions into types that are presumably mutually exclusive as follows: The executive type, the sales type, the promotion type, the accounting type, the clerical type, the selling type, the mechanical type, and so on. These adjectives do describe attributes of the mind, but that people can so tagged and labeled fairly is doubtful. The temptation to label people is very great, but the science and art of successfully doing it have not as yet been discovered."

The report, which is based on a five-year study extending into almost every State in the Union and into Canada and England, was prepared by Shelby M. Harrison, director of the Department of Surveys and Exhibits of the Russell Sage Foundation, in collaboration with Miss La Dame, Bradley Buell, Leslie E. Woodcock and Frederick A. King, all of whom have been closely identified with public and private employment work.

OTTINGER TO DEMAND VOTING MACHINES HERE

New Attorney General Announces Program to Republican County Committee.

Speaking before the Republican County Committee of New York at Bryant Hall last night, Albert Ottinger, Attorney General-elect, said that as soon as he was in office at Albany next January he would begin to force the installation of voting machines in New York City. The politicians who made up the audience were quick to see the application of Mr. Ottinger's remarks and they were greeted with prolonged applause.

The declaration of the Republican Attorney General-elect was generally taken as the promise of a body blow at Tammany in the next municipal election. It was regarded as another move in working out the policy of "no fusion" for Republicans in the next Mayoralty contest recently enunciated by Senator Wadsworth and State Chairman Morris.

Attorney General Ottinger's function will be to bring a court action to compel the Board of Estimate to furnish the machines.

The question of installing voting machines in New York City has been up at least once before the Board of Estimate. The law provided that the complete installation was to be spread over a period of three years, and this would have been the last of the three years. But the board did not accept the bids that were made for a portion of the machines and nothing further has been done.

"When I get to Albany," said Mr. Ottinger, "I propose to ascertain whether this mandatory law calling for their installation can be ignored or whether it can be enforced."

This was the first item in his program of administration that Mr. Ottinger announced. He then proceeded to enumerate others, among which were the fight for one-dollar gas, cheaper telephone rates and the prosecution of "bucketing" in the stock market under the Martin act.

No direct action was taken on the fusion issue in the County Committee meeting, the first that has been held since the election and the first since the recent "no-fusion" pronouncement. However, there was indirect evidence that the "go-it-alone" ukase of the State leaders has had some effect.

The resolution was read from the floor by Mr. Spencer and evoked considerable applause. It was not acted upon in the meeting, however, since the rules require all resolutions to be referred to the Committee on Resolutions for action.

The resolution follows:

"Whereas the experience of recent years indicates that the adoption of non-partisan coalition or fusion principles in the selection of Republican candidates has been detrimental to the interests of the party and destructive of party loyalty it is

"Resolved, That the officers of other representatives of this committee are directed to take no part in negotiations or conferences for the purpose of fusion or coalition unless it be first established that all candidates of such fusion or coalition shall be true Republicans."

Chairman Samuel S. Koenig, in a short speech, said that all preliminary preparations had been made for the coming Mayoralty campaign and that within ten days he would have all the committees appointed that had been provided for and then the campaign would be ready to get under way.

Former Senator Martin Saxe offered a resolution that the Chairman of the New York County Committee be empowered to form a committee to invite the Republican organizations of other counties in New York City to join in preparations for a united fight. This resolution was also referred to committee.

LABOR HEARS DRAIN URGE WORLD COURT

ASIATIC EXCLUSION UPHELD

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 20.—The convention of the American Federation of Labor was addressed this afternoon by General James A. Drain, Commander of the American Legion, who received a warm welcome. He declared the Legion favored a permanent tribunal for the settlement of disputes between nations, but until such a court was established the organization approved of a navy equal to any in the world, an army capable of rapid expansion to war needs, air, land and sea reserves of adequate strength and preparedness in industry.

The Legion, he stated, would press Congress for a law which would, in time of war, conscript finance as well as the youth of the land. He described the Legion's program for taking care of 5,000 orphans of Legion members and announced that the organization favored the child labor amendment.

President Coolidge, he said, had consented to become Honorary President of the committee which will try to collect $5,000,000 to forward the Legion's program for disabled veterans.

A resolution endorsing the Legion's program for the disabled will be acted on by the delegates.

Whatever pacifist strength there may be in the convention will be displayed when a resolution endorsing citizens' military training camps is reported. Twenty International union officers have signed this resolution, which declares that the camps are deserving of the support of the American laboring man. It authorizes the Executive Council to nominate three civilian aids to the Secretary of War and one civilian aid in each of the forty-eight States to cooperate with the Government in recruiting candidates for these camps.

Japanese Exclusion Upheld.

Strenuous opposition to any modification of the Japanese exclusion law was enunciated in a resolution that was passed unanimously by the convention.

"We are unalterably opposed to substitute exclusion by treaty for exclusion by law," the resolution said. "We utter this protest with an earnest desire to maintain the most friendly relations with the Japanese working people and with the profound conviction that mutual respect can be best maintained if we insist that Japan recognize our right to control immigration into this country by domestic legislation.

"Certain American organizations, evidently without any information of the basic facts which caused Congregational action, are encouraging Japan in the mistaken belief that American public sentiment did not support Congress in excluding by law all immigrants who are ineligible to citizenship in our country."

The convention approved the constitutional amendment proposed by Senator Norris of Nebraska providing that the terms of President and Vice President end on the third Monday in January and that the terms of Senators and Representatives end on the first Monday in January, following the election.

Elisabeth Christman, President of the Women's Trade Union League, asked for aid in organizing 600,000 teachers. She explained that in 1920 there were 3,156,650 women eligible for membership in unions. These included 94,000 cigarmakers, 22,500 electrical workers, 115,000 restaurant employes and 600,000 teachers.

The Mexican Confederation of Labor was asked to assist in organizing railway maintenance of way employes of that nationality in the United States.

The legislative committee's report condemned the principle of the sales tax; called for the abolition of convict labor; asked for the prohibition, through Federal legislation, of the transportation of workers to communities in which strikes were in progress; abolition of tax-exempt securities; continuance of the support of farm relief measures and reclassification of Federal employes along the lines proposed in the bill of Senator Stanfield of Oregon.

All these suggestions were adopted.

Plea for Soviet Resented.

Delegates today criticized the suggestion made yesterday by the British fraternal delegates that friendly relations be established with Soviet Russia.

"The most unfortunate diplomatic blunder in a long time," was the way Chester Wright, chief of the Federation News Service, expressed the sentiments of many of the delegates in the convention daily publication. Only the fact that A. B. Swales, President of the British Trades Union Congress, and C. T. Cramp, Chairman of the British Labor Party Executive, are guests of the convention has prevented impetuous delegates from replying to their pleas for Russia on the floor of the convention. Reference to their statements may be made in speeches when a resolution on Soviet Russia is reported in a few days by the Resolutions Committee.

"The British fraternal delegates talked much of the Labor Party, and it was notable that in their addresses they seemed to assign to it the major role in what they termed the labor movement," said Mr. Wright.

There was bitter resentment among many delegates against the introduction and manner of treatment of the Russian question by the British delegates. The warmth displayed toward Bolshevism by Messrs. Swales and Cramp was regarded by many as a most deplorable mistake in international labor relationships. The attitude of the Federation toward Communists within the organization was indicated at last year's Portland convention, when William Dunne, a Communist, was unseated.

That the abhorrence in which the federation holds Moscow is shared by the Mexican Confederation of Labor, now in session at Juarez, across the Rio Grande, was made evident today by the unseating of a Communist delegate, Alfonso F. Soria of Michoacan. Soria was ejected after a long debate in which the officers of the Mexican organizations denounced Bolshevism. Only a handful of the 1,000 delegates voted to have Soria remain.

Political Fight Feared.

The "post mortem" on the last election will be held tomorrow when the Executive Council reports. It is understood that the report will reiterate the Federation's old non-partisan policy of "rewarding your friends and punishing your enemies."

Efforts will be made to have the report adopted unanimously and with as little debate as possible. The utmost care has been taken so to frame it that it will not afford to any delegate an opportunity for criticism and thus develop a conflict.

It is known that Major Berry, head of the Pressmen's Union, is prepared to lead an attack on the council's endorsement of La Follette if it should be necessary to do so. He will be followed by John L. Lewis, President of the miners' organization, and W. D. Hutcheson, head of the carpenters' union.

The convention adopted today a resolution favoring the Kelly-Edge bill calling for a wage increase for employes in the postal service and C. L. Baine, Chairman of the Committee on Legislation, predicted that the bill would be passed at the coming session of Congress over President Coolidge's veto.

The convention will probably adjourn next Wednesday, after which many of the delegates will go to Mexico City for the inauguration of President Calles.

Mexicans Oust Bolsheviki.

Special to The New York Times.

JUAREZ, Mexico, Nov. 20.—In ousting a Communist delegate today, the Mexican Confederation of Labor adopted a resolution opposing interference by Moscow in the affairs of the Mexican labor movement. The resolution read in part as follows:

"The Communist Party of Russia has absolutely no right to establish in Mexico a branch of that party, nor attempt to direct the activities of the Mexican labor movement."

MRS. HARDING NOW FAILING RAPIDLY

Bulletin States Pulse Is Very Weak—Message from Coolidges Read to Her.

MARION, Ohio, Nov. 20.—Mrs. Harding's condition has changed "markedly" since 6 o'clock, a bulletin issued at 9 o'clock tonight by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, her physician, said.

The bulletin read:

"Mrs. Harding's condition is changed markedly since 6 o'clock tonight. She is failing rapidly. Her pulse is very weak and her breathing labored."

Mrs. Harding received a telegram from President and Mrs. Coolidge this morning. The message was read to her by George B. Christian Jr., who was President Harding's Secretary. It follows:

"Mrs. Coolidge and I send affectionate regards. You are constantly in our thoughts and we anxiously await word of your continued improvement."

Early this morning Mrs. Harding was in a semi-comatose state. Dr. Sawyer said, however, said that her heart action was fair.

The White House is keeping in constant touch with Dr. Sawyer and several inquiries were received last night from Washington concerning Mrs. Harding's condition.

SEES OFFENSE TO JAPAN.

Dr. Latane Opposes Naval Manoeuvres in Hawaii.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20.—Characterizing the contemplated fleet manoeuvres by the navy in Hawaiian waters next Spring as an unfortunate move more than likely to produce a delicate situation in Japan, Dr. John H. Latane, professor of American History at Johns Hopkins University, today said in addressing the Engineers' Club that the plan was "comparable to the move made by President Roosevelt in 1908, when the American fleet was sent around the world. Effort had been made to settle the school controversy involving the Japanese in California, but Japan was not satisfied. The fleet was sent out to demonstrate to Japan what we could do."

"It was an attempt to call Japan's bluff, but it was a risky and ticklish demonstration," he said, and added:

"Even if all the militaristic outcry that has been reported from Japan is no more than a scheme to get greater appropriations for the Japanese Navy, the demonstration by the American Navy will stimulate the building plans of the Japanese and will have the effect of making them increase their fleet, an effort which we do not want to produce.

"If the United States were a member of the League of Nations I should feel easier about the situation. For then, should Japan attack us, she would be subject to an economic boycott which she could not afford to draw upon herself. So long as we are not members of the League the rest of the nations of the world would remain neutral as long as they could.

"I am not surprised that Secretary Hughes wants to retire. Senator Borah is the real reason. Borah has been hammering at Hughes on the Russian recognition question, and I believe there are indications that his efforts are beginning to embarrass the Government."

REPORT PROGRESS IN DRIVE.

Business Men's Council Aiding Jewish Charities Has a Smoker.

The Business Men's Council of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies gave a beefsteak dinner and smoker last night at the Hotel Biltmore, at which reports were made of the progress in the Federation drive. The guest of honor was Colonel H. A. Guinsburg, Treasurer of the Federation.

Percy S. Straus presided at the dinner, which was attended by about 300 volunteer workers in the campaign begun Oct. 28 to raise the $1,250,000 deficit in the Federation's current budget of $3,650,000. Colonel Guinsburg said that the Federation had dispensed $22,000,000 since its founding seven years ago.

There was a vaudeville program, directed by Murray Goodman, with George Jessel as master of ceremonies.

DAWES PLAN WORKS, YOUNG DECLARES

Germany Has Practically Met the 1,000,000,000 Gold Mark Payment Due Aug. 31, 1925.

FINDS AMPLE COOPERATION

Former Reparations Agent Reports Industrial Revival in Germany —Confidence Returning.

Owen D. Young, who was associated with General Charles G. Dawes in drawing the Dawes plan of reparations, and who, until recently, has acted as Agent of Reparations, with headquarters in Berlin, returned home yesterday aboard the White Star liner Olympic, and expressed surprise at the simplicity of the working of the Dawes plan. He also disclosed, in an interview with newspaper men, that Germany had already practically wiped out her reparations obligations due on Aug. 31, 1925.

Of the 1,000,000,000 gold marks payment due on that date, according to Mr. Young, he collected 140,000,000 gold marks before the plan was actually in full operation. He obtained that amount from the loan to Germany. An additional 800,000,000 gold marks is deposited in the Reichsbank, leaving uncollected 60,000,000 gold marks. The balance due on the Aug. 31, 1925, instalment, according to Mr. Young, will be more than taken care of when the expenses of the occupational armies still in the Ruhr and the Rhineland are defrayed.

Plan Working Smoothly.

"Two things have surprised me and every one else who has come in contact with the installation of the plan," said Mr. Young. "First, the ease with which the plan was installed, and, second, the simplicity of its working and the small force required to operate it.

"I found everywhere in Germany, both in public life and in private business, a desire to cooperate in the installation of the plan. The French and Belgian representatives in the Ruhr were equally helpful in aiding in the installation of the plan, and so were the British, but they had less to do.

Mr. Young spoke in the most complimentary manner of S. Parker Gilbert, who succeeded him as Agent General of Reparations. He said:

"Mr. Gilbert and his associates made a most profound impression in Paris and Berlin. I have every confidence they will administer this plan in an excellent manner."

Discussing the technical side of the plan, Mr. Young said:

"The matter of debentures or first mortgages on German industries and railways worked out smoothly. We had every cooperation to this end. I gathered in $2,500,000,000 worth of debentures or first mortgages on German railways, and $1,250,000,000 on industrial debentures.

Of the industrial revival in Germany Mr. Young had this to say:

"There has been the greatest improvement in the spirit of the people of Germany, and a marked reduction in unemployment. Confidence in industrial activity is chiefly due to a returning spirit of confidence."

Finds German Morale Improved.

Mr. Young said he believed that the industrial revival in Germany was affected little if any by talk of a combine of French and German industrials. He said that the main thing was the "improvement in the morale of the German people."

On the political situation in Germany, Mr. Young commented as follows:

"There is a drift on the part of the Nationalists and the Communists to the Central Party. This party is essentially democratic in spirit and liberal in its program. As an illustration of the recognition on the part of the German people that their strong economic restoration depends upon the Dawes plan, the Nationalists did not have the courage even to vote when the bill sanctioning the plan came up for consideration."

Asked what the attitude of France toward Germany might be under the Herriot Ministry, he replied:

"I will say that M. Herriot is convinced that the greatest security of France lies in the establishment of more complete democracy within Germany. The evacuation of the Ruhr by the French and the Belgians is being carried on in the finest spirit and is going a long way to healing, in some degree, the bad feeling caused by the occupation."

Mr. Young further said that the industrialists of the Ruhr were very happy at having their industries turned back to them.

"A job at home," Mr. Young explained, was what caused him to relinquish the post of Agent General of Reparations. He is Chairman of the Board of the General Electric Company, also Chairman of the Radio Corporation of America.

Mr. Young was accompanied by Mrs. Young. From the pier he went directly to his office, 120 Broadway, and Mrs. Young to their home at 830 Park Avenue.

What Germany Must Pay.

Just before leaving the ship Mr. Young was asked the amount of reparations Germany would have to pay on Aug. 31, 1926. He explained that the figures frequently had been published, and that he believed they were approximately 1,220,000,000 gold marks.

Regarding the total amount Germany is expected to pay as reparations, he said:

"That's never been settled, and I guess it will be that way until it is settled."

In the party with Mr. Young were Rufus Dawes, brother of Vice President-elect Dawes; H. M. Robinson, President of the First National Bank of Los Angeles, who was in charge of the organization of the bank handling the collection and disbursement of funds under the Dawes plan, and George P. Auld, all associated with Mr. Young in his reparations work. Mrs. Dawes, Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Auld accompanied their husbands.

The Homeric brought 422 passengers, among them Mr. and Mrs. Wallace B. Parnell and Miss Violet Parnell. Mr. Parnell returned from England, where he went recently on a business mission for the Boyes & Veeder Company, Inc., of Long Island City.

Another passenger on the Homeric was Mrs. William Brown Meloney, editor of The Delineator. She was decorated by Premier Herriot of France with the French Medal for State Service in recognition of her pioneer work in behalf of better homes in the United States and the impetus it has given to similar activities abroad. Mrs. Meloney is a member of the Advisory Council of Better Homes in America.

CHINESE DAWES PLAN NOT KNOWN TO SZE

Peking Representatives at Geneva, However, Are in Favor of a Bankers' Conference.

GENEVA, Nov. 20 (Associated Press).—Following reports from New York that a so-called Dawes plan for China was under consideration, Alfred Sze, Chinese Minister to the United States, who is here attending the International Opium Conference, said today he had had no official conversations with the American State Department regarding any such plan.

Minister Sze said he was not in a position to discuss the reported project in any way, nor the report that the Chinese Foreign Minister, C. T. Wang, is planning to invite representatives of the leading powers to a conference in Peking on China's financial status.

In Chinese circles here the impression was given that it would be deemed particularly unfortunate if any project touching the reorganization of China's finances, with the help of foreign diplomats or financiers, should become known as another Dawes plan. It was affirmed categorically that such an appellation would condemn it in advance to failure because the impression would be created that China, like Germany, was viewed as a vanquished power requiring international control in order to meet the payment of reparations.

Investigation here shows that the Chinese are undoubtedly in favor of a meeting of international bankers to take up the question of refunding the Chinese loans on which the interest has long since been defaulted. The Chinese are said to desire to straighten up such matters as soon as possible. They estimate that the total Chinese debt is a little over $50,000,000, but explain that the bulk of this is internal.

The estimate of the total indebtedness is based on $1.25 per capita of the Chinese population, which is approximately 436,000,000 people.

The Chinese are said to favor holding the bankers' conference before the proposed international conference authorized by the Washington agreement to discuss the Chinese tariff situation, as it is believed the bankers could turn over valuable information to the tariff conference, which will be held when ratification by the powers makes it possible.

APACHE OFF FOR MIAMI.

Many Governors to Greet Liner Inaugurating Direct Service.

The Clyde liner Apache sailed yesterday with 203 passengers for Miami, Fla., where the steamship will be greeted on Sunday morning by a delegation including fifteen Governors, two Governors-elect and the Governors of two United States possessions. The reception will be in honor of the first trip of the Apache, inaugurating direct passenger service between New York and Miami.

Mr. Treadway's proposal is accepted as indicating a determination on the part of conservative Republicans in Congress to break off all relations with the insurgents.

Senator Smoot has urged that Senator La Follette and his associates be barred from Republican conferences and that they be ignored in the committee assignments and other perquisites that attach to membership in the Republican organization. It is such a course that will be urged upon the Republican House leadership by Representative Treadway.

"I feel that it is time for political house cleaning and that members who did not advocate the election of President Coolidge should not be recognized in party councils," Mr. Treadway declared.

"I shall advocate grouping these men as part of the minority of the House and giving committee assignments accordingly. Any members who did not support the Republican platform and ticket at the last election, no matter under what title elected, are not entitled to places where they can block the will of the people so emphatically expressed at the last election. We have suffered long enough from their committee influence and they should no longer have controlling places."

Rosenwald Gives $25,000 to Museum

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—Julius Rosenwald, Chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck & Co., today presented to the Field Museum of Natural History a trust fund of $25,000 as a birthday gift to Edward E. Ayer, Field Museum Trustee and its first President, on his eighty-third birthday. Mr. Rosenwald placed no restrictions on the manner in which the money might be used.

NELSON IN DEFIANT MOOD

Says La Follette Group Will Continue Fight, Though Committee Places Are Threatened.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The possibility of some concerted action by Republicans to read out of the party in the newly elected Congress the insurgent group, a movement which has been privately favored by some members, became more sharply focused today with open declarations on the question from members of both groups.

Representative Treadway, Republican of Massachusetts, declared after a visit to the White House that he favored eliminating the insurgents from important Republican committee assignments in organising the new Congress which will meet, unless called in special session, a year from next month.

Saying that he thought the Republicans "would be too wise" to attempt such an action, Representative Nelson of Wisconsin, leader of the insurgents, later asserted that his group neither feared expulsion from the Republican ranks "nor did they care about it or welcome it."

The Progressives, he said, expect to continue their fight for Progressive legislation and intend to do all in their power to bring this country back to a "normal moral basis."

In the future, as in the past, the Wisconsin member added, the Progressives propose to support "such legislation as they believe to be in the best interests of the country."

In connection with the discussion, some Republican members who privately have expressed the opinion that the insurgents should be expelled from the Republican ranks, have pointed out that several members of the group will hold important places on House committees.

Mr. Nelson is a member of the Rules Committee and Chairman of one of the election committees. Several other committee assignments held by members of the insurgent group include that of Representative Lampert of Wisconsin, Chairman of the Patents Committee; Representative Frear of Wisconsin, on the Ways and Means Committee, and Representative worst of Wisconsin on the Agricultural Committee.

Mr. Treadway took the position that the Republicans who aligned themselves with the La Follette movement should no longer be recognized as members of the party and in the organization of the new House should be treated as representatives of the minority.

Coming on the heels of a like statement made by Senator Smoot of Utah, Mr. Treadway's proposal is accepted as indicating a determination on the part of conservative Republicans in Congress to break off all relations with the insurgents.

Senator Smoot has urged that Senator La Follette and his associates be barred from Republican conferences and that they be ignored in the committee assignments and other perquisites that attach to membership in the Republican organization. It is such a course that will be urged upon the Republican House leadership by Representative Treadway.

"I feel that it is time for political house cleaning and that members who did not advocate the election of President Coolidge should not be recognized in party councils," Mr. Treadway declared.

"I shall advocate grouping these men as part of the minority of the House and giving committee assignments accordingly. Any members who did not support the Republican platform and ticket at the last election, no matter under what title elected, are not entitled to places where they can block the will of the people so emphatically expressed at the last election. We have suffered long enough from their committee influence and they should no longer have controlling places."

KRASSIN SAYS BRITISH LENT REDS $88,000,000

Declares the Bank of England Extended Credit to Soviet—He Hints of Deals With Others.

MOSCOW, Nov. 20 (Associated Press).—Leonid Krassin, who will leave next week for his new post as Soviet Ambassador to France, today told employes of the Commissariat of Foreign Trade that, despite the refusal of the British Government to grant Russia a loan the Bank of England has allowed the Soviet Government credits amounting to $88,000,000.

Ambassador Krassin also said that the Government was carrying on extensive financial operations with other British and American banks. He predicted that next year's foreign trade would amount to approximately 1,000,000,000 gold rubles, even allowing for the non-export of grain. The Soviet Government, he said, would never yield in its policy of retaining a monopoly of foreign trade, no matter how many attempts were made abroad to obtain this control.

Doubt was expressed by the Ambassador that the new Conservative Government in England would accept the Anglo-Russian Treaty in its present form, but he was sure "that they will not tear it up."

The speaker said that the Soviet Government expected soon to begin active direct trade relations with South American countries.

Referring to the United States, he said:

"In spite of America's irreconcilable attitude, which is expressed by the recently reformed organization called the 'Amtorg,' this company has a further agreement with the Commissariat of Foreign Trade. Its chief purpose is to buy cotton, paper and machinery. It is a good indication of how anxious American institutions are to trade with us when it is known that this newly formed company and our Bank for Foreign Trade are favored by Americans with special agreements regarding credits.

"Continuation of trade relations between the two countries undoubtedly will result eventually in the recognition of the Soviet Government by the United States."

DEMAND POWER AT COST.

Farmers to Campaign for Proposed Public Plants.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 20.—The National Grange, representing nearly a million farmers in this country, unanimously adopted a resolution today supporting the proposed Federal Public Service Commission for the development of super-power plants to supply electric power and light at cost to rural communities. In the resolution the Grange says:

"The force of discussion and influence of all our granges will be directed to attaining light and power at cost for all people."

The proposed power plan would be in line with that now in effect in Ontario and other Canadian Provinces where the Government has constructed and operates electric plants, using water power, and supplies electric light and power to citizens at cost.

"Passage of this bill, we believe," adds the resolution, "will open the way for the United States to utilize its potential electric power in a manner similar to the Ontario development."

Grange leaders, newspapers and lecturers will take part in the campaign, a comprehensive plan for which was submitted to the convention by a committee named by the National Grange in Pittsburgh last year. The committee consisted of A. B. Cook of Michigan, H. N. Sawyer of New Hampshire and George A. Palmiter of Oregon.

In another resolution, also unanimously adopted, the Grange "unalterably opposes any change in the new Immigration law which will let down the bars on the yellow race."

The exclusion from the United States of Japanese and Chinese, the resolution states, "is essential to the preservation of the American farm home and its traditions to the white race, and to a Christian civilization. The National Grange has never wavered in its position against the admission of the yellow race to this country. We fully reiterate our stand, and are absolutely and unqualifiedly opposed to any reopening or changing of the ineligible alien clause in the recently passed Federal Immigration law."

ZR-3 Flight Postponed.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Nov. 20.—Another warning of unfavorable flying conditions tonight prompted officials at the naval air station to again defer the initial American test flight of the German-built dirigible ZR-3 until Saturday morning. It was scheduled for tomorrow.

HOOVER WILL STAY; WILBUR TO RETIRE

TO COMPLETE HIS PROGRAM

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Two definite facts with regard to President Coolidge's Cabinet became known today in the authentic statements that Herbert Hoover will remain as Secretary of Commerce and Curtis D. Wilbur will retire as Secretary of the Navy.

Yielding to the President's earnest request, Secretary Hoover has decided to continue in the Cabinet and it is understood that he has informed Mr. Coolidge of his decision.

Members of the Naval Committees of Congress are responsible for a report that Secretary Wilbur will vacate his post early in the new Administration to take a place on the Federal bench.

Secretary Hoover's decision to stay in the official family of the new Administration sets at rest the gossip current since the election that he was one of those who might be expected to leave the Cabinet in March. It also puts an end to rumors of his looking with favor upon several business offers.

When Mr. Hoover entered the Cabinet of President Harding it was with the understanding that he would have a free hand in reorganizing the Department of Commerce to make it more responsive to the needs of the Government and of the business world. Much of this program has already been made effective and the decision of Mr. Hoover to remain in the Cabinet will enable him to carry forward that work.

Secretary Wilbur retired from the office of Chief Justice of California to fill the vacancy in the Cabinet created by the retirement of Edwin Denby, who resigned as a result of the controversy over oil leases. His appointment was the first Cabinet selection made by President Coolidge on his own account.

It is understood that although Mr. Wilbur has enjoyed his service at the head of the Navy Department and has a predilection for a judicial career, and that in the comparatively near future he will be tendered such an appointment, Mr. Wilbur has no intention of retiring, however, until Congress has completed the naval budget for the next fiscal year.

So far as can be learned, there have been no differences of opinion between the President and the Secretary of the Navy over questions of naval policy.

SMUTS PUZZLES POLICE.

Inquiry Into Shooting of May Yohe's Husband Goes On in Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—Not satisfied that Captain John A. Smuts shot himself accidentally, despite his statements and those of his wife, the former May Yohe, the police continued today their investigation of what happened yesterday in the rooming house which the Smuts have been occupying since coming to this city two weeks ago.

Captain Smuts refused to change his story that he wounded himself accidentally while cleaning his revolver. The police contend it would have been difficult for him to have fired the shot.

"The note which he left, reading 'I am going to shoot myself because I have been unkind to my wife,' he admitted at Boston City Hospital was written after the shooting, so that no one would have any suspicion against his wife."

Captain Smuts has a fair chance of recovery.

is reasonable hope that an entente may become realisable as a substitute for the tripartite agreement signed at Versailles in July, 1919.

They say they would rather have a limited association of nations resolute to recognize and maintain certain obligations than a more extensive association in a wider formula with less sincerity and more possibility of infringement.

PARIS, Nov. 20 (Associated Press.)—The French delegates to the League of Nations Council meeting in Rome next month will concur in Great Britain's request for postponement by the Council of discussion of preparations for the proposed conference for the reduction of armaments, an official spokesman for the Foreign Office said today.

Premier Boncour and the other French delegates who are going to Rome have informed the Government that they have a plan ready to present to the Council, but feel they would like more time to study and improve it, and thus they welcome the British suggestion for postponement.

Chamberlain Envoy to League.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Austen Chamberlain, the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, will be Great Britain's chief and probably only delegate to the Council of the League of Nations, which meets in Rome on Dec. 8. The Foreign Office announces Mr. Chamberlain's attendance at the council meeting in his official capacity sets a precedent which indicates the importance the Government attaches to this meeting, though the Geneva Protocol by its own wish is not discussed.

The decision to postpone discussion of the Protocol at Rome is endorsed by The London Times, which calls it prudent, in view of lack of time to consult the Dominions. The Times goes on to regret the weakness of the delegation sent by the Labor Government to Geneva in September.

"It might easily be discovered, should the Protocol ever be put into practice, that there is a sharp divergence of interpretation," it says, "but the fact remains that in the concentrated negotiation of five weeks French diplomacy appeared to gain what it had sought in vain for five years previously. Great Britain came into a system of alliances against any possible aggressor. Not only was her help assured on the north-eastern frontier of France but, should any act of aggression be perpetrated against any of her friends or allies in Central Europe, Great Britain would also become involved and would be bound loyally and effectively to support the victim.

"The hopes thus roused in Paris are well understood by the present Government. Austen Chamberlain has accordingly assured the Government of M. Herriot that if the processes devised in the Protocol should be found to be unacceptable to the British commonwealth, public opinion will insist that the interests of France shall be secured in some other way."

Protocol Variously Interpreted.

The Daily News also commends postponement of action on the Protocol until the Dominions have been consulted. It says that despite all explanations of the Protocol by advocates of its ratification "eminent persons in many countries have given varied interpretations of the text according to the different interests and aims of the member States and of political groups within the member States."

The Westminster Gazette takes a similar attitude.

"It would not be in the true interests of the League," it declares, "to enlarge the covenant hastily and prematurely without the cordial assent of all the principal member nations and the moral support of the great American people who, though they will not join as yet, are friendly and sympathetic spectators."

Sir Valentine Chirol asserts in a letter to The London Times that the Protocol played an important part in the recent American general election and quotes in support of his view an appeal signed by President Eliot of Harvard and thirty-three other American citizens, urging the electors to vote the Democratic ticket as the only way of giving expression to their sense of the overwhelming importance of America's participation in the league.

LONDON, Nov. 20 (Associated Press).—An announcement today by Austen Chamberlain that he would attend the League of Nations Council meeting at Rome, Dec. 8, is taken as an indication that the Conservative Government's policy will be one of closest cooperation and support for the League.

It was also announced today that Mr. Chamberlain would be the only British delegate to the Council, thus establishing a new precedent in a Foreign Secretary assuming the duties of a League delegate. Viscount Cecil, who had the last Conservative appointment as a delegate, it is understood will act as Mr. Chamberlain's deputy when the latter is unable to attend the League meetings in person.

HAYASHI URGES CAUTION.

League Too Young to Tackle Disarmament, Japanese Envoy Says.

OXFORD, Nov. 20.—The world should proceed most cautiously in any scheme of disarmament, Baron Hayashi, Japanese Ambassador to Great Britain, told the Oxford International Assembly in an address last night on "The Foreign Policy of Japan."

The League of Nations was yet too young—"the Americans think it still a child"—the Ambassador said, adding: "Let it wait until it reaches full age before it attempts such a great task as disarmament. I think the question of disarmament should be talked over slowly."

Baron Hayashi also advised a waiting policy with regard to the present situation in China, declaring the Powers should not be in a hurry to intervene. On the other hand, China should not be overhasty in terminating extra-territorial rights and concessions, even though she was less independent now than Turkey or Afghanistan.

The Ambassador characterized self-determination as a danger in the Far East, adding that for the present the Philippines, Borneo and Indo-China should remain under foreign protection. He also advocated a waiting policy as regards Siberia, but said Russia had no right to exclude the rest of the world permanently. The population of Siberia was scanty and its resources great, and other peoples should be allowed to participate in opening up these resources.

NO CONFERENCE CALL BY US.

Geneva Report Denied—Coolidge May Summon Naval Meeting Later.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—A denial that President Coolidge intends to convoke a new arms conference to meet in Europe was authorized at the State Department today. Reports from Geneva that this Government was taking steps in the direction of a conference called to meet at The Hague brought hasty contradiction from official sources.

President Coolidge, officials say, has at no time considered it advisable to call a conference to deal with the question of land armaments, being convinced that the time is not ripe for such a meeting. But it was said it still his purpose to call a conference for further limitation of naval armaments, whenever he is convinced that conditions in Europe are such that a conference, which would be held in Washington, would be likely to achieve practical results.

Congress, at its last session, in the Naval Appropriation bill, requested the President to call a conference for limitation of submarines, aircraft and vessels of all types under 10,000 tons. Secretary Wilbur recently stated that it was still the purpose of the President to call such a conference and that the party stood committed to it.

Britain to Build More Cruisers.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—One of the first acts of the Admiralty under the new Government will be to lay down a further number of cruisers, according to The Daily Mail. Recalling that the last Conservative Government decided to build eight and that the Labor Government laid down five of these, the paper says the balance, with further fresh replacements, may be begun in the near future.

foundly affected me as well as all the members of my Government. I deeply regret that such a mishap should have befallen a high official of my army, a man celebrated for his chivalrous character, high courage and great qualities, who has rendered such signal services to the army.

"I communicate my very deepest regrets to all the officers and men of my army. May the Almighty grant his immediate recovery and the best of health."

Zaghlul Pasha, the Premier, issued an appeal to the Egyptian people, declaring that the King and the Government and the whole country have learned of the attack on the Sirdar with the most painful emotion and that he is certain that Parliament at the next meeting will associate itself with general sentiment, not only on account of the high personal qualities of the victim, who enjoyed universal esteem and sympathy, but because of the monstrous nature of the crime and the injury it does to the good name of Egypt. He said that the Government was very seriously occupied with the matter and efforts were being made to trace the criminals.

The Prime Minister then goes on to express his own regrets and those of the Government. He again appealed to the nation to assist the authorities to discover the culprits, in doing which every one would accomplish a patriotic act and greatly serve the country and deserve its lively gratitude. More particularly would they earn the gratitude of "those who know the situation in which their country is," he added, and are jealous for its good repute, who wish it happiness and tranquillity and know that the use of criminal violence is a disservice to the fatherland and betrays its sacred cause.

It is now established that twenty-five shots were fired at the Sirdar, and among the bullets found on the ground is one dumdum, the nose of which had been deliberately filed. It is clear that the organizers of the attempt were determined to make sure of assassinating their victim, for in addition to the gang at the corner there were other gunmen posted along the main road, and as the car drove on the other shots fired at it were not from behind, but from the side. Had the chauffeur, who is an Australian, not kept his head in spite of his wounds and driven at full speed Sir Lee Stack in all probability would have been killed there and then.

This morning the bomb which the Sirdar's assailants had failed to explode when they threw it at his car was carefully blown up. A hole 6 feet across and it was impossible to ascertain whether it was a real bomb or not. It was left lying on the pavement until the authorities had decided what to do with it. The bomb was covered with mattresses. A cordon kept the crowd at a distance and street car service was suspended for some 500 yards. An Egyptian detachment then arrived on the scene and placed detonators under the mattresses which were surrounded by a rampart of sandbags. A great crowd assembled to watch the destruction of the bomb, which was successfully exploded without damage to any of the adjacent houses.

WOMAN'S 28 QUERIES IGNORED BY HYLAN

HUFF DECRIES HYLAN PLAN

Third Avenue President Says 20,000 Bus Trips Daily Would Be Needed on 125th Street.

Developments yesterday in the transit situation include a reply sent by Mayor Hylan through an Assistant Secretary to Dr. Harriet V. B. Peckham of the Woman's Subway Committee of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, in which she addressed twenty-eight questions to him, none of which the Mayor answered, and a statement by President S. W. Huff of the Third Avenue Railway system attacking Hylan's plan to substitute buses for trolley cars.

Mayor Hylan, in a brief note, under date of Nov. 17, which was made public yesterday by Dr. Peckham, dismissed her queries with the comment that they bore a strong resemblance to the "propaganda" issued by Gerhard M. Dahl, Chairman of the B. M. T. board.

The Mayor did not append his signature to his reply to Dr. Peckham. The note was couched in the third person and was signed by Frances W. Rokus, an assistant secretary in the stenographic force of the Mayor's office, working under the direction of John F. Simoit, Mayor Hylan's Secretary.

Dr. Peckham in her original letter to the Mayor asked him if during his term of office he had made "a serious effort to do that which you demanded of the Public Service Commission eleven years ago, build a crosstown subway in accordance with the wishes of the people." She further asked proofs of the Mayor's charge that the B. M. T. had "hired 600 shouters to circulate in the subway crowds and libel the Mayor." She inquired also: "Have you, as Mayor, given the public one mile of subway not authorized before you were first elected Mayor?" and "What are you going to do about the subway situation?"

Dr. Peckham Makes Public a Reply.

As made public by Dr. Peckham, the letter which she received from the Mayor's office follows:

City of New York,
Office of the Mayor,
Nov. 17, 1924.

Dr. Harriett V.B. Peckham, Chairman, Women's Subway Committee, Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, 32 Court St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

My Dear Dr. Peckham:

The Mayor has your letter of Nov. 15, written on behalf of the Women's Subway Committee of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce. The phraseology of the twenty-eight questions bears such a strong resemblance to the propaganda issued by Chairman Gerhard M. Dahl of the B. M. T. that it is the Mayor's opinion these questions were forwarded to him coincident with their dispatch to the public press under the stimulus of the B. M. T. propaganda bureau.

The Mayor is not surprised that Mr. Dahl and the B. M. T. officials, who have resorted to tricking statements out of children and inveigling clergymen to further their propaganda, should now enlist women in their campaign.

He regrets that the ingenuity of the Chairman of the B. M. T. is not exercised in improving the service of his lines as it was in the distribution of over $4,000,000 of the reorganization cost of the B. M. T. among Mr. Dahl and his friends; and that Mr. Dahl failed to show the slightest regard for the safety of the traveling public by his refusal to use some of the millions of profit of the B. M. T. in making the operation safer, so that passengers would not be killed or maimed by elevated trains toppling from the structure into the streets because of rotten guard rails and defective equipment, and other people killed or maimed through tail-end collisions due to the abolition of such modern safety devices as dead man's button. Very truly yours,

FRANCES W. ROKUS,
Assistant Secretary.

Denies the Mayor's Charge.

In her letter of acknowledgment and reply to the note from the Mayor's stenographer Dr. Peckham addressed the Mayor himself and wrote:

"Please accept my thanks for your reply to my letter of Nov. 14, which has just been received through the medium of your secretary, Frances W. Rokus. I take the liberty of calling your attention to a few inaccuracies contained therein and also of expressing my personal resentment of your unworthy insinuations.

"My questions, in spite of your assertion to the contrary, were not dispatched to the public press coincident with their being forwarded to you. On the contrary, my letter to you was sent by registered mail Nov. 14 and was withheld from the press until Nov. 17. I had hoped that you might authorize the Woman's Subway Committee to say to the people of New York that their Mayor had decided to give the earliest possible subway relief, without resort to further tactics of obstruction and delay. I am sorry that we have been disappointed.

"It has never been by privilege to meet Gerhard M. Dahl of the B. M. T. He and I, so far as I know, have no acquaintance in common, unless it be yourself. The women of this city are not interested in your squabble with Mr. Dahl. What is of much greater importance to us than the vituperative arguments which you and he have carried on in public is the fact that we cannot now enter any subway without encountering conditions which shock our sensibilities.

"We are interested in knowing when the Mayor and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment will give that relief which they have the power to grant. We want subways which will take us for a single fare from our homes to our offices—if we are business women—or to a shopping centre if we are housewives.

"In the meantime, permit me to call your attention to the singular fact that, in your haste to reach an illogical conclusion you neglected to answer any one of my well-intentioned questions. I am really seeking information. I still hope that at the meeting of the Woman's Subway Committee, which is to be held in the reception room of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, 32 Court Street, Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, I may be authorized by you to say that you will go forward at once with a constructive program of subway building, leaving all questions of operation and of private or municipal control to be settled during the years that must elapse before the physical work can be completed."

Huff Takes Issue With Hylan.

According to Mr. Huff, the practicability of Mayor Hylan's plan to substitute franchises for the operation of buses on streets where trolley cars now serve the public is based upon a theory which is contradicted by the facts.

Mr. Huff said yesterday that not only would it be impossible to substitute buses to carry the present trolley loads of passengers, but that anything like an approximate bus capacity to achieve that result would congest traffic in important thoroughfares immeasurably beyond any congestion that this city has yet known. He said that 20,000 bus trips would be needed to carry the traffic of the 125th Street line alone. Mr. Huff went on: "The Mayor recently offered this suggestion as a cluster of the Upper Sixth Avenue Association. He remarked that a railway company had asked for bus franchises in exchange for its trolley car franchise and added: 'I am not making any predictions or promising anything, but the Board of Estimate will give due consideration to an application of that kind for we must clear our streets of all obstructions.' You cannot tear down the elevated structures and take up the street car tracks.

"There is no basis upon which the street car companies can give up their franchises except that operation is unprofitable. You cannot throw away a value that is mortgaged for a man's money and such a value is behind every bond of the companies.

"It would be impossible to estimate the value of the city's real estate which composes the public streets. Aside from the franchise, what other value has the company in a street? It costs from $150,000 to $200,000 to build a mile of single track. Where those tracks have been built in accordance with a franchise they are a part of the property which is back of those bonds."

Mr. Huff declared that the Mayor had misinterpreted modern tendencies when he said, in a letter to Mr. Huff on Nov. 12, that buses were certain to replace surface cars sooner or later. "It has been tried in two cities," Mr. Huff said. "Akron and Toledo, and both of them soon decided to go back to the street cars. A committee of the American Electric Railway Association, on which both trolley car and bus operators were represented, after a thorough study of the situation in London, reported that there was nothing to justify belief that buses could be substituted for trolley cars in mass transportation.

"We don't have to go to London, however, to find this out. Our company has just completed a survey showing that 50,000 persons pass one point on 125th Street in our cars every day. Because of the New York Central elevated tracks at Park Avenue, it would be impossible to use double-deck buses on that street.

"There is a limit to the length of a bus, so it would be fair to figure the load of an average single-decker at thirty persons. At this rate, it would take 20,000 buses to move the same passenger traffic on this one street. What that would mean in traffic congestion is obvious."

A similar situation would result on Forty-second Street, Mr. Huff said, if buses were to be employed to move the 45,000 passengers who now travel on its surface cars daily.

SUBWAY BUILDING IS URGED.

Central Trades Council Denounces Transportation Congestion.

The Central Trades and Labor Council voted last night to send a letter to the Transit Commission urging expedition in the construction of new subways. The action followed a discussion in which delegates from the tunnel workers' union pointed out that additional subway construction would provide work for union members as well as relieve the present congestion, which was vigorously denounced.

It was decided to appoint a committee to recommend to Governor Smith the appointment of Bernard Shientag, Industrial Commissioner, as a member of the Court of Appeals. The present group insurance legislation was dissected at the meeting, which was held in Beethoven Hall, 210 Fifth Street, and it was decided to have a more lengthy discussion at a session in January.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 20.—The foundation stone of the new buildings of the University of Brussels was laid today in the presence of the Duke of Brabante.

The erection of the new premises has been made possible by the financial assistance, amounting to nearly 20,000,000 francs, given by the Commission for Relief in Belgium and the Educational Foundation, as a result of the good offices of Herbert Hoover.

The American Relief Commission provided food for the Belgian population during the German occupation, and the 20,000,000 francs was paid out of the balance of the fund.

Today's ceremony was attended by delegates from forty-six universities, including those of London, Oxford, Cambridge and Glasgow, and twenty-two foreign associations. Harvard University was represented by Mr. Philippe, the American Ambassador in Brussels, who graduated from Harvard.

Burgomaster Max of Brussels welcomed the foreign delegates and paid especial tribute to Mr. Hoover. Mr. Philips spoke of the satisfaction with which the United States contributed to the development of science in Belgium. M. Heger made a speech of thanks in behalf of Brussels, and Edgar Rickard, speaking for Mr. Hoover, explained the reasons for America's interest in Belgium. Prince Leopold then performed the ceremony of laying the foundation stone.

In the afternoon an academic session was held, at which King Albert and several Ministers were present, and several foreign representatives spoke in honor of the university. A reception at the Hotel de Ville followed.

NEW CABINET IN VIENNA.

Dr. Ramek Heads Austrian Government Elected by Vote of 91 to 60.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Nov. 20.—The new Government was officially elected during a short formal Parliamentary session this morning, with the same majority as that held by former Chancellor Seipel.

Dr. Rudolf Ramek, the new Chancellor, made a short government declaration this afternoon in which he fully recognized Seipel's program, which is to carry out the reconstruction program. Dr. Ramek also laid stress on improvement of the economic, financial and political situation.

When Minister of War Vaugoin was again nominated a Social Democrat protested with wild cries of "Monarchist!" It was recollected that after the revolution it was Vaugoin who succeeded in rapidly eliminating the Socialistic and Communistic elements from the army.

Foreign Affairs—Heinrich Mataja.

Finance—Jakob Ahrer.

Social Administration—Josef Resch.

The other Cabinet posts will be filled by the same Ministers as served under Chancellor Seipel. The new Ministry has received the warmest congratulations from Dr. Seipel and assurances of the Christian and Social Parties' fullest support.

CATCH FIRST HOLIDAY THIEF

Enright's Shopping Zone Patrol Bags Mail Box Robber.

Patrolling in the new deadline zone last night, Detective William Barry of the Pickpocket Squad saw a man grab a small package from the top of a mail box at Twenty-eighth Street and Broadway and run. He chased the fugitive for several blocks. Near Seventh Avenue he overtook him and put him under arrest.

At the West Thirtieth Street Station, where he was locked upon a charge of larceny, the prisoner said that he was Edward Fleming of the Mills Hotel at 161 West Thirty-sixth Street. When the package which Fleming had dropped in his flight was opened it was found to contain carpet samples worth less than a dollar.

Fleming's arrest was one of the first made by the special force of detectives assigned to the shopping district for the holiday period.

PARK AUTO TRAFFIC FIGHT UP TO WOMEN

Ralstone Urges Move to Protect the City's Playground and Force Subway Building.

ASKS HELP FROM CLUBS

Transit Quarrel Is Referred To in Plea to Organize and Force Action in Both Issues.

Organization of the women of New York City for the double purpose of saving Central Park from motor traffic and compelling the city authorities to take action toward subway building was proposed by William Bradford Roulstone, counsel for numerous organizations that defeated the art centre encroachment plan, in the course of an address yesterday afternoon before members of the Portia Club at the Hotel Astor.

Mr. Roulstone said that the women could get what they wanted if they only acted together. He declared that Central Park was being used as a "short cut" by thousands of taxicabs and other motor cars, and outlined a system which he believed would stop the use of the park driveways for traffic and leave them open for persons who want the park for recreation.

Mr. Roulstone's proposal to regulate traffic in Central Park follows closely the recent demand by Dr. William Jay Schieffelin, President of the Citizens Union, that all gasoline motors be barred from the park, and first urged last Spring by Senator Nathan Straus Jr., when he identified himself with the leaders of the movement to defeat the city's plan to establish a music and art centre in the park.

Mr. Roulstone in his address said:

"The city's traffic problems tempt the local Government to let Central Park degenerate into a series of thoroughfares north and south, east and west. Park problems are on the increase—not decrease.

"City parks should forever be kept intact and free from use except for purely park purposes. Parkways, however, a cross between parks and streets, may be developed as adjuncts to parks and yet be used to enlarge traffic facilities. For example, a parkway built around the City of New York or made out of one or more of its avenues would retain part of the benefits of a park while adding to traffic facilities. On the other hand, if a park like Central Park be used as an aid to traffic facilities, the park will become a mere extension of streets.

"Central Park can in a few years be greatly injured by traffic and by the harmful effects of gasoline automobiles. It is probable that the foliage in Central Park has been damaged by the deposit of dust and of gasoline soot on the leaves. This, of course, simply means asphyxiation of the foliage. It may be that the carbon monoxide mentioned by Mr. Schieffelin will kill trees and shrubbery.

"Central Park is today abused by too much automobile traffic passing through it from all sides of the park. Those who drive in the park for pleasure have as much right to do so as those who walk and play in the park. The park is intended for all classes of people. But taxicabs and other automobiles should not be permitted to pass through the park as a short cut or for traffic purposes. It is contrary to park purposes. Therefore, if at each gate a park policeman admitted automobiles solely for the purpose of motoring therein for pleasure, traffic through the park would be eliminated and the park restored to its proper uses.

"My own observation of automobile use of the park is that fully 75 per cent. of the automobiles entering the park do so for the purpose of passing through it and not for the pleasure of motoring in the park. There should be ways of regulating this use. For example, automobiles, even taxis, entering the park from the south side could be given a ticket permitting them to go anywhere in the park they desire, but requiring them to make their exit only through the south side. Automobiles entering on the north side of the park would likewise go out only on the side through which they entered.

"In answer to the request for a suggestion touching the regulation between New York's park and traffic problems, may I not in all politeness suggest that if the Mayor and the Transit Commission cannot cooperate to build needed subways, both should resign and let others undertake the job. The conflict between the Mayor and the Transit Commission has reached an impasse. It is incredible that the people of this city have for years tolerated the conditions now existing, which are worse now than when Mr. Hylan became Mayor. If we were at war and the safety of the city for sufficient military reasons depended upon the building of twenty-five or thirty miles of subways within a year, somehow the people of this city would build those subways.

"Within a year great relief to the oppressed and compressed population traveling on the subways and in the elevated railways could be secured—if we cared enough.

"I suggest to you women that your organized power could go far toward bringing about this happy consummation. The concerted action of the women's clubs of the City of New York could not only save all the parks from existing, but also future encroachment from traffic, but could speedily bring traffic relief. The women should unite and act. They are the ones suffering the most from the quarrel between the Mayor and the Transit Commission. The fact that you have not united and acted and the fact that the men have not done so indicates our indifference. It is the old case of everybody's business being nobody's business. The thing goes undone."

FRENCH SENTENCE GERMAN GENERAL

Nathusius, Accused of Looting in War, Condemned to Year's Imprisonment.

LILLE, Nov. 20 (Associated Press).—Found guilty by a French court-martial of confiscating and shipping to Germany valuable properties from the chateau he was occupying as headquarters in Northern France during the war, General von Nathusius, a German commanding officer, was sentenced this afternoon to a year's imprisonment and payment of the costs of the trial. The conviction was on a vote of four to three.

RADIO CORPORATION IS SUED

De Forest Firm Alleges Infringement on Tubes.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 20.—Judge Morris, in the United States District Court, today heard the argument for a preliminary injunction, sought by the De Forest Telephone and Telegraph Company, to restrain the Radio Corporation of America from selling certain types of audion tubes, which are used in radio sets and other radio equipment. The complainant alleges that such equipment infringes upon De Forest patents. Both sides concluded their argument and the court took the matter under advisement.

The De Forest company asks for an accounting by the Radio Corporation of its sales of products. The suit involved millions of dollars, it is said, and is an echo of the suit brought by The American Telephone and Telegraph Company against the Radio Audion Company two years ago for the alleged infringement of the patent used in making the tubes.

LOS ANGELES WATER RELEASED BY RAIDERS

Barbecue Ends 20-Year Fight When Bankers Promise an Equitable Settlement.

LONE PINE, Cal., Nov. 20.—A barbecue, and not bloodshed, brought to a close today another chapter in the water rights feud of twenty years between the city of Los Angeles and ranchers of Owens Valley.

The open air feast, at first planned as a sign of defiance, became instead a feast of celebration, marking an end to the latest episode of the water rights war, the seizure on Sunday by Owens Valley ranchers of the Alabama waste gates of the Los Angeles aqueduct.

Slight vestige remained tonight of the well organized camp which had housed the 75 to 150 men, women and children who had held the waste gates of the aqueduct in defiance of the courts and Sheriff of Inyo County. The water they had diverted was coursing down the aqueduct again into the city's reservoirs.

Ranchers who previously had declared that they would release their possession of the waste gates only upon the appearance of State troops, or the presentation by Los Angeles of an acceptable solution of the water rights controversy, decided to abandon their policy when advised in a telegram from W. W. Watterson, Inyo County banker, that bankers of Los Angeles would use their best efforts to effect an equitable settlement, but not while the aqueduct was in "the hands of a mob."

The waste gates were closed in the early morning and at dawn the "army of occupation" started rolling its tents.

The aqueduct was seized in an attempt to force the city to relinquish its policy in the purchase of water rights, which the Owens Valley ranchers assert is turning the district into a desert. Sheriff Charles Collins refused to act in the case and twice applied to Governor Friend W. Richardson, stating that only the appearance of troops would prevent bloodshed and civil war in the valley. Both appeals were refused.

District Attorney Jess Hession, who left yesterday for San Francisco to confer with Governor Richardson, was urged today in a telegram from Sheriff Collins to impress upon the Governor the urgent need of immediate action to settle the long standing controversy. Collins predicted another outbreak if action was delayed.

SYNOD VOTES TO JOIN INTER-CHURCH BODY

Asks New York Dioceses to Enter State Council Aiming at Moral Betterment.

The Synod of the Episcopal Province of New York and New Jersey voted by a narrow margin yesterday to recommend to the five dioceses in New York that they affiliate with the New York State Council of Churches, which is now being organized.

The vote was taken in the closing moments of the eleventh annual session of the Synod at Bronxville, after many of the deputies and several of the Bishops had departed. The vote was 22 in favor of the affiliation, against 18 against, and followed a spirited debate.

The objects of the council were described as better religious education, social legislation and more adequate enforcement of laws to improve moral conditions.

The issue was introduced through the presentation of a report by a special committee appointed at the last Synod, by the Rev. Dr. Charles K. Gilbert, Secretary of the diocese of New York, who was chairman.

The Rev. John Whiting Crowell, chaplain at St. Michael's Home, Mamaroneck, N. Y., was chosen Assistant Secretary of the synod at yesterday's session.

The synod adopted six out of eight recommendations submitted by a special committee on how to make the provinces of the Episcopal Church of more use by giving them legislative powers that would lessen the burdens of the triennial general convention.

PERSHING MISSION WILL SAIL TOMORROW

Battleship Utah, After Peru's Celebration, Will Visit Other South American Ports.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—An itinerary which will carry the American colors into many South American ports has been mapped out for the battleship Utah, which has been designated to carry the American delegation, headed by General Pershing, to the celebration in Peru of the battle of Ayacucho, which terminated the Spanish regime in South America. The Utah's schedule was announced today.

Commanded by R. Z. Johnston the Utah will sail from New York Saturday for Panama, where it is scheduled to arrive Dec. 1, as the first stop. The warship will reach Callao, Peru, Dec. 7, and will remain there during the celebration, leaving Callao Dec. 20.

The Utah then is scheduled to make visits of courtesy at Valparaiso, Chile, and thence will go through the Straits of Magellan to the east coast of South America, calling at Montevideo, Uruguay and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

5 DIE IN PLYMOUTH, PA., FIRE.

All Perish in Boarding House as Seven Buildings Are Destroyed.

PLYMOUTH, Pa., Nov. 20.—Five lives comprised the toll of a fire which destroyed seven frame buildings in the business section here today.

The dead are Mrs. Martin Sherako, her niece, Emily Petroski, 11 years old, and three unidentified boarders in the Sherako home. Another boarder, Edward Alexton, was taken to a hospital at Wilkes-Barre in a serious condition.

The fire, which was of undetermined origin, started in the basement of the Sherako boarding house, the police said. The flames, fed by the wooden frame construction of the building, gained rapid headway and soon spread to six other places. These included a grocery store, a tailor shop, meat market, furniture store and cigar store and poolroom.

A number of boarders were carried from the burning boarding house by Deputy Sheriff Hosey.

The bodies of Mrs. Sherako and her niece and the three boarders were found on the first floor, where they were evidently attempting to escape from the flames when they met death. The loss was estimated at more than $75,000.

WILLIAMSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 20.—The Virginia lodge of the Sons of Italy has given $1,000 to the College of William and Mary to endow a memorial room in Monroe Hall, the new men's dormitory, in honor of Charles Bellini, first professor of modern languages in America, who taught Italian and Spanish at William and Mary from 1779 to 1803. The Sons of Italy plan to raise $1,000,000 to endow chairs of Italian in a number of American colleges and universities.

JURY VOTES DIVORCE TO MRS. MAY PINCUS

DEFENSE CALLS IT A PLOT

Counsel Insists Suit Was Started When the Couple Failed to Agree on Separation.

A jury before Justice O'Malley in the Supreme Court brought in a verdict yesterday in favor of Mrs. May Graf Pincus in her suit for divorce from Alexander Pincus, a wealthy real estate operator. Max D. Steuer, counsel for Mrs. Pincus, announced that he would ask the court to grant suitable alimony and the custody of the children to Mrs. Pincus. There are two children, a boy of 15 and a girl of 12.

Edmund L. Mooney, attorney for Mr. Pincus, contended during the trial that his client was the victim of a conspiracy in the attempt to prove charges of misconduct on his part with Miss Audrey Maple, an actress. He asserted that the divorce suit was precipitated by the failure of Mr. and Mrs. Pincus to make separation terms.

"The proposed agreements failed," said Mr. Mooney, "and then in some one's great but foul mind originated the idea of this divorce suit."

Mr. Steuer vigorously attacked the testimony of Miss Maple when he summed up the case.

"You heard Miss Maple testify that she came here from Bridgeport yesterday to clear her reputation," he said. "The whole thing was nicely staked. She entered this room. Her lawyer asked that she be permitted to testify in her own behalf, and Justice O'Malley properly granted the request. But to you, gentlemen of the jury, I want to say that if any one of you were paid by the month at the rate Miss Maple was paid by the day to come here and vindicate herself you wouldn't have to bother about working much longer."

POST OFFICE STOPS VOODOO PRACTICE

'Prince Hough' Can No Longer Cure All Diseases and Sell Luck Through the Mails.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Postmaster General New issued a fraud order today against "Dr. P. F. Hough, a seventy-year-old Mississippi negro, also known as "Prince Hough," for conducting a scheme for obtaining money through the mails by false pretenses. Evidences gathered by postal inspectors disclosed that Hough, known to his patients as a "voodoo" or "hoodoo" doctor, conducted a mail order business representing to ignorant patients that he could diagnose any disease and agreed to furnish medicine to cure every ailment.

In one test case conducted by the Post Office Hough was advised that the writer had a bad disease. He replied that he would effect a cure for $25 and instructed the applicant to "spit on a piece of white cloth" and send it to him along with $14. The amount demanded was finally reduced to $5. This was sent, together with a piece of white rag on which some whits of an egg had been smeared. Several days later the "patient" received a small envelope containing a brown paper, with the following directions:

"Dr. Sir You Received Listen Emty contents in A Pint Bot fil it with clen Water take a table Spoon 2 times A Day Before meals Shake the Bot till all Resolve x x x x is the Cause Yo Being like yo ar to Cure you & make you luck & never go Brok & get all the Work yo can do & Ber All the Money Yo want to run eny bus yo Want will cost 21 Dols."

LAW REVIEW TREATS OF TAX PUBLICATION

TAKES UP DAMAGE ISSUE

Tells of Possible Special Circumstances in Which an Error Might Harm Individual.

What liability, if any, the publishers of newspapers have incurred by publishing the names of persons and the amounts of their income taxes as disclosed by the Federal income tax collectors, is the subject of an article prepared for the next issue of The New York Law Review. Reference is made to a promise, credited to the Attorney General, that there will be presented to the courts a case in which the issues involved may be thashed out. The article then discusses what is called the legal effect of the several provisions of law bearing on the subject.

It is pointed out that Section 3167 of the Revised Statutes, enacted when the first income tax law was passed in 1894, makes it a criminal offense to "print or publish in any manner whatever not provided by law, any part of an income tax return, under penalty of fine and imprisonment, or both, and that if the offender be an officer or employe of the United States he shall be dismissed from office and incapacitated from holding any office thereafter in the Federal Government.

However Section 257 (b) of the same act says that it is the duty of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue "as soon as practical in each year" to cause to be prepared and "made available to public inspection in such manner as he may determine in the office of the Collector in each internal revenue district, lists containing the name and the Post Office address of each person making an income tax return in such district together with the amount of the income tax paid by such person."

The Confusion in the Law.

The article continues:

"It is these lists, or portions of them, which many of the newspapers have been publishing, although the printing or publication of any part of an income tax return in any manner not provided by law is expressly prohibited by Section 3,167 of the Revised Statutes, re-enacted by Section 1,018 of the Revenue act of 1924.

"Prior to the enactment of Section 257 (b) of the Revenue act of 1924 it had not been doubted, so far as is known, that Congress might lawfully prohibit the newspaper publication of income tax returns or any parts of them, this notwithstanding the first amendment to the Federal Constitution declaring that Congress should pass no law abridging the freedom of the press. But the Congress has now declared names and amounts, as they appear in the tax returns, to be proper subjects for what is open to public information and inspection. In other words, it may be argued on the one hand that the public policy impliedly declared by Congress in the enactment of the Revised Statutes, enjoining the privacy of such items was changed by the so-called publicity provisions (sec. 257, b) of the Revenue act of 1924 and that, therefore, it would be contrary to the spirit of the freedom of the press, provision of the Constitution to punish the newspaper publication of portions of public records expressly made open to public inspection.

"This argument is not without plausibility though its force is diminished by the re-enactment, as already pointed out, of Section 3,167 of the Revised Statutes in a later section of the Revenue act of 1924. So that, should there be deemed to be unavoidable conflict between the two sections of the Revenue act of 1924, the general rule of statutory construction would give effect to the later provision of the act, nullifying, if need be, the earlier section.

The Freedom of the Press Clause.

"The question to be decided, therefore, may take this form: May Congress constitutionally prohibit the newspaper publication of portions of public records expressly held, as to such portions, to be open to public inspection? The answer to this question will depend upon the construction of the freedom of the press clause of the Federal Constitution.

And inasmuch as it may not be doubted that Congress might, as an original proposition, and has in fact did by the Revised Statutes forbid the publication of any portion of income tax returns, nor that it may now prohibit the public inspection or publication of details of profits or losses shown by such returns, the courts might find a way to sustain the law penalizing newspaper printing or publication, in spite of the public inspection provision of the present law. On the other hand, an easier or certainly simpler solution of the matter, and one which the press would gleefully acclaim, would be a judicial decision that newspapers could not be penalized for publishing information or data, access to which was expressly given to the public by law. The latter is the position which may be expected to be ultimately sustained."

Concerning possible liability of newspapers to damage suits because of erroneous information, or mistakes, in printing the amounts of income taxes paid, or because of financial loss caused in other ways the article says:

"There are other phases of income tax information given in the newspapers which have not been yet considered. It has been claimed that many of the published items have been inacurate in overstating or understating the amounts paid by persons or corporations for income tax. May a man's income be libeled by a gross understatement? Authorities upon the law of libel and slander declare that any printed or written words are libelous which impeach the credit of any merchant or trader by imputing to him bankruptcy, insolvency or even embarrassment, either past, present or future. But it is not believed that a mere understatement of the amount of income tax paid by a person or corporation would ordinarily be of a character to impute insolvency or inability to pay existing obligations. If this view is correct, a publication understating the amount of an income tax paid would not be libelous, per se, and a cause of action thereon could only be sustained, if at all, by proper averment and proof of special damage resulting.

Possibilities of Damages.

"It has been held, indeed, that a cause of action may be based on any false writing, even though not defamatory in character, which results naturally and directly in damage to the person concerning whom the words were published, when the damages suffered are specially pleaded. (Husted v. Husted Company, 193 App. Div. 496, citing Morasse v. Brachu, 151 Mass. 574, and J. A. & R. A. Reid v. Providence Journal Company, 20 R. I. 120, 124). For illustration, suppose a wife has procured a judgment of divorce against her husband in which, upon proof of her husband's financial ability, alimony has been awarded to the wife for a moderate amount fixed, with the privilege of moving for increased alimony whenever it can be shown that the husband's financial condition has improved; that later a newspaper overstates the income tax which has been paid by the husband and upon a calculation of the husband's income, based upon such overstatement, the wife makes a motion for increased alimony and the husband by reason of such a motion has been put to an expense of $1,000 to oppose, successfully, the motion so made by the wife. In such a case the husband might have a cause of action against the newspaper publishing the overstatement of his tax liability, for the recovery, as damages, of the expense to which he had been put. Other illustrations might be given where, by properly pleading special damages, liability might be predicated on the part of a newspaper either falsely overstating or understating a person's income tax payment."

DEATH AT WHEEL WRECKS CAR; 2 HURT

CHILD KILLED IN STREET

Machine Carrying Her to Hospital Is Overturned on the Way—Two Other Fatalities.

When the driver of an automobile suffered a stroke of apoplexy last night as the car was speeding along Soundview Avenue, in White Plains, the automobile swerved off the road and plunged into a telegraph pole at Post Road. William Hills, the driver, of 338 South Third Street, Mount Vernor, was dead when other motorists reached the wreck. Two other occupants of the car, W. H. Nichols of 1,517 Sherwood Avenue, Yonkers, and W. Farrington of Johnson Avenue, Mount Vernon, who had been seated behind the driver, were unconscious. They revived at the White Plains Hospital. Their injuries were not serious and they were removed to their homes.

Coroner Edward F. Fitzgerald, who examined the body of Hills, said that the man was dead before the car struck the pole. He added that he had been informed by friends of the dead man that Hills was a victim of epilepsy. Hills, he said, evidently tried to avert the accident before his death, for he had shut off the motor, lessening the impact and preventing the car from upsetting.

The three men were returning to their homes from White Plains, where they had served on a jury.

Edith Clare Renkel, 6 years old, of 3,716 Twentieth Street, Jackson Heights, Queens, was killed last night while walking with her parents at Roosevelt Avenue and Twenty-second Street, near her home. She started to cross the street and was struck by an automobile operated by Henry Bolte of 119 Forley Street, Elmhurst. Natali Carboni of 16 Henry Street, Winfield, placed the body of the little girl in his car and started for St. John's Hospital in Long Island City. In Woodside, another automobile shot in front of Carboni's car, causing him to swerve sharply, overturning the car. The automobile was righted and continued to the hospital, where Carboni was told that the little girl had been instantly killed. Bolte was held by the police on a technical homicide charge.

Raymond Winston, 22, was fatally injured yesterday afternoon when the seat of his motorcycle became dislodged and he was thrown to the road at Kearney, N. J. He died of a fractured skull fifteen minutes later.

William Zackeroff, 18, was killed and six other persons were injured when the car which the youth was driving on the Mantau Pike near Woodbury, N. J., collided with a jitney bus. The injured were passengers in the bus. None was seriously hurt.

Margaret Perota, 4, of 235 East 150th Street was internally injured yesterday afternoon when she was run over by an automobile hearse at Morris Avenue and 150th Street, the Bronx. She was removed in a critical condition to Lebanon Hospital. The hearse was carrying the body of a man to Woodlawn Cemetery.

AROSE FROM SICKBED TO STAB HIS FATHER

Cavalier (N. D.) Youth Says He Did It to End 25 Years' Abuse of His Mother.

CAVALIER, N. D., Nov. 20.—Lying on his bed, where he had been ill for two years with tuberculosis, Theodore Shahane Jr., aged 23, who stabbed his father fatally yesterday because "he was always mistreating mother," today declared he felt that his act was justified.

The youth admitted that he killed his father, saying that it was the only way he could aid his mother, who was engaged in a bitter argument with her husband when the son intervened. Owing to the youth's illness, he will not be removed to the county jail, Sheriff P. J. Larson said, pending the Coroner's inquest.

The quarrel which precipitated the murder was started, according to the son, when Mrs. Shahane asked her husband to go on an errand for her and he refused. According to Theodore Jr., his father became emphatic in his refusal and started pounding on the table, terrorizing Mrs. Shahane. The son, according to his version, became alarmed, found strength to go to the kitchen for a knife and attacked his father.

"Father has been mistreating my mother for twenty-five years," the youth told Sheriff Larson, "and I couldn't stand it any longer."

The Chandler medal, bestowed annually by Columbia University for services to science, has been awarded to Professor E. C. Kendall, in charge of the Chemical Division of the Mayo Foundation, University of Minnesota, it was announced yesterday.

The presentation to Professor Kendall will take place at Columbia University in February, when he will deliver the Chandler lecture. He was born in Norwalk, Conn., March 8, 1886, and received the degree of B. S. in chemistry from Columbia in 1908, A. M. in 1909 and Ph. D. in 1910. As research chemist he conducted investigations of the thyroid in Detroit and later at St. Luke's Hospital, this city.

INDICTED TO TEST TAX PUBLICITY LAW

out the country were thrown open to public inspection, in accordance with legislation enacted by the last session of Congress, and when newspapers immediately began the daily publication of such lists, that there was nothing in the law which appeared to authorize the general publication of such lists. This same view was entertained by the Secretary of the Treasury and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and warnings at the time were issued by all district collectors, in compliance with Treasury Department orders that those newspapers publishing the tax lists were doing so in violation of the law."

The Baltimore Post was indicted for publishing the following tax payments: J. Cookman Boyd, $15.65; Leon C. Cohlenz, $136.97; Frank A. Furst, $31.45; Daniel Willard, $20,434.01; Waldo Newcomer, $108,723.64.

Text of the Indictment.

Copies of the indictment made available to the newspapers by the Department of Justice contained the five counts brought against The Baltimore Post. The findings in each instance except for names and figures were identical in language.

The indictment reads:

Of the September term. In the year 1924.

First count—District of Maryland; ss.—The Grand Jurors for the United States of America empaneled and sworn in the District Court of the United States for the District of Maryland at the September term of said court in the year 1924, and inquiring for said District of Maryland, upon their oath present, that, on March 15, 1924, the income return of one J. Cookman Boyd was made to Galen L. Tait, then the Collector of Internal Revenue of the United States at Baltimore, to wit, in said District of Maryland and in the Internal Revenue Collection District of Maryland, showing, among other things, the amount of the income tax of said J. Cookman Boyd accruing to the United States for the taxable year 1923 to be $150.65; that said income return of said J. Cookman Boyd thereupon became a public record, in the office of said collector, at Baltimore aforesaid, upon which the income tax of said J. Cookman Boyd in said sum of $150.65 for said taxable year was determined by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue of the United States and paid to said collector by said J. Cookman Boyd; that afterwards, to wit, on Oct. 24, 1924, a list of income taxpayers in said collection district, containing the name of said J. Cookman Boyd and showing the amount of said income tax at said by him to said collector, was prepared and made available to inspection at said office of said collector at Baltimore aforesaid in the manner determined by said Commissioner of Internal Revenue, not, however, to be printed or published in newspapers or public prints; and that the Baltimore Post Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Maryland, then publisher of a newspaper and public print called The Baltimore Daily Post, then circulating extensively in said District of Maryland, on said Oct. 24, 1924, at Baltimore aforesaid, in said District of Maryland, having by its agent examined said list of taxpayers in said office of said collector, unlawfully and in a manner not provided by law did print and publish, in the issue of said newspaper and public print of that date, a part of said income return, then well knowing it to be such, to wit, the part thereof showing the name of said J. Cookman Boyd and the amount of his said income tax, to wit, in the words and figures following: 1923 taxes paid in this district. Records of the local income tax office, thrown open to public inspection today, show the following amounts paid in the Maryland district: J. Cookman Boyd, $150.65; against the peace and dignity of the United States, and contrary to the form of the statute of the same in such case made and provided.

The indictment was found after Harold Allen and Sewell Key, special assistants to the Attorney General, appeared before the Federal Grand Jury at Baltimore. In this case the evidence submitted dealt with the rights of a corporation under the law. In other instances, it was said, the application of the law to an individual who participates in the publication of the tax payments will be stressed.

Norris Opposes Flat Repeal.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, author of the original tax publicity clause, said today that the compromise now advanced by Representative Oldfield appealed to him as advantageous to that it would furnish Congress a great deal better basis for legislation than the present clause. Representative John M. Nelson of Wisconsin, leader of the House insurgents took a like position.

Opposed to the present publicity clause, it is a question whether Republican leaders would support the Oldfield proposition. Last year when the revenue bill was being ground through the House, an amendment allowing the congressional committees to see the returns was put through on motion of Representative Moore of Virginia, but was fought bitterly, Representative Tilson of Connecticut sarcastically dubbing it the "Peeping Tom" amendment.

According to Mr. Oldfield he would never consent to repeal of the present publicity unless a compromise were reached whereby Congress could examine the full returns. Senator Norris declared that if a flat repeal were attempted he would do his best to drive through his original proposal that a taxpayer's full return should be open to the world.

Volumes of protest against the publication of the tax payments are reaching Senators and House members, with the result that many liberals appear to be reconsidering their action. Senator Cummins of Iowa, one of those who voted for the amendment, indicated today that he was not entirely sure that it would remain as it is.

Harrison Explains His Position.

Senator Harrison's announcement came as a surprise, for he flatfootedly stated that he was now opposed to the publicity sections.

"While I supported the publicity features of the last income tax law," he said, "some of the defects of such a system did not then appeal to me. I am convinced that the practice will not encourage honest enterprise nor work to the general welfare of the whole country. We have but to reflect on the psychology of the latest publication to appreciate the political use to which it might be applied, and we need only to give sober thought in an analysis of the last returns to appreciate the effect it might have upon individuals and business. If there are any great losses in any one year by the captains of industry, they can employ such losses as an argument to reduce the wages of their employes. The returns, whether padded or not, would give force to such a policy. In fat years, where profits have been large and incomes great, the returns may give encouragement to the employes to resort to strike or otherwise for a larger share in the distribution. The returns will give encouragement to such a movement. The amounts of the income, whether large or small, of the business or professional man can be ingeniously and effectively used by competitors. The publication of a very small income tax upon the part of a physician or lawyer might affect the prestige of such a physician or lawyer, and that might be so, even though such a physician or lawyer possessed the largest practice in his community and the returns were small because of losses otherwise incurred.

"I am sure that the American people are sick and tired of so much governmental red tape and unnecessary regulation. This constant 'prying in' by so-called governmental experts, who may know nothing of the subjectmatter they are investigating or regulating, has disheartened in large measure honest business effort throughout the country. The Government is now in the hands of the Republican Party, I shall be glad to cooperate with the Senate majority in working for repeal or modification of publicity of income tax returns. It is not a party question—never has been and should not be."

THINKS PUBLICATION LEGAL.

Baltimore Editor Says Tax Figures Were Printed as a Public Duty.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20.—Harold Jacobs, editor of The Baltimore Post, the first newspaper to be indicted by a Federal Grand Jury for publishing income tax returns, in a statement tonight said:

"The Post published income tax returns not to satisfy the curiosity of readers but because it believed it a public duty. The Post believes publication of these returns is lawful and was so advised by counsel at the time of publication.

"We believe this test case will prove that Congress intended the law should permit such publication."

PATRICK DEPLORES AVIATION OUTLOOK

Air Service Chief Says We Make the Records, but Ignore Development of Industry.

WANTS MORE ARMY FUNDS

General's Report Urges Legislation to Promote Commercial Flying and Encourage Manufacturers.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (Associated Press).—America has established world leadership in air navigation, research and development, and holds nearly every important record in the air, yet trails far behind the commercial application of this new medium of transportation, Major Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chief of the Army Air Service, points out in his annual report, in which he expresses grave concern over the "unhealthy state of the aeronautical industry."

"If this deplorable situation is to be corrected," General Patrick said, "it must be, in the first place, through increased appropriations for the aeronautical agencies of the War, Navy and Post Office Departments, coupled with authority for those in charge to allocate orders for aircraft without resorting to competitive bids, and in the second place, through the enactment of legislation designed to insure the development and growth of commercial aviation."

General Patrick said that the United States lacked any commercial aviation deserving of the name, and that the industry was utterly unprepared to meet a demand for quantity production. Such commercial use of aircraft as exists is "haphazard and unsystematic," he said, and factories are dependent on Government orders, although Government requirements alone are insufficient to keep the industry alive. The result was, he continued, that there is no war reserve of aircraft in existence, "and quantity production in the event of an emergency would be almost as difficult as in 1917."

Says the Army Lacks Equipment.

In the Army Air Service itself the equipment is not sufficient to supply existing organizations, General Patrick declared.

"Post-war appropriations available for the procurement of aircraft have been too small to provide the numbers required for the authorized strength of the service," he continued. "By utilizing war-produced planes and engines to the limit of safety and rebuilding them after deterioration and damage as often as it is physically possible, the units at their present reduced strength have been able to operate up to this time.

"The war-produced stock has now been exhausted. Many planes have been rebuilt more than once."

General Patrick said that a technical survey of air service equipment had indicated greater deterioration in some classes in storage than had been expected, "notably foreign built and training planes." Most of these machines had been awaiting rebuilding, but in the interest of safety it had become necessary to dismantle many, salvaging only those parts which could be used again.

Stresses Need of Commercial Airways.

Reverting to the need for development of commercial use of aircraft, General Patrick said there were four causes which restrain capital from entering the field.

"The first is a fear of accidents with the consequent loss of life and property," he said. "The second is the high initial cost and rapid depreciation of equipment; the third is the impossibility of obtaining acceptable insurance rates, and the fourth is the total lack of appropriate and uniform legislation covering the licensing of pilots and aircraft, defining the legal status of operators in torts damage and trespass, and providing for the establishment of landing fields and aids to air navigation.

"We who gave the airplane to the world, who lead in nearly all phases of research and development, and who hold nearly every important record in the air, trail far behind the commercial application of this new medium of transportation. If our country is to assume its proper place in the world of aeronautics and thereby insure the development of an industry so essential to national defense, it must be through the creation of a commercial demand for aircraft."

MACY CHEF WINS GOLD CUP.

Shows Most Artistic Dish at Hotel Men's Exposition.

For the third consecutive year Pierre J. Berard, chef of R. H. Macy & Co.'s restaurant, has been awarded first prize for the best culinary creation at the Hotel Mens' Exposition in Grand Central Palace. The award was a feature of the Salon of Culinary Art, a competition for professional chefs. Each year a gold cup is given for the best and most artistic dish.

Mr. Berard's prize-winning dish, which he calls a "poem," was dedicated to Mary Pickford and was inspired, he says, by her recent performance in the film "Rosita." The dish is a framework of waxen Spanish fans and red roses, on which rests a fan-shaped breast of duckling glazed with orange and sherry jelly. The whole rests on a silver platter decorated in Spanish style. The color scheme is brown, white and black, and all the coloring is of vegetable origin.

UNION MEETING IS RAIDED.

Lights Go Out and Candy Workers' By-Laws Are Stolen.

At the height of their meeting last night in Astoria Hall, 62 Fourth Street, near Second Avenue, about 300 members of the Candy Workers' Union were thrown into excitement when the electric lights went out and five men rushed the platform and carried away the books containing by-laws and constitution and the names of members with the statement of dues paid and unpaid.

Officers of the Union told the police they believed the raid had been designed either by employers or foremen of large candy manufacturing concerns who are anxious to prevent organization of candy workers during the holiday rush season.

USES 'RADIUM SEEDS' FOR INTERNAL CANCER

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—An interior cancer was attacked with "radium seeds," the first operation of its kind, today at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, where the Eastern Homeopathic Medical Association is holding its annual convention.

Dr. Bushrod James, a surgeon from the Hahnemann Hospital staff, performed the operation at a clinic. The tiny agents known as "radium seeds" were placed in a cancerous growth in the abdomen of a woman patient. The "seeds" are glass tubes, about a sixteenth of an inch long and about as large as a small pencil lead. In each tube is gas, the emanations of the beta ray of radium.

Four of them were put in the centre of the growth and a ring of them placed to fence it off from adjacent organs. For twenty-one days, according to Dr. James, the tubes will send forth curative influences, changing the diseased tissue into healthy tissue.

Confidence in the operation is caused largely by the fact that a similar treatment is said to have proved successful with surface cancers, although the method has never been tried on an interior growth.

One feature of the operation, according to the surgeon, will take care of a condition which has hindered the treatment of interior cancers. Methods hitherto used have usually cured the growth in one place, but it has moved to another. The wall of "radium seeds" will prevent this spread, it is believed.

Dr. R. Rodney Fiske of New York told the delegates at the closing session of the convention that recent discoveries concerning the function of glands of the human body had paved the way for the production of the "perfect man." While Dr. William H. Diffenbach, an X-ray specialist, also of New York, added the assertion that by properly controlling the function of glands a "fountain of youth" will have been discovered. Failure of the glands to function, Dr. Diffenbach said, was the cause of old age.

"By increasing the action of sluggish glands and slowing down the over-active glands, Dr. Fiske said, "remarkable results have been accomplished and we are on the verge of even greater achievements which will make possible the production of the perfect man."

Dr. Diffenbach expressed the opinion that control of the ductless glands was far superior to implantation of monkey glands for the restoration of youth to the aged.

KILLS HER HUSBAND AFTER A QUARREL

Wife With 3-Month-Old Baby Says He Wanted Her to Lead an Immoral Life.

Because he had repeatedly demanded that she lead an immoral life, Mrs. Guinta, Bushetti, an attractive woman, 26 years old, and mother of a three-months-old daughter, shot and killed her husband, Cologe, in the kitchen of their apartment at 327 East 109th Street last night.

Shortly after 8 o'clock neighbors in the apartment house heard three revolver shots fired in rapid succession. They called Patrolman O'Sullivan, who, entering the Bushetti home, found Mrs. Bushetti standing over the form of her husband weeping. She first told the policeman that a stranger had shot her husband as he was returning from his work as a plasterer, and that after firing the shots he fled. She said that she had carried the body from the hallway to the chair in which he was found by O'Sullivan.

The woman, who arrived in this country from Italy only fifteen months ago, was taken to the station house, where she was questioned for more than an hour. In the meantime Detectives McLaughlin and Caputo made an investigation and learned that the bullet which killed Bushetti had not penetrated the coat which he was seen to have worn when he entered the house and which he evidently had taken off and hung on a rack in a room of the apartment. When they returned to the station they again examined Mrs. Bushetti, who broke down and admitted that she had done the shooting.

According to her story Bushetti, although employed, was not making enough money to support himself and his family. For three months, or shortly after the birth of their daughter, she said, he began to make the demands referred to, which she refused. When he returned last night, Mrs. Bushetti said, he again renewed the argument and she shot and killed him and threw the revolver out of a window into the street, where it was found later.

While telling her story the woman was holding in her lap her little daughter Anna. After the confession she was locked up charged with homicide.

HOBOKEN ASKS TAX ON PORT AUTHORITY

Governor Silzer Expresses the Opinion That Docks and Shore Line Are Exempt.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 20.—The Port of New York Authority and officials of Hoboken will meet in conference before Congress convenes in December to frame the taxation feature of an amended bill now pending in Congress authorizing the Secretary of War to sell Government property in Hoboken to the joint Port Commission.

This was decided today at a meeting here between officials of the Port Commission and interests in Hoboken. The property has long been tax free and the conference was called by Governor Silzer to devise some scheme whereby Hoboken could recoup its tax losses if the property were turned over to the Port Authority.

The question was also raised at today's meeting as to the status of construction plans for two bridges which the Port Authority will build between New Jersey and New York. The delegates were informed that borings have been taken and that in the near future a report will be made to Governor Silzer and Governor Smith of New York as to the progress of the work. The Legislatures of the two States will also be informed about the proposed financing of the work.

PASTOR LEAVES DEC. 31.

Church Council Advances Date of Rev. C. W. Dane's Resignation.

Instead of permitting the Rev. Charles W. Dane, pastor of St. Mark's Congregational Church, Decatur Street, between Ralph and Patchen Avenues, Brooklyn, to resign from the pastorate on March 31, an ecclesiastical council convened at the church yesterday afternoon decided to make the pastor's resignation become effective on Dec. 31.

The enforced resignation of the pastor was the culmination of internal strife that has existed for several months in connection with the administration of the church. Chief among the causes of the trouble was the question of whether dancing should be allowed on the church property.

Twenty-eight clergymen constituted the council which sat in judgment on the pastor. The Rev. Dr. J. Percival Hugot, pastor of the Tompkins Avenue Congregational Church, was moderator.

GROCER ATTACKS TRADE COMMISSION

OBJECTS TO CITATIONS

Also Complain of Federal Ban on the Practice of Business Men in "Getting Together."

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 20.—Asserting that industries of the nation have been trying "to do business with the big stick of the Federal Trade Commission over their heads," J. H. McLaurin of Jacksonville, Fla., President of the American Wholesale Grocers' Association, spoke at the sixteenth annual convention of the American Specialty Manufacturers' Association in the Traymore Hotel today.

"American business can never prosper in an atmosphere of suspicion, and there is nothing in the act of creating the Federal Trade Commission which warrants its present suspicious attitude and present method of supervision, control and direction of American business," said Mr. McLaurin.

He charged the commission with having inflicted "unjust and serious injury to the reputation and credit of responsible business men" in the publishing of citations to appear before the commission.

He stressed the necessity for business men getting together to discuss vital problems affecting the welfare of the nation, and further criticized the Federal Trade Commission because, he declared, "they have placed a ban upon such gatherings."

"The manufacturer has a right and should insist that his products be distributed at a profit to his business, and the manufacturer who is loyal to the men serving him will see that this is done. The Federal Trade Commission may call this restraint of trade, and probably will, but it is a correct and just principle."

"For five years past I have noted with the greatest possible concern the attitude of the Federal Trade Commission. The business men of the country, as a whole, are undoubtedly honest and want to do right. They need some guidance, of course, but they cannot live in the atmosphere of distrust created by the commission.

"Because of statements conjured up in the minds of ofttimes irresponsible persons and presented to the commission, responsible business men of integrity are advertised throughout the country in the official published announcements of the commission, sent to newspapers regularly, as being engaged in unlawful enterprises.

"The announcements of the commission say that such and such a person or corporation has been cited to appear before it. The fact that the accused may later be shown to be entirely innocent does not relieve the situation, because the damage has already been done. I happen to know, personally, that President Coolidge feels that the members of the commission should be men of intelligence and discretion and recognises that American business can be very seriously injured by this practice of the commission.

"Why, such is the attitude of the Federal Trade Commission that we have been timid about discussing our affairs with each other lest a complaint be filed against us and we should get a 'cease and desist' order, or some other ridiculous command."

Mr. McLaurin said that the "very foundation of what we have conceived to be the sound, logical and economic system of food distribution in this country is being undermined by the action of many wholesale grocers."

He explained that this meant the selling of goods at cost and without profit, in order to build up a volume of business, together with an incorrect system of trade discounts.

"You cannot vpay one price for a certain service, the same price for a lesser service and still the same price for no service at all," he continued. "Neither can the food of the country be auctioned off, as many wholesale grocers are now doing, and still preserve the food distributing organization of the nation.

"Distribution of food products is being made without any regard for the economic laws that are behind all successful distribution, and the manufacturers should see that is stopped and that their representatives who sell to wholesale grocers do not cooperate with such grocers who sell the manufacturers goods without profit simply to build up a volume of business."

PRESENTATION TO HULBERT.

Gustavus T. Kirby, former President of the Amateur Athletic Union, presented to Murray Hulbert, newly elected President of the union, at the City Hall yesterday a certificate awarded this city by the Playground and Recreation Association of America for having sent the largest number of delegates to the eleventh annual congress of that body held recently in Atlantic City.

In his speech of presentation Mr. Kirby, who is Treasurer of the association, said:

"Those eighty-nine New Yorkers were all busy men and women. They dropped their duties for a week and gave their time to discussing and considering America's recreation problems. Their enthusiasm contributed greatly to the spirit of the congress, helping to make it the most successful ever held. New York City's planners came to give of their experience for the benefit of other cities."

LECTURERS ANALYZE GENIUS AND INSANITY

'Psychological Study of Lewis Carroll' Discussed at Academy of Medicine.

The narrow hiatus between the genius and the victim of dementia praecox was discussed last night at a meeting of the New York Academy of Medicine. Dr. L. Pierce Clark spoke on "A Psychological Study of Lewis Carroll and His Works," citing Carroll as the whimsical genius of sufficient vitality to make his work understood by the public.

Dr. Clark illustrated his speech with lantern slides of Carroll's original poems and sketches. He told how Carroll created a language of his own during his boyhood. Then he had the work of mentally unsound artists thrown upon the screen. He explained that each of these bizarre creations revealed the mental state of the patient and aided physicians in healing his mind.

In discussing Dr. Clark's talk, Howard Young, Ph. D., of the University of Oregon, said Carroll possessed a dual personality, which he expressed in a literary way as the author of fairy tales and in a scientific way under his real name of the Rev. Charles L. Dodgson.

"The Rev. Dr. Dodgson long denied the authorship of the writings of Lewis Carroll," said Mr. Young. "He was overconcerned that people should discover this fact. He dreaded publicity. He dreaded, almost in the sense of shame, being known as the author of 'Alice,' Yet as the years went by, he actually came to play with the idea of being two personalities and in his inimitable humor and punning he often mystified his new friends by writing to them as two persons, signing both names, saying that one was the friend of and lived with the other.

"In short, we may say that we have here in Dodgson-Carroll a picture of the two trends of the human personality; the ego or self-concerned phase and the alter or social aspect. While the two kept house together fairly well, they do typify, as Dr. Clark has well indicated, certain phases of the dualism which we find in the clinical picture of some types of neuroses. Here medicine can throw light on the mechanism and early determinants of the particular developments of this sort of mind."

Dr. Elliott G. Brackett of Boston read a paper on the "Rise and Development of Orthopedic Surgery." It was discussed by Dr. R. H. Sayre and Dr. S. Epstein.

FLATBUSH LIGHT COST CUT.

Brooklyn Edison, Now Operating There, Makes 8-Cent Home Rate.

Electric light service at 8 cents per kilowatt hour for more than 40,000 residents of the Flatbush section of Brooklyn was inaugurated by the Brooklyn Edison Company yesterday as a result of the action of that company in taking over the electric light business of the Flatbush Gas and Electric Company. The Public Service Commission approved this move on Nov. 12.

The Flatbush Gas and Electric Company charged 9.8 cents per kilowatt hour. The uniform rate for electric light service is now 8 cents throughout Brooklyn.

EX-MAYOR IS A BANKRUPT.

Failure in Worcester Halts Work on Large Building.

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 20.—The filing of a voluntary petition in bankruptcy by former Mayor George M. Wright, with liabilities of $1,076,504 and assets of $160,022, means abandonment for the present of work on the big structure of the Worcester Parking Company here, but, it is stated, does not mean the abandonment of the project.

L. A. Scott of New York, who has the contract for the building, holds a note of the Parking company for $51,476, endorsed by Mr. Wright. The understanding is that Mr. Scott and others interested with him will refinance the enterprise.

Present Pleas Against Second-Class Postal Rate Increase.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Members of the Postal Committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, of which Jerome B. Barnum is Chairman, conferred with President Coolidge today in opposition to an increase in second-class postal rates.

ANDERSON PAROLED; OUT ON CHRISTMAS

authority into disrespect. I also enclose a transcript of the remarks made by Justice Tompkins when he sentenced Anderson, in which he said Anderson had had a fair trial, that he had been ably defended by ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman and that the jury was one of the most intelligent that had ever sat in a case in his court. The Court also called attention to the fact that Anderson took the stand himself in his own defense and that his story of the disposition of the league's $24,700 in 1918 was radically different from the explanation contained in Anderson's affidavit to the Board of Directors of the Anti-Saloon League of the State when he submitted a bill to them for this money.

"Did you intimate in any way that you felt that Anderson should at least serve the minimum term of his sentence?" Mr. Pecora was asked.

"I deliberately and carefully avoided making any recommendation one way or the other," he answered.

That the Parole Board was impressed by Mr. Pecora's communication and the personal plea for clemency of Justice Tompkins in imposing sentence was evidenced in the question put to Anderson by Chairman Benham:

"Have you any feeling against the courts?"

Anderson is reported to have hesitated and to have eventually answered in measured words:

"I believe that under a constitutional form of Government the courts should be supreme."

The interrogation took place in the room on the lower floor of the administration building, which is immediately within the confines of the prison and below the offices of Warden Lawes. Anderson in the last month had been permitted to raise the mustache of which he was shorn when he entered the prison.

Word that he was to file a petition for release had been passed among all the other inmates. Much interest attached to it because of the ruling made at the October meeting of the Parole Board, which was looked on by all the convicts as an injustice because each convicted man, when admitted to the prison, is told that "good time" will be deducted from his minimum sentence.

The story of the manner in which the board had decided on the new ruling had reached Anderson and the other convicts. It was revealed that before the October meeting formally was convened the three members discussed the merits of the proposed move. Chairman Benham and Dr. Larkin had decided that no "good time" should be allowed on minimum sentences of a year or less. Mr. Long, who automatically became a member of the board through his appointment by Governor Smith as Superintendent of Prisons was opposed to the ruling.

Chairman Benham and Dr. Larkin, it was pointed out, were Republicans, originally appointed by Governor Whitman in 1916, and reappointed at the expiration of their five-year term by Governor Miller. Mr. Long, a Democrat, originally had been appointed Deputy Superintendent of Prisons in the first administration of Governor Smith, who elevated him to the Superintendency two years ago.

The change in the rule in October, it was said, was not attended with anything like a heated discussion, nor was there much comment yesterday by the three members on the reversal of their previous action. Whether Superintendent Long in the October meeting voted against the change could not be learned, but it was said that the vote to restore the old rule was unanimous.

Anderson, who is a "floating teacher" in the eight classes maintained in the prison school for convicts lacking a fundamental education, was the first prisoner to be called before the board. Then the questions and answers in his petition for release were read. Among these Anderson made a negative reply to the question, "Have you a trade?" and in answer to another question, "Where would you go if paroled?" he wrote, "Rome, at 77 Van Cortlandt Park Avenue, Yonkers."

Anderson had written a lengthy reply to the question whether he had been offered employment in advance of his possible release, in which he explained that he had received "several tentative suggestions," but would be unable to make an "intelligent determination" on the proposals until he was in a position to investigate each of them.

"Are you temperate or intemperate?" was another question in the petition, to which he replied: "Abstainer."

The former dry leader then was questioned at length by each member of the board, it was reported, because of the following:

Q.—Where and when was the crime committed for which you are now imprisoned?

A.—I deny the commission of any crime. The act was in New York.

After giving a negative answer to the question "Did you plead guilty?" Anderson was requested, in the form, to give "a brief history with the particulars of the facts charged constituting the crime of which you have now been convicted."

His reply began with the statement that "it is a highly technical matter," and then in detail explained how he had ordered a transfer of a salary account to an expense account of one of the league employes on the books. Then he added:

"The testimony was undisputed that the so-called change was in accordance with the actual facts, and benefited instead of injuring the league; that there was no erasure or physical alteration of the books, no attempt to hide the matter, but merely statistical entries; that not a cent of money changed hands as a result of it, and that it did not change by a penny the amount the league paid or was liable to pay. There was not only no evidence of fraudulent intent but undisputed testimony to the contrary."

Anderson gave as references regarding his previous good conduct the Rev. O. F. Bartholomew, 114 South Eighth Avenue, Mount Vernon, the Rev. Charles R. Ross, Morris Street, Yonkers; Walter F. Haskett, General Secretary of the Yonkers Y. M. C. A., and the late Rev. John H. Exter of 401 East 141st Street, who died after Anderson had prepared the petition. The application was endorsed, under the prison rules regarding the good conduct of Anderson, by Warden Lawes, Principal Keeper McInerney, Professor M. J. Hensel, head of the prison school, and Dr. Amos O. Squire, head prison physician.

WEEKS GETS THREAT IN SLATTERY'S TRIAL

HEAVY GUARD CALLED OUT

Prosecution Closes Case, Judge Refuses to Dismiss and It May Go to Jury Today.

MINEOLA, L. I., Nov. 20.—On receipt of information today that "unless things look good for Slattery, something may happen," District Attorney Charles R. Weeks stationed twelve motorcycle policemen, eight uniformed deputy sheriffs, the county Police Chief, Sheriff and Under-Sheriff, and two State troopers under Sergeant John Buckley on guard in and around the court house here where the murder trial of John J. Slattery of Astoria, Queens, is under way before County Judge Lewis J. Smith and a jury.

Rough appearing men were seen in and near the court house, loitering in the halls and around the streets outside. Mr. Weeks said, and it was decided to take no chances of disorder, so they were ordered to keep moving.

The prosecution, after introducing several witnesses whose testimony was designed to link Slattery with the hold-up of the First National Bank of Bellmore last April 4, when Ernest L. Whitman of Patchogue, a bond salesman, was killed, rested its case. The defense immediately moved for a dismissal, but Judge Smith held it was for the jury to decide whether Slattery was a principal in the crime.

Slattery May Take Stand.

The case is expected to go to the jury late tomorrow, the defense taking most of the day for its testimony. Slattery himself probably will take the stand.

In its presentation of evidence today the State began with the introduction of telephone company records showing a call was made from the home of Frank Bergold, a Hicksville farmer, at 12:03 P. M. and other at 1:37 P. M. on April 4.

Mrs. Anna Bergold testified these calls were made by Slattery, but contended the first call was made after 12:30 P. M. There was a lengthy discussion between opposing counsel, as the State sought to show that Slattery had ample time to have made the call in Hicksville after leaving Bellmore in one of two automobiles used by the bank bandits. Miss Catherine Martin, a telephone operator, verified slips showing the times at which the calls were made.

Miss Margaret King testified she was on Cherry Street, Hicksville, at about 12:30 P. M. the day of the robbery and was forced to hurry out of the path of the bandit automobiles.

"They acted so crazy that I thought it was a run party," Miss King said.

Mrs. Anna Stolz of Hicksville told of having seen a fast-moving car stop near the Bergold place about 12:30 P. M. on the day of the robbery. Three men got out and two of them seemed to examine the motor as though it were giving them trouble. She was unable to identify Slattery as one of them.

Bergold Corroborates Wife.

Frank Bergold said he saw three men jump out of a Hudson car in front of his house on that date and one of them, Slattery, tried the self-starter, and then pushed the car into the yard. He corroborated the testimony of his wife. The two men then entered the house, he said.

"They showed quick action and looked pretty."

Benjamin Thairose of Manhattan testified that he sold a Ford car to Slattery and to Joseph Klavans for $75. Klavans is now in the Nassau County Jail awaiting trial on a first degree murder charge in connection with the death of Whitman and the bank hold-up.

Julius Presses, 602 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx, testified that he owned a Ford car with the same license number as that on the Buick car found in the possession of the alleged bank robbers.

John Fogarty, a private detective, formerly of the New York Police Department, said he talked with Slattery in the District Attorney's office at Mineola. He said he told Slattery how Thairose accused him of participating in the purchase of two automobiles, and Slattery replied that he did not know Thairose and would like to see him. Counsel asked Thairose, Fogarty said, Slattery denied Thairose's remark to him: "You know I was down in your place and you were present when we sold the Ford car."

"If I Go, I Won't Go Alone."

Fogarty said he told Slattery that Klavans would remember the incident, and Slattery replied:

"Say, ask him! That! Why, the first thing he would do would be to jump at my throat."

Fogarty said that as Slattery was leaving the room he said:

"If I go, I won't go alone."

On cross-examination Fogarty was asked: "Did you mean that, that Slattery said that?"

"You ask him. He is right there," replied the detective. "Ask Slattery yourself."

Counsel said that Slattery said it was not true.

"He knows it is true," said Fogarty.

GIVES MUSIC LESSON IN SUPREME COURT

Bourg, Who Insists He "Discovered" Argentino, Fights Tenor's Move to End Writ.

SINGER SAYS OPERA CALLS

Now Irons Shirts, but Declares He Has a Contract to Appear at the Metropolitan.

Giuseppe Argentino, Italian tenor, who is now employed as an ironer of shirts at 25 West Forty-eighth Street, appeared before Supreme Court Justice Delahanty yesterday seeking to have an injunction set aside which he alleged prevented him from carrying out a contract to sing at the Metropolitan Opera House.

The injunction was obtained last May by Giacomo Bourg, who asserts that he discovered and taught Argentino and that the young singer agreed not to appear except under his direction. When the case came up then before Justice Delatask, Argentino was not present, nor was his attorney, and an injunction pending the trial was granted by default. A motion made soon after to set aside the default was denied and Argentino found employment as a shirt ironer.

Among the singers who had heard Argentino and admired his voice was Jerome Uhl, a baritone. Uhl was on a concert tour in Italy when he read of the plight of the tenor. He immediately canceled his engagements, returned here and engaged a lawyer to bring action to release Argentino from the injunction.

When Bourg took the stand yesterday he illustrated how he had taught Argentino to sing. He sang in a low voice and marked time with both hands. He alone, he insisted, had been responsible for the success of the tenor. The discovery of Argentino's voice, he said, was in March, 1922. The contract to have the tenor sing under Bourg's direction was made nearly a year later. Argentino, booked through Bourg's offices, sang at the Town Hall late in 1922.

Bourg testified that he did not know just what the receipts were, but thought they were around $113. The tenor also sang for the Philharmonic Society of Philadelphia on Feb. 8, 1923. Bourg explained that he had difficulty in procuring other engagements for his protégé because Argentino was "only a student and not ready for public singing." He said he did not try for vaudeville engagements as these were not in the contract.

The trial will be continued today.

GERMANY CLEARS WAY FOR FRENCH TREATY

Agrees Not to Press Matter of 26 Per Cent. Tax in the Present Negotiations.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—The principal difficulties in the way of the Franco-German commercial accord have been removed with the decision of the German Government to dissociate the 26 per cent. recovery tax from the commercial treaty now being negotiated, it is learned today from a good source.

The German chief delegate, Dr. Trendelenburg, returned from Berlin and it is understood instructions which he received for his guidance in the negotiations which reopen tomorrow are of a more conciliatory nature than the first ones.

Ambassador von Hoesch today called twice on the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, holding two conversations with the under directors of foreign and commercial affairs and one with Premier Herriot. He explained that the German Government in no manner renounced contesting the French right to levy the 26 per cent. tax and reserved the right to protest. The Reichstag, he declared, might manifest by vote, if occasion presented, the profound discontent which application of the recovery act by France caused in Germany. At the same time he declared his Government would cease to tie up the commercial treaty with the tax question.

With the disjoining of the two questions and the cessation of the German effort to use the treaty as an instrument of pressure, it is considered here there is no insurmountable difficulty in the way of accord.

One of the first considerations of the French negotiations will be to obtain for Alsace Lorraine products most favorable treatment.

A general raising of nearly all French customs rates may result from various negotiations in which the Government is now engaged for the establishment of commercial exchange compacts with Belgium and Germany. This action will not be so much the result of negotiations with Germany as of the action of Belgium in raising rates on some 100 commodities of French origin.

The Minister of Commerce is expected to present the new tariffs in the Chamber this morning.

The Belgian action was directed primarily against Germany in continuation of the high tariff policy of before the war, but several articles exclusively of French origin are included in such a way as have made difficult all negotiations of a commercial accord on the old French tariff basis.

Lists of articles have been prepared on which tariffs may be raised and it is expected ratification of Parliament will be asked. American exporters to France will find themselves included in the general lists, though it is expected that the articles affected will not include many of American origin.

CROKER TAX CHARGE IS HEARD IN SECRET

EX-AGENT MADE COMPLAINT

Internal Revenue Bureau Will Present Its Side of the Situation Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Charges involving the tax paid on the estate of Richard Croker, former leader of Tammany Hall, were made this morning before the Couzens committee, which is investigating the Internal Revenue Bureau. George B. Walker, a former official of the bureau, submitted the charges. He was before the committee, which sat behind closed doors, for an hour. The Treasury Department will present its side of the case in executive session tomorrow.

Details of the charges were withheld, but it was announced that everything may be made public after officials of the bureau have completed their testimony. A report, which lacks official verification, is that the matter involves the authority of an Internal Revenue agent to open a safety deposit vault in West Palm Beach, Fla. The Walker charge, according to the story, is based on information which was presented in response to a Miami court order. The Treasury Department is understood to have taken the position that the information did not justify any official action.

"The committee met this morning for general business, but nearly its whole time was occupied in hearing the complaint of a former revenue agent, George B. Walker, concerning the handling of the estate tax of Richard Croker Sr.

"The exact nature of the complaint was not known to the committee and so as not to violate the law on the matter of publicity of returns, the committee held an executive session.

"Mr. Walker completed his statement and representatives of the Internal Revenue Bureau, who were present, asked until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning to complete their reply. It resolves itself into a controversy between a former revenue agent and the department heads, and the committee questions its right to give out the returns of the estate, but will, when the testimony is complete, determine whether it is legal to give it out. Nothing, therefore, can be said about the matter until the hearings are completed.

"The committee then discussed briefly the work that has been done on the investigation of the prohibition unit, and the attorneys were advised to put their report in writing for submission to the committee at a later meeting. There was no difference of opinion as to the work being done in the prohibition unit and the committee seemed satisfied with the method of procedure."

PLAN GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY.

The National Golden Rule Committee of the Near East Relief held a dinner last night at the Waldorf-Astoria to make final plans for the celebration of Golden Rule Sunday on Dec. 7. The people of the twenty-four countries will be asked to eat on that day one meagre meal such as is daily provided for the 47,000 orphans cared for by the Near East Relief and to contribute the difference in cost between this and the usual meal of the organization.

Dr. James L. Barton, Chairman of the Near East Relief, presided. Messages endorsing the plan were received from Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes, Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador at Washington, and Cleveland H. Dodge. Mrs. John D. Sherman, President of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, said in a speech: "Through our generosity the orphans of the Near East has been kept alive. We have given him life itself. In doing so we pledged ourselves to give him the means of supporting himself and of having some chance for the happiness we give our own children. It would have been more humane to have let him perish by the roadside if we did not intend to see him through to a useful citizenship." Other speakers were Charles M. Vickery, Dr. Albert Shaw, Sir Henry Lunn and Sir Willoughby Dickinson, a member of England's Privy Council. The speeches were broadcast throughout the United States.

BANK OPENS NEW HOME.

Bedecked with American and Italian flags, the Prisco State Bank at 200 Mulberry Street yesterday afternoon threw open the doors of its new marble structure, amid a colorful celebration. This included a blessing by Mgr. Joseph Silipigni of the Church of Our Lady of Pompeii, 203 Elisabeth Street, and songs by Feodor Chaliapin and Beniamino Gigli of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Police Commissioner Enright and Mrs. Enright were among the guests, and the Commissioner delivered an address. He told the gathering that Raffaele Prisco, President of the bank and a Chevalier of Honor in Italy, had worked in cooperation with the residents of the east side for twenty-five years, and that his new building was proof that the confidence of the investors of the bank had not been misplaced. The bank was opened in one room on the same spot twenty-five years ago.

SLAYER REPORTED IN ITALY.

Police Hear of Arrest of Man Wanted Here for Murder Feb. 25.

A world-wide search for Dominick Cerne of Woodhaven, Queens, indicted with Joseph Manzo of 136 Blake Street, Brooklyn, now held without bail in Queens County, on a charge of murder in connection with the killing on Feb. 25 last of Andrew Caltabelliotta of 1,549 Seventy-seventh Street, Woodhaven, has resulted in the arrest in Naples, Italy, of a man said by the Italian authorities to answer Cerne's description.

District Attorney Richard S. Newcombe and Captain Charles Carey of the Homicide Squad were notified yesterday that the man had been arrested about two weeks ago and was being held by the Naples police. As the Italian laws forbid the extradition of subjects, the trial, if held, will take place in Italy.

TUBERCULOSIS WORK DESCRIBED BY COLER

Yale Professor Tells Methods of Judging Hazard—Others Address City Conference.

"If persons who seek to stir up religious and racial animosities could see the complete harmony in which representatives of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish charitable organizations work in conjunction with the city authorities much of the 'fool propaganda would die down,'" Bird S. Coler, Commissioner of Public Welfare, said yesterday at the third annual meeting and luncheon of the New York City Tuberculosis Conference at the Hotel Biltmore.

"It is difficult today for the city to keep its tuberculosis hospitals filled with patients," Commissioner Coler said. "The death rates from tuberculosis are lowest in those communities which show the highest hospitalization.

"The bed capacity of city institutions for tuberculosis patients is 3,500. There are many patients with moderate means who are not strictly public charges but who are unable to pay the high rates charged by private institutions. It has been said that the rich and the very poor get the best care. I hope that something may be done for this middle class."

Commissioner Coler said the Sea View Hospital, which was subjected to much criticism a few years ago, had just been inspected by the State Health authorities, who had given it the highest possible rating.

Dr. C. E. A. Winslow, Professor of Public Health at Yale University, said he believed that posture was a neglected cause of tuberculosis and that a high percentage of clerks and telegraphers contracted the disease. Fatigue, bad ventilation and the problem of industrial dusts also had much to do with the malady, he said.

"Dust is a bad thing and also a good thing, Professor Winslow said. "It is only possible for us to see light through particles in the air, and a constant rain of dry dust comes into the atmosphere from the stellar spaces. We don't know much of many industrial dusts. Coal and cement dusts are responsible for much pneumonia and bronchial trouble, but for very little tuberculosis. Silica dust has been found to have a definite relation to tuberculosis.

"We cannot judge of the seriousness of the dust hazard by looking at a factory. We must examine the air and determine its dust content and then develop protective devices. Enclosed processes can be substituted for open ones, and wet processes for dry ones. Measures also can be taken for blowing out dangerous dusts."

Dr. Louis I. Harris, Director of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases of the Department of Health, said:

"There are about 44,000,000 wage-earners in the United States and in 1910 it is estimated, there were 70,000 deaths among them. By 1921 the number had been reduced to 54,000, but the rate continues to be high. The mortality rate from tuberculosis in the agricultural group is the goal toward which we should work. Seventy per cent. of the deaths among lace workers are due to tuberculosis and 63 per cent. of the deaths among spinners may be traced to the same cause.

"Should Manhattan become a great industrial centre by 1940 and residential life here be practically at an end, our plans would require concentration on industry. All in all, the combined work of all the agencies will be needed."

Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, Health Commissioner, was toastmaster. The other speakers were Dr. William H. Welch, Director of the School of Public Hygiene and Health, Johns Hopkins University, who spoke on the Milbank metropolitan health demonstration in the Bellevue-Yorkville district; Miss Annie W. Goodrich, Dean of the Yale School of Nursing; Dr. Livingston Farrand, President of Cornell University, who spoke on the Christmas seal campaign; Harry M. Hopkins, Director of the New York Tuberculosis Association, and Dr. Thomas J. Riley, its General Secretary.

Police Capture Boys Accused of Stealing Linen From Auto.

Three boys, who, according to the police, had stolen $250 worth of linen from an automobile, were captured last night after a chase, during which several shots were fired. They were Michael Della, 16 years old, 25 Bayard Street; Michael Lombardo, the same address, and Frank Desantis, 17 years old, 148 Seventy-fourth Street, Brooklyn. Desantis said that he was a professional boxer. They were charged with grand larceny.

Detective Howard O'Leary of the Bomb Squad said that he saw the boys take the linen from the automobile. It belonged to Beer Brothers, 601 East Broadway. As they started to flee O'Leary shouted to them to halt and, when they refused, he fired several shots. He caught two of them and Policeman Aldelman got the other. The linen was recovered.

DR. DAILEY IS ACQUITTED.

He Is Cleared of Killing Mrs. Manbeck in His Office at Harrisburg.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 20.—Dr. Cornelius M. Dailey of Harrisburg was acquitted today by a jury of the charge of killing Mrs. Alma Manbeck, found dead in his office on June 1. The defense contended that Mrs. Manbeck shot herself after having shot Dr. Dailey in the chest, while the prosecution charged that the doctor killed the woman and then shot himself.

The shooting, according to the evidence presented, occurred when Mrs. Manbeck went to the physician's office early in the morning, after, the defense claimed, she had threatened him because of his refusal to meet her the previous night.

FEARS DISTRUST OF CARNEGIE FUNDS

LAST YEAR BROKE RECORDS

Distribution Exceeded $13,000,000 —List of Grants From Money Left by Will.

A warning to the Carnegie Corporation is contained in the report of its President, Dr. Frederick P. Keppel, presented to the annual meeting of trustees yesterday, that "doubts as to the basic social utility" of organizations like theirs "have long existed." He says these doubts exist only in the minds of those not thoroughly familiar with the facts, but that public opinion should be enlisted and the people generally made to understand that the "organization does not regard itself as a dominating or patronizing force in carrying forward any particular program."

Among other facts brought out in the President's report was that the year ended Sept. 30, 1924, saw the largest distribution of funds in the history of the corporation, as it also saw the smallest amount of new obligation assumed by the organization. The year's disbursement as given in the report for work in the United States was $12,945,-419.10 and for work in Canada, $50,-386.29.

During the year the endowment of the Carnegie Corporation has been increased by $7,870,039.96 in partial payment of legacies from the Carnegie estate. On Oct. 1, 1924, the assets of the corporation stood at $133,656,024.17, of which $124,908,275.44 constituted the value of the original endowment and the remainder cash and securities accumulated out of income. The income of the corporation for the year amounted to $7,397,-714.13.

Policy of the Corporation.

In discussing the need for consulting public opinion in the work of the corporation, President Keppel's report said:

"While it would be exceedingly difficult and not particularly profitable to draw a hard and fast line between the diffusion of knowledge and the directing of opinion, it is clear on which side of the doubtful zone between the two the interest and the responsibility of the corporation should lie. The deliberate and conscious propagation of opinion is a perfectly legitimate function for the individual, but it is becoming generally recognized that it is not the wisest use to which trust funds can be put—and this entirely apart from the question whether, in any given case, those in charge of such funds may, as individuals, be sincerely and, even enthusiastically in favor of the spread of the idea in question. Surely, the discovery and distribution of facts from which men and women may draw their own conclusions offers a field, sufficiently wide and sufficiently vital to the welfare of humanity."

The list of those receiving large grants during the year is headed by the Carnegie Institute of Pittsburgh, which received the largest single grant in the history of the corporation, amounting to $16,327,676.23. Of this sum $8,000,000 was paid over to the Pittsburgh authorities in June, 1924. Other large grants upon which reports of progress are made, together with the amount of each grant, are as follows:

National Research Council and National Academy of Sciences, $5,000,-000; educational institutions in Eastern Canada, $3,000,000; Institute of Economics, $1,650,000; National Bureau of Economic Research, $150,000; Institute for Research in Land Economics and Public Utilities, $62,500; Food Research Institute, located at Stanford University, California, $704,000; American Law Institute, engaged in formulating a restatement of the law, $1,075,000; Johns Hopkins Medical School for an out-patient building and diagnostic clinic, $2,000,000; New York Academy of Medicine, $1,000,000.

American Library Association for general support and for the conduct of certain special activities, $164,100; Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, to aid in publishing an economic and social history of the World War, $350,000; Harvard University, for the training of personnel for museum service, $100,000; Institute of International Education, $182,500; Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, $108,000; University of California, for a study of pyorrhea and its possible relation to other human maladies, $85,000; National Institute of Public Administration, $40,000; Committee on Legal Aid Work, $85,000; Union University for the Albany Medical College, $52,500; Junior College, St. John's, Newfoundland, $75,000, and University of King's College, for endowment, $600,000 (part of $3,000,000 gift for education in Eastern Canada), and to various agencies for research in insulin, $43,000.

ARTS ACADEMY ELECTS.

Beveridge, Cortissoz, Hadley, Hazen and Metcalf Become Members.

Ossip Gabrilowitsch son-in-law of Mark Twain, played a selection from Beethoven. The chancellor announced the award to Walter Hampden of the Academy Gold Medal for good diction on the stage. It will be presented in February.

RIVER VICTIM IDENTIFIED.

Englishman Had Told Friends He Intended Ending Life.

The body of a man, identified as that of Reginald Doney, an Englishman, employed at the Riverview Garage, 721 West Eighty-seventh Street, was recovered last night by the marine police off Ninety-fifth Street in the Hudson River. Doney's coat, cap and overcoat were found yesterday morning on a pier at Ninety-sixth Street. He had recently met with financial reverses, according to friends.

A woman acquaintance told the police that on Sunday Doney told her that he was in trouble and contemplated ending his life. Doney had said that he had served in both American and British armies during the war.

2 LEAP FROM FIRE; MANY ARE RESCUED

COUPLE AROUSE SLEEPERS

Dr. Selma Saxon, a dentist, and his wife were severely injured yesterday morning when fire drove them from their apartment, on the fourth floor of 25 West Eighty-first Street, forcing them to leap two stories to a balcony below. Firemen rescued a score of other residents of the house.

The fire started just after 8 o'clock, apparently in a dumbwaiter shaft. It was discovered by Mrs. Henry Van Bousen, occupying a third floor apartment, when she went to get the morning's milk from the shaft and found it in flames.

Aided by her husband, a motion picture actor, Mrs. Van Bousen went from door to door rousing occupants of the other apartments. But when they tried to get above the third floor they found the hallway ablaze, and dense clouds of smoke fanned by a back draught drove them back.

Meanwhile, Miss Dorothy O'Dell, who with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Olin O'Dell, and their two children, lives on the ground floor, turned in the automatic alarm. The arrival of the fire apparatus was the first intimation that any one on the top floor had that there was a fire.

Hearing the fire bells outside, Dr. and Mrs. Saxon donned some clothes and ran to the door of their apartment. They found the hallway was like a furnace, and volumes of smoke sweeping into the apartment forced them to run to the windows. They called to firemen for help, but before a ladder could be put in position they climbed out on the window ledge and jumped.

Instead of landing directly on the balcony they fell against the stone railing. Both received internal injuries, and Mrs. Saxon broke a rib, while her husband fractured his right foot. They were taken to Bellevue Hospital in the Fire Department ambulance and were reported improving last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Munson in a fourth floor rear apartment also had narrow escapes. Firemen Harrington, Delfield and Doyle of Hook and Ladder 25 found them overcome by smoke in their apartment and carried them down an extension ladder to the street. Here they were revived by Dr. Harry Archer of the Fire Department.

Firemen also took charge of the removal of occupants of the lower floors. Among these were Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Larsen, Fred Hutchins, Albert Lejeune, Miss Florence Reed and Miss Alice Williams.

The only fatality reported was a Pekinese dog belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Munson, which was burned to death. The total damage was estimated at $25,000.

GUILD TO HOLD RECEPTION.

Opera Singers to Be Guests of Catholic Writers on Sunday.

The Catholic Writers' Guild will hold a reception at the Plaza on Sunday evening for representative leaders in the arts, music and literature. Principals of the Metropolitan Opera Company will be the guests of honor, and some of them have consented to sing.

The Rev. John B. Kelly, director of the guild, in charge of the affair, said that among those who will attend are Lucrezia Bori, Rosa and Carmella Ponselle, Charlotte Ryan, Henriette Wakefield, Frances Peralta, Giovanni Martinelli, Allesandro Bonci, Miguel Fleta, Giuseppe de Luca, Carl Schlegel, Clarence Whitehill, Paul Bender, William Gustafson and Leon Rothier.

Other guests will include Guiseppe Danies, Giuseppe Bamboschek, James Wolfe, Carlo Edwards, Paolo Ananian, Armand Tokatyan, Benar Barzelay, Erno Balogh, Major Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, Brig. Gen. Michael J. Lenihan, Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, Brig. Gen. Peter Traub and Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett.

Otto H. Kahn, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and a member of the Honorary Committee of the Guild, will speak on "Music as a Contribution to National Harmony." It is hoped that Patrick Cardinal Hayes will be able to attend.

LITERARY DIGEST POLL.

The Literary Digest, which was accused of partisanship in conducting its poll during the campaign, in its issue this week compares the actual results with its poll.

The poll indicated that Coolidge would have 379 electoral votes, Davis 139 and La Follette 13, whereas the election gave Coolidge three more than the poll, Davis three less and La Follette the predicted 13.

The poll gave Coolidge 56.30 per cent. of the votes, which proved 1.29 per cent. too much; La Follette 21.31 per cent., which was an overestimate by 5.57 per cent., and Davis 21.15 per cent., which was an underestimate by 7.67.

That La Follette's total would be less than the poll indicated was not a surprise because the poll itself showed a strong drift away from La Follette in the last few weeks. This shift generally went to the benefit of Davis. According to observers in the South, Coolidge received an undue proportion of the Southern votes, because many negroes "voted in The Digest," but were disfranchised at the polls.

FILM TO SHOW THE HOATZIN

"Missing Link" Bird Will Be Exhibited at Beebe Lecture Tomorrow.

The first films of the hoatzin, the "missing link" bird over whose classification naturalists have disputed for decades, will be exhibited at Town Hall on Saturday night, when William Beebe, the scientist, will lecture on the work of the New York Zoological Society's Tropical Research Station at British Guiana.

The young hoatzins have claws on their wings and climb like the lizards from which they are descended. They have maintained themselves without change through millions of years because they have no competition in the struggle for existence and have a perfect defense against their enemies. They have no competition because they feed on food which no other bird will touch, and they have no assailants because their powerful odor routs hawks and eagles.

CITY BREVITIES.

Dr. G. de la Jarrie will lecture on "France in the Pacific" at the French Institute, 599 Fifth Avenue, next Tuesday at 8 P. M.

The forty-fourth annual entertainment and reception of the New York Telegraphers' Aid Society for the benefit of its relief fund, will be held at Terrace Garden next Friday evening. There will be dancing and a vaudeville bill.

The English-Speaking Union will give a dinner at the Plaza Hotel in honor of Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador, Tuesday, Dec. 2. George W. Wickersham, Dr. Frank Arsdelotte and the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman will speak.

A remembrance dance for the benefit of the service work of the Entertainers' Unit, Women's Overseas Service League, will be held in the Astor Galleries of the Waldorf next Monday evening. There will be mah jong and bridge games.

ATTACK KOSHER LAW IN SUPREME COURT

STATUTE DECLARED VAGUE

Attorney General Sherman and District Attorney Banton Will Defend It.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (Associated Press).—The constitutionality of the kosher law of New York which regulates the sale of kosher meat in that State, was attacked in arguments today before the Supreme Court. Only a brief statement of counsel representing those attacking the law was possible, however, as the three cases, which have been brought by the Hygrade Provisions Company, the Lewis Fox Company and Harry Satz, were not reached until just before the court adjourned for the day.

The statute was enacted in 1922 and requires those who offer kosher meat, meat products and meat preparations to label such products with four-inch signs, stating that the meat is kosher. When sellers of kosher meat and meat products handle other kinds of meat, that which is not kosher must be marked "non-kosher." The original kosher law of New York was enacted in 1915, and although amended by the law in 1922 it is also under attack.

In his statement to the court today David L. Podell, counsel for the complainants, explained that the State had described kosher meat as that sanctioned by the orthodox Hebrew religious requirements. This offered no reasonable, ascertainable standard, he said, to be used by the law-enforcing officers. No one can tell, he asserted, what is meant by orthodox Hebrew religious requirements so far as meats are concerned. The law being vague, uncertain and indefinite, he contended, the courts must hold it unconstitutional. He added:

"For the first time, as far as we have been able to discover, this law attempts by reference to orthodox Hebrew religious requirements to incorporate into the laws of New York the whole mass of Hebrew religious law which is the accumulation of thirty centuries, replete with ecclesiastical meaning and controversy, differing with different nationalities, with different conditions and with different centuries. Some of this ancient religious law is still in force, other parts are not."

Justice Holmes interrupted to ask whether it was not perfectly well known what kosher means. Adjournment of the court prevented Mr. Podell from completing his reply, but he did say that forbidden animals under orthodox Hebrew religious requirements can be determined with reasonable certainty, and that the method of slaughter could be determined with a fairly reasonable degree of certainty. But that, he contended, was only the beginning in the determination of what is kosher.

The parts of the meat that may be used, the method of transportation, the piety of the individual who sells the kosher meat, were important factors, among others, which entered into the determination of the question, he said.

Attorney General Sherman of New York and District Attorney Banton of New York County, who are defending the law, declared in their briefs, and will support in oral argument tomorrow, that the law is clearly within the police powers of the State, is not an interference with interstate commerce, as complainants allege in their brief, and was specifically drawn to prevent fraud.

They insist that the law is sufficiently definite to be easily understood and followed, and deny that the complainants have any standing in the controversy warranting them at this time to challenge the constitutionality of the statute.

When the case was in the Federal District Court of New York City the complainants were denied an injunction to restrain the enforcement of the statute, and their suits were dismissed.

Justice Brandeis, who is of the Hebrew religion, withdrew from the bench when the cases were called, and will not participate in the decision of the Court.

EX-CONGRESSMAN'S SON IS SLAIN BY WIDOW

Lebanon (Tenn.) Woman Says She Shot Paul Patterson After Warning Him to Stay Away.

LEBANON, Tenn., Nov. 20.—Mrs. Pearl Baskin, a widow, is under arrest here today as the result of the fatal shooting at her home last night of Paul Patterson, 21 years old, of Springfield, Mo., a law student of Cumberland University and son of a former member of Congress from Missouri. Patterson died of two bullet wounds at a hospital three hours after going to Mrs. Baskin's home. Hospital officials said that he declined to make a statement.

According to the police, Mrs. Baskin said that she had warned Patterson to stay away from her home, and that when he went there last night she fired two shots. The wounded youth was found on a near-by street by R. H. Swann, who is reported to have said that he and Patterson had been together earlier in the night and had purchased a half pint of whisky. He was held as a material witness. They were not together at the time of the shooting, he said.

Mrs. Baskin turned over to the authorities a small pistol from which two shots had been fired.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 22.—Paul Patterson, who was shot and killed at Lebanon, Tenn., last night, was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe C. Patterson. Mr. Patterson is a prominent criminal lawyer and served one term as Republican representative in Congress from the Seventh District.

CAN SELL THE POWER FROM MUSCLE SHOALS

Federal Government Already Has Authority, Army Law Department Rules.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The Government, through the President, has the authority to sell power developed by Wilson Dam at Muscle Shoals, according to a decision of the Judge Advocate General of the Army, it was announced today by Secretary Weeks.

Owing to the increased interest which has become manifest in the question, with the time approaching when the huge undertaking will be complete, the Secretary requested the legal experts of the department for an opinion. In the event authority had been lacking it would have been necessary for Congress to pass a special resolution and in any case it is expected that Congress will be asked to make suitable provisions in the matter.

The minimum power expected to be developed by Wilson Dam, which will be completed about July 1, is 100,000 horsepower. It will range considerably above that figure at times, depending upon prevailing conditions.

		Number	Double-Faced List Price
The Sweetest Story Ever Told (Stult) / Ma Curly-headed Bobby (Pumpkin Time) (Clutsam)	Hulda Lashanska / Hulda Lashanska	1044	$1.50

A love song dear to thousands in the English-speaking world for its quaint charm and age-old sentiment; and a love song of a different type—the crooning of a mammy of the old South to her little one.

La alegria del Batallón (The Joy of the Regiment) (Gomez) In Spanish / Tristes Amores (Love's Dirge) (Chopin) In Spanish	José Mardones / José Mardones	921	1.50

The Spanish zarzuela, or musical comedy, always has stirring music. Here is a jovial bass song from a famous one, rich, powerful, yet smooth, with wholesome laughter. The companion song, to the violin, flute and piano, is in graver mood.

Concert Songs

Punchinello (Wenhart-Molloy) / Shipmates o' Mine (Tschaikowsky-Sanderson)	Royal Dadmun / Royal Dadmun	45455	1.00

Drifting to You / At the End of the Sunset Trail	Marcia Freer-Lewis James	19483	.75

These artists team together agreeably in songs of youth and love-sentiment, of which these are two of the most recent ones. The first is in waltz time and has pleasant harmonies.

Everybody Loves My Baby / De Clouds Are Gwine to Roll Away (with violin, guitar, harmonica, violin)	Aileen Stanley / Vernon Dalhart	19486	.75

Dance Records

Go, Emmaline—Fox Trot / Words—Fox Trot	The Benson Orchestra of Chicago	19484	.75

Splendid "all-purpose" fox trots, not noisy but full of character notwithstanding. The first has odd moments here and there, and fine piano work. The second is light, cheerful and melodious.

Have a Little Fun—Fox Trot / Out of a Million You're the Only One—Fox Trot (with vocal refrain)	Waring's Pennsylvanians / Waring's Pennsylvanians	19471	.75

Vigorous and strong-toned fox trots. In the first the old "round" of childhood days, "Three Blind Mice," appears in the middle of a modern fox trot. The second ends like a brass-band number, with a specially powerful climax.

Until Tomorrow—Tango Fox Trot / Clovita—Tango Fox Trot (with vocal refrain)	International Novelty Orchestra	19485	.75

Favorite Irish Jigs—Medley "Dublin Jig"—"Geese in the Bog"—"Connaughman's Rambles" / Favorite Irish Reels—Medley "The Old Town Fettoset"—"Off to Dublin"—"The Boys of Laragh"	McConnell's Four Leaf Shamrocks	19446	.75

Two excellent specimens of the traditional music of Ireland—the jigs and reels that are the expression of the irrepressible spirit of the Gael. Authoritatively rendered by violin, piccolo and piano.

PARTNERS ADVISED FLIGHT, SAYS RAYNOR

Indicted Broker Tells on Stand About His Wanderings and Surrender.

SAYS HE LIED TO REFEREE

Declares in Silkworth Trial That He Was Afraid to Tell the Truth.

DeWitt C. Raynor, head of the bankrupt brokerage concern of Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell, who pleaded guilty to an indictment charging fraudulent use of the mails, continued his testimony yesterday before Federal Judge A. N. Hand and a jury. Among the defendants is William S. Silkworth, former President of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, the members of the Raynor firm and of the defunct curb firm of McQuade Brothers.

Raynor pleaded guilty and is being used by the Government in an effort to convict eight other defendants. So far Raynor has shown that he conducted many of the transactions which led to the indictments, including wholesale bucketing of customers' orders. When the irregularities were about to come out Raynor fled from the city. In telling of this flight Raynor sought yesterday to make it appear that his partners, Elaine J. Nicholas and Earl H. Truesdell, urged him to flee on the plea that he had only a wife, while the other two had wives and children.

The Raynor firm failed in May, 1922, and when an inquiry into the failure began, Raynor's testimony ran, Truesdell met him in a restaurant and talked to him so convincingly, the witness said, that he agreed to run away. It was arranged, he said, that during his absence Nicholas or Truesdell, or both, were to pay his wife $25 a week.

Surrendered at New Orleans.

Raynor said he went to Colorado, then to California and finally to Cuba, where he learned that he had been indicted. He then returned to New Orleans, where he notified the local Sheriff that he was wanted by the Federal authorities. He was locked up until officials arrived and brought him back to this city. Besides running away to save his partners, the witness testified, he also made an affidavit that he was responsible for whatever wrong his firm had committed. This affidavit, he explained, was made at the suggestion of Nicholas, who saw that it was mailed to Robert P. Levis, an attorney. In this letter Raynor said, he declared that because of the publicity attendant upon the failure of his firm it would be impossible for him to earn a living here.

William C. Fitts, counsel for Nicholas, asked the witness if he had not been trying to beat people for a long time, and Raynor replied: "I'm trying to beat you now."

Raynor said that he had determined to tell the truth, even if he had not told it when he testified before Harold P. Coffin, the referee, who conducted the inquiry into the bankruptcy. Raynor also explained that his reason for telling the truth now is because he wants to serve whatever sentence may be imposed upon him, and get it over with. When efforts were being made to save the brokerage concern of R. H. McMaster & Co. from bankruptcy, Raynor's firm contributed $10,000 to the fund, the witness testified.

During the examination of the witness, the fact, established at the bankruptcy hearings, that an attempt had been made to destroy order cards stored in a Brooklyn warehouse was touched upon and Raynor said that the night before his firm failed he and his partners destroyed part of the firm's records.

Worked for Jones & Baker.

Replying to a question by Abel I. Smith, counsel for Truesdell, the witness said that at one time he was an employe of Jones & Baker and of Hughes & Dier, two other brokerage concerns that have gone into bankruptcy.

Early in 1922, Raynor said, the firm encountered hard sledding and in spite of bucketing was being pushed to the brink of failure. When bank loans or other aid could not be obtained, he said, the accounts were sold out.

"You were fighting for your life, weren't you?" Mr. Smith asked.

"Yes, fighting for the business," replied Raynor.

When the witness was taken back to his flight, in the wilds of Colorado, he said, he lived in a cabin and was known by the name of Horn. He worked in a mine. In California he worked for the brokerage concern of J. H. Corbin & Co., in Los Angeles. In Cuba he lived under the name of Robert Kirkham. Asked if he had received a promise of immunity if he pleaded guilty and turned upon his associates, Raynor gruffly replied: "That's a blanked lie."

Judge Hand looked severely at the witness, who mumbled an apology. Concerning conflicting statements by the witness when testifying before the referee and his testimony in court, Raynor frankly admitted that he lied while answering questions before the referee. He excused himself by saying that he was seeking to avoid criminal prosecution. Raynor had stated that Referee Coffin had threatened him by telling him that he would soon be in Halifax. Raynor said that Mr. Coffin did not explain this remark, but that it frightened him so that he was afraid to tell the truth. Philip C. Samuels, counsel for Silkworth, asked the witness where in the record the remark appeared. Prosecutor Peter J. McCoy objected but later conceded that it was not in the record. Replying to a question by a juror Raynor said he did not remember whether the remark was made before, during, or after the hearing. The trial will be continued today.

FEAR CROP LOSS UP-STATE.

Farmers Say There Will Be a Water Famine If Cold Keeps Up.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 20.—New York State farmers, who had already suffered considerable loss through the freezing of crops in the recent cold spell, are predicting further losses and danger of water famine, according to reports received here. It was explained that the ground was thoroughly dried out before the cold wave came and that freezing of the soil has prevented storage of the usual quantity of water. With wells and cisterns at less than half normal capacity, it was said, the situation might become acute if the cold weather continues, because water from any rains that might now fall would flow away over the frozen ground. Ponds and streams in many sections are coated with ice an inch or more in thickness, and in the northern sections of the State it is expected skating will be good by the end of the week, provided the cold continues.

Reports from the Weather Bureau indicate the drought which preceded the cold wave may be blamed for the sudden drop in temperature. It was explained the drought had dried the air, giving the New York area the climatic conditions of a mountain top, which is liable to sudden changes in temperature. Due to the drought, too, the banks of fog and moisture which usually protect the lowlands were missing, and consequently the cold set in with unusually severe effect.

Invest At Home

They may all be good and flourishing cities, but there ought to be enough money in each one of them to finance investments that deserve to be financed there.

New Yorkers should invest in New York, and the fact that the interest rate is a little less is simply a proof that the investment is a safer one and mortgage loans can be secured at a lower rate.

The Mortgages and Mortgage Certificates issued by the Title Guarantee and Trust Company and guaranteed by the Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company cover property right here where you can investigate it to the very bottom and the guarantee that you will never lose a dollar accompanies each investment.

Good Typography

From "GOOD WILL," published by The Kalkhoff Company, New York City

GOOD TYPOGRAPHY might at first glance seem to be no concern of the newspaper or magazine that is paid to publish an advertisement. Yet there are certain publications that refuse point-blank to print an advertisement that does not come up to certain typographic standards.

One such publication is The New York Times. We have before us the latest edition of their book of regulations governing the use of type and cuts. A large part of our readers doubtless know of these regulations and know that it is impossible to get into The Times with an ugly type display or an engraving with poor printing qualities

Why does The New York Times make these regulations? The obvious answer is that they do not want the appearance of their advertising pages messed up. But the real reason goes deeper than this. It must make itself as profitable a medium as possible to those who use its services. The Times has done many things to make itself a forceful advertising medium, and not the least of these has been its effort to make its advertising as effective typographically as possible. The prestige of The Times as an advertising vehicle is only one more proof that better typography brings better results.

PHONE CO. DEFIES JERSEY OFFICIALS

MAY BLOCK RISE IN RATES

Public Utility Commission Is Expected to Reject New York Company's Request.

The refusal of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company to comply with a request for information concerning rates and costs of construction is expected appreciably to influence the State Board of Public Utility Commissioners in passing on the New York Telephone Company's application for permission to increase its rates in New Jersey.

A letter embodying the refusal was read to the commission at the continued hearing on the application here yesterday. It was signed by Charles M. Bracelen, Vice President of the A. T. and T. and was addressed to Charles T. Russell, general counsel for the New York company.

The commission's request for the information, which was needed to assist commission experts who are studying the applicant's financial condition, was conveyed to Mr. Bracelen through Mr. Russell. Its precise nature is not known, but it is understood that it asked for facts concerning the A. T. and T.'s rates and other operating and construction figures. Mr. Bracelen stated that the information would not be supplied the commission because he and other A. T. and T. officials could not see that it had any bearing on the New York Company's application.

Members of the commission asked Frankland Briggs, who is presenting the evidence for the telephone company, if they were to regard Mr. Bracelen's reply as final and irrevocable. Mr. Briggs said he saw no other light in which it could be construed. Mr. Briggs was then told that the commission would consequently be forced to adopt either drastic means of compelling informa- and T. to furnish the desired information or a policy which would react to the company's disadvantage.

After the rearing Fred A. Osborne, President of the board, refused to disclose the nature of the policy.

WHOLESALE PRICES HIGHER IN OCTOBER

Most Notable Increase Over Those for September Was in Farm Products.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—A sharp upturn in October of wholesale prices is reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor, based on information gathered in leading markets. The bureau's weighted index number, which is computed from 404 price series, rose to 151.9 in October, compared with 148.8 in September, against 100 in 1913, the base year used in framing the index.

Farm products showed the largest increases over September prices, the rise in the group being 4¼ per cent. Among articles increasing considerably in price were wheat, rye, oats, barley, cattle, hogs, sheep, eggs, flaxseed, tobacco and wool. Articles showing decreases were corn, hay, hogs, onions, peanuts and potatoes. Foods, due to advancing prices of butter, coffee, flour, lard, sugar and most animal and vegetable oils, averaged about 2½ per cent. higher than in September. Other groups showing increases were cloths and clothing, chemicals and drugs, and miscellaneous commodities, including such important articles as cattle feed, leather, paper and pulp, hemp, jute, lubricating oil, manila rope and rubber.

In the three groups of fuel and lighting materials, metals and house furnishing goods, prices in October averaged lower than in the month before. In the group of building materials, no change in the general price level was reported.

Of the 404 commodities or price series for which comparable data for the two months were collected, increases were shown in 152 instances and decreases in 97 instances. In 155 instances no change in the general level was reported.

Using 100 as the base index number for prices in 1913, the following table of the index numbers of wholesale prices by groups of commodities shows how they have risen since 1913:

Group.	Oct. 1923.	Sept. 1924.	Oct. 1924.
Foods	148.5	147.1	151.6
Cloths and clothing	198.7	196.5	198.4
Fuel and lighting	171.7	168.0	162.1
Metals and metal prod.	141.8	128.2	127.2
Building materials	182.2	170.7	170.7
Housefurnishing goods	182.7	171.1	171.0
Miscellaneous	110.7	115.8	1?0.8
All commodities	153.1	148.8	151.9

Comparing prices in October with those of a year ago, as measured by changes in the index number, it is seen that the general level has slightly decreased. In the groups of farm products, foods and chemicals and drugs, prices averaged considerably higher than in October, 1923, while in the groups of cloths and clothing, fuel and lighting, metals, building materials and house furnishing goods they were lower. Practically no change is shown for the group of miscellaneous commodities.

JEWS FIGHT SEGREGATION.

National Council Seeks to End Discrimination in Western Schools.

The Board of Managers of the National Council of Jewish Women concluded yesterday its four-day meeting at the Hotel Biltmore with the adoption of an enlarged program for the coming year. Chief among the appropriations were $50,000 for work among immigrants and $30,000 for educational and social welfare work in the rural districts.

It was said that the rural work would be greatly extended, as field workers had found that educational conditions in many districts were bad. In some schools, it was pointed out, Jewish children were segregated and otherwise discriminated against. A telegram was read from Miss Anne Brenner, field worker of the National Council in Michigan, in which she alleged that Jewish children were segregated along with colored children in the schools of Benton Harbor, Mich. Mrs. Leo H. Herz of New York was appointed National Chairman of Rural Work.

Other executives chosen yesterday included Miss Florina Lasker, Chairman of Immigration, and three new directors, Miss Sara X. Schaffenels of New York, Mrs. Julius Eisemann of Toronto and Mrs. Samuel J. Rosensohn of New York.

The board adopted a resolution endorsing the World Court as proposed. It was decided to hold the next triennial meeting of the delegate body of the National Council in Washington, D. C., in November, 1926. The Board of Managers will meet next November in this city.

TWO FACE CHECK CHARGE.

Robert Kiel, assistant paying teller of the Forty-second Street branch of the National City Bank, and William H. Emery were held in $2,000 bail each yesterday by United States Commissioner Boyle to answer a charge of conspiring to rob the bank of $2,750 by means of a forged check.

The check was drawn by "Abie's Irish Rose, Inc., Anne Nichols," and made payable to Howard A. Martin. Emery is charged with having presented the check for payment.

Just 70 miles above Tampa, on railway and paved highway, I have 39,140 acres of good agricultural land for $15.00 per acre. State Road No. 5, completed through the tract, is on the shortest line between Tampa and the center of population of the United States and is destined to become the main artery of traffic into Florida.

This land would, I think, be cheap at $35.00 per acre.

It will probably sell this winter at $30.00 per acre.

If conditions do not change, it can certainly be resold this season for $25.00 per acre.

And the man who buys now for $15.00 per acre—$160,000 down payment—should make $400,000 quick profit on his investment.

Twelve years' experience in the land business in South Florida has taught me that the peak of excitement in land sales occurs in March and April. There has never been a time in the last 12 years that a tract of land would fail to bring at least half again as much in March as it cost in the fall. It has always been a safe speculation even in the dullest years, to buy in October and November for resale in the late spring.

The present season will be no exception. As active as Florida land sales now are, you will see a market many times as active next spring. Only a world catastrophe can prevent it, and world conditions, especially continental conditions on which our prosperity so much depends, are getting better every day.

The attention of the whole country is on Florida. Irresistibly drawn by our mild, even climate, wealthy visitors have for years wintered there in increasingly larger numbers.

It now seems to have occurred to all of them at once that Florida, besides being an attractive place to winter, is a desirable place of year-round residence for the man of moderate means and offers many opportunities to such a man for making a comfortable living.

For farsighted land speculators of big means are scrambling for well-located acreage, evidently in anticipation of a country-wide movement to Florida.

The constitutional amendment against state and inheritance taxes recently adopted by Florida may have some bearing. But in my opinion the main attraction is the quick profits.

During 1923 and 1924 a client acquired, from the owners who had held the land for 30 years, about 16,000 acres at a cost of around $150,000.

In September 1924 I sold it for him for $450,000. In October, 1924, I sold 4,060 acres of it for the new owner for $471,000.

So the new owner has now sold enough to pay for his land, and has 12,000 acres left, for which, on the present market he can get probably $700,000.

And the purchaser of the 4,060 acres can, in my opinion, subdivide and sell out, in small tracts this coming winter, for perhaps two million dollars.

This is an illustration of the unusual land market that exists in Florida to-day. It is the result, I think, of a growing country-wide realization of the charm of Florida, and of the stability of her agriculture and industries. Everybody wants to come to Florida, and even those who can't want a small tract of Florida land.

For twelve years I have been in the land business in Florida. For six years I have been exclusively in the wholesale land business, in Tampa. Since September 10th I have sold probably $3,000,000 of acreage. And I feel it is an assured fact that after the next six weeks there will be no opportunity to buy any of the big, desirable, well-located South Florida tracts from first hands at rock bottom.

In view of the present great interest in Florida, it is in my opinion very unlikely that there will be any recession from present values. The development of Florida is now too varied to be affected adversely by anything short of a world calamity.

But whatever may happen, the purchaser of a well located tract of good Florida land, from the saw-mill operators who assembled it, can turn it at a good profit at any time in the future that he may offer it.

I am certain of it.

This 39,120-acre tract of high-rolling land in Citrus County offers what I regard as a sure profit at $15.00 an acre. It is the genuine Norfolk fine sand with a clay subsoil. Good orange and grape land. Well adapted to the growing of melons and tomatoes. It has been in the hands of the present owners for more than 30 years.

It can be bought now for $15.00—$160,000 down. It can never be worth less than that, and I believe it will sell in March for $25.00, possibly $35.00, or even $50.00 an acre.

In regard to this as being, in a world that is, at best, uncertain, the surest, safest investment possible—the purchase of a tract of good land, in a fast growing section of a fast growing state, at the very rock bottom price.

If you have the available funds to swing this bargain, 'phone me for an appointment and let me show you a map of this property.

S.S. "RELIANCE" CHARTERED BY RAYMOND-WHITCOMB

Transatlantic Service in Caribbean Waters

In chartering the "Reliance" for three cruises to the West Indies, Raymond-Whitcomb have introduced into these perennially popular winter vacation voyages a new feature that is of paramount importance to the traveler. For almost the first time in the history of West Indies cruises they offer cruises on a great ocean liner that was built especially for warm climates—an arrangement so obviously requisite that it is difficult to believe that in a dozen years of West Indies cruises operated by half a dozen travel or steamship companies it was scarcely ever accomplished until this year.

The Raymond-Whitcomb Cruise-Liner S. S. "Reliance" of the United American Lines was especially designed and built for voyages to South America and for temperatures which range from the cold winds of the North Atlantic to the soft, warm breezes along the equator. She meets perfectly the climatic conditions of the West Indies cruises—the departure from New York in the heart of winter and the warm days and nights off Cuba, Trinidad and Panama. In this essential fitness for the voyage the "Reliance" is quite alone among the ocean liners announced for West Indies cruises this winter.

A Ship for Cold or Hot Weather

There are glass enclosed decks and palm gardens and steam heat in the staterooms and the handsome public rooms for cool days; generously spacious decks and an open-air swimming pool for warm weather. An elaborate system of vacuum-and-pressure ventilation insures cool fresh air in all the rooms all the time. Add to this unusual preparedness for the journey from winter to summer which is one of the chief delights of a West Indies cruise, the great size and the palatial furnishings of the "Reliance" and one reason for the popularity of the Raymond-Whitcomb cruises is clear.

The "Reliance" is not only the most perfectly equipped liner to make a West Indies cruise; she is also the largest. She measures 617 feet in length (long as a city block), 72 feet in beam and her size is reckoned at 20,000 registered tons. Five circuits of the Promenade Deck are a mile. Only a fraction of the ship's complement of passengers will be carried on this cruise and only two persons will be placed in a cabin. There will be ample room everywhere on the ship, indoors or out, and the landings will go rapidly and smoothly.

Most Popular Among Travelers

Probably there is no ship in service today that is so cordially liked by those who have sailed on her as the "Reliance" and the sister ship, "Resolute." In spite of their great size and the hotel-like completeness of their appointments, these two ships, with their remarkably efficient steward service, have thoroughly endeared themselves to hundreds of travelers who know them and delight in sailing on one or the other again and again. Raymond-Whitcomb already have run the "Resolute" twice around the world and the "Reliance" to South America and the Mediterranean, and have been pleasantly impressed at the number of persons who have picked them out season after season, just as they stop regularly at a favorite hotel in New York, London or Paris.

This year Raymond-Whitcomb have the "Reliance" for three West Indies cruises (visiting Bermuda, Panama, Venezuela, Colombia and Cuba and half a dozen other Antillean islands), and the "Resolute" for a cruise completely around South America. Many travelers who have sailed on them before under the Raymond-Whitcomb flag have already signed up for these new cruises in such numbers that it would seem as if the ships appealed to them almost equally with the routes themselves. Well they might, for both are superb, modern liners, of recent construction, of American ownership and management, but foreign registry (an ideal combination in these days), exceptionally adapted for tropical and semi-tropical service—far and away the best liners sailing southward from New York, whether on special cruises or regular South American or Caribbean voyages.

Three Midwinter Cruises Arranged on New Plan

All Shore Excursions Included in Cruise Rate

"Ho for the Spanish Main!"—for these brilliantly blue seas and palm-shaded shores that Columbus and Cortez knew, where Drake and Hawkins fought and plundered, where Henry Morgan, the pirate-governor, and swarthy Blackbeard did robbery and murder. Foreign as Europe, differing widely one from another in natural aspect, races, cities and customs, yet only three days out of New York, they are the ideal region for a winter vacation. And a cruise in a specially chartered steamship, following a route carefully planned to include the "high spots," with frequent stops and drives and trips ashore, is the one satisfactory way to see them.

Raymond-Whitcomb Plan

Raymond-Whitcomb have operated more such cruises on specially chartered ships than any other travel company. Those planned for the coming winter bear convincing witness to their thorough knowledge and unrivalled experience. Two cruises cover the entire Caribbean and visit coral Bermuda as well. In 26 days they visit 15 ports, which include not only the Greater Antilles and the Windward and the Leeward Islands, but such mainland shores as Colombia, Venezuela and Panama. The very names paint pictures of entrancing tropical beauty and exotic scenes, of evoke memories of historic events and famous names that range from Columbus "Admiral of the Ocean," to Goethals and Gorgas in our own time. Both cruises will be on the "Reliance."

Shore Excursions Included in Price

A new Raymond-Whitcomb feature this year, which is unique in the Raymond-Whitcomb West Indies cruises, is that from start to finish all the shore excursions with their generous provision for sightseeing, are included in the price of the cruise. No other cruises making the complete round of the Caribbean do this. At all the West Indian ports are certain things that practically every traveler wishes to do and see. But the cruise passenger does not want to be obliged to make his own arrangements after he gets ashore. It would eat into his brief time and it is likely to be inconvenient, and in these strange cities, with unfamiliar languages, expensive. Hence all this has been made an integral part of the Raymond-Whitcomb cruises. The cruise price includes all the excursions ashore, drives, automobile trips and trips by special train. There are no extras.

The two longer cruises will sail from New York on January 31 and February 28, and will last 26 days. These will cost, shore excursions included) from $350 upwards, depending on the staterooms selected. Put differently this month of travel and sightseeing in the wonderful West Indies will cost less than a month with comparable accommodations would cost at the fashionable winter resorts of Florida and California.

Because of the popularity of the "Reliance" and because of the standing of Raymond-Whitcomb, famous as America's oldest and premier travel company, bookings for these cruises are already coming in. Early application is advisable in order to secure a choice of accommodations.

Any Raymond-Whitcomb office or agent will furnish booklets, plans of the ship and other information upon request by mail, telegraph, telephone, or in person.

THE TRAVEL-NOVELTY OF THE COMING WINTER SEASON

A 2-Weeks Cruise to the Spanish Main

Such a cruise as this has never before been offered to the American public. There have been winter cruises in large number and considerable variety, but always for those who could be away for three or four weeks. This new Raymond-Whitcomb cruise—the latest innovation in the entire field of pleasure travel—lasts only 15 days. The price run from $175, depending on the stateroom.

Short, But Complete

In every respect it is a typical Raymond-Whitcomb cruise. There is identically the same careful management, the same expert staff, the same varied entertainment that have made Raymond-Whitcomb cruises famous as the culmination of pleasure travel. The ship will be the same as on the two longer cruises—the "Reliance," already used on Raymond-Whitcomb cruises to South America and the Mediterranean and chartered for a spring Mediterranean cruise next year.

The itinerary includes the three best known and most interesting islands in the West Indies—Cuba, with gay Havana; the British colony of Jamaica, and American Porto Rico. Further north it visits Bermuda, the popular resort islands that lie a few hundred miles off the Atlantic coast. Everywhere there will be excursions on shore and the cruise price includes them all. No passports are necessary.

GOV. SMITH BETTER; PLANS NEW VACATION

TRACTION TANGLE IN MIND

He Will Give Hylan-McAneny Fight His Undivided Attention on Tackling Business.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 20.—Governor Smith had so far recovered today from his attack of rheumatism which forced him to cut short his vacation at French Lick Springs and return here that he is thinking about getting another week of rest before taking up his Winter's work at the Capitol. If his ailment has disappeared by next Monday he will go to some place nearer Albany than Indiana where he can play golf for a few days.

"I am feeling all right," said the Governor cheerfully at the Executive Mansion this morning, after a good night's rest. "My only disappointment is that I had to cut short my vacation just when I was beginning to enjoy myself. I still feel the need of rest and exercise and I propose to get it, if the trouble disappears by next Monday. Then I will go to some place not so far away and resume just where I left off."

The Governor said he felt there was no need of consulting a physician and was treating himself.

"It's a return of the same trouble I had a month ago in Boston, and I know just how to treat it," he added. "Rest is the main thing."

He was asked if he was prescribing for himself.

"Just this," he replied, taking a small phial of pills from his pocket. "These are the pills I got at the Copley-Plaza Pharmacy in Boston. Take one pill as directed is all I have to do."

The Governor thought he was becoming an adept in the treatment of rheumatism.

"If you ever have anything like it," he said, "come up here and I'll cure you sure."

He surmised that he had gone to French Lick too soon. "Maybe I played a little too hard at golf," he continued. "I got out there last Thursday evening. The next day I played eighteen holes and felt fine. On Saturday I played eighteen holes more, and on Sunday took a rest after going to church. On Monday I woke up to find this Aunt Mary hanging on me and it became worse until I had to come away. It seems to be in the cards that I'm not to get a vacation this year, but I'll try again on Monday, if the improvement continues."

The Governor said he had no time while at French Lick to talk politics with Democratic leaders.

"I saw Tom Taggart and George Brennan of Chicago for only a few minutes," he said. "Taggart dropped in just long enough to offer to do anything for our comfort and then returned to Indianapolis for the week end. Brennan was there with a large party and I had no time to talk to him. The result was that there was no talk of politics at all and neither was there time to take up any other matters."

He had taken a brief case filled with letters and memorands which he had intended to work on "some rainy afternoon." He admitted that Mayor Hylan's charges against the Transit Commission was part of the business.

"But I never got a chance to even open the brief case," he complained, "and I brought it back with me. It will remain unopened now until it is settled whether or not I am going to get any vacation at all. If I've got to stay here, I'm going to pitch in and clear up a lot of official business."

On the journey back he had plenty of time to read newspapers.

"I read all the interviews given out by George Morris and Senator Wadsworth. But I have no answer to make to them at this time," he commented. "I am not ready to talk politics or anything else just yet."

He declared that he had given no thought to the appointment of a Supreme Court Justice to succeed the late Justice Donnelly, but expected to take that up in a short time.

"How about the political situation in New York City?" he was asked.

"Don't know a thing about it."

He said he was equally uninformed regarding national reorganization plans of the Democratic Party, and denied that he expected to meet national leaders in the near future.

"All I'm thinking about," he said, "is to cure up this rheumatism as rapidly as possible and get in a few days of golf before the heavy work of the office begins. Already the work is beginning to come in. Tomorrow in this very room I've got to hold an extradition hearing. It is a case that can't wait.

"I want to get as much work cleaned up as possible before December, for then I'll have to begin on my message. There are a number of things that will need careful attention, and the traction system in New York City is one of these. When I get to it, I expect to give this subject my undivided attention. It is a serious matter that will have to be attended to."

HILLES VISITS COOLIDGE.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. — Three prominent members of the Republican organization in New York were among the callers at the White House today.

The first to appear was Charles D. Hilles, New York member of the Republican National Committee, who took breakfast with the President and Mrs. Coolidge. Later in the day George K. Morris, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, and Colonel Lafayette Gleason, Secretary of the last Republican National Convention, called to see the President. Colonel Gleason said that he went to the White House to congratulate Mr. Coolidge on the outcome of the elections. He declared that the subject of patronage was not mentioned.

Mr. Morris also said that his visit had no relationship to Federal appointments. It was indicated that there would be no change in the manner of disposing of appointments allotted to New York Republicans. These will be apportioned, as in the past, in accordance with recommendations made by Senator Wadsworth, Mr. Hilles and Mr. Morris.

Mr. Hilles, it was stated, talked with the President about the appointment of a Federal Judge. The President thanked his New York callers for their work for the party ticket in the elections.

Wilson Scholarship for Virginia.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 20.—Passage of a measure to establish a Woodrow Wilson scholarship at the University of Virginia, and the re-election of all present officers with one exception marked today's session of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. Mrs. W. C. M. Merchant of Chatham, Va., was elected Second Vice President-General. Mrs. Livingston Rose Schuyler of New York sought to have the scholarship placed in Princeton University.

Says Jazz Will Play Itself Out.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 20.—That the jazz spirit today is a positive menace but that it will play itself out, was the statement made by Eugene Lies, of the National Playground and Recreational Association of New York, today at the sixth annual National Social Hygiene Conference. "Our youth and our adults are obsessed with too great an eagerness to make a show of themselves," he declared.

TRANSIT LETTER NO. 4

TO THE READERS
of This Newspaper:

IN my previous letters I told you about the 26,000 owners of the B. M. T.: the City of New York, the United States Government, the public and the 10,000 employees. I told you how a majority of the directors, who control the policies of the company, represent the public, the employees and YOU.

In this letter I want to tell you what these stockholders and directors have done for you during the past year and one-half, when they have been responsible for the policies of the B. M. T.

1. They have provided more than $5,000,000.00 for new equipment and improvements, including 50 new steel cars.
2. Also $530,000.00 for new safety switches in the Williamsburg Power Plant.
3. They conducted referendums on two of their lines to determine what changes in service the people wanted.
4. They purchased modern buses and offered to operate three bus routes in Brooklyn and Queens on a five-cent fare, with free transfers to and from their subway and surface lines, for an experimental period of three months. They applied for bus franchises before the Board of Estimate.
5. They asked the City to live up to its contract made 11 years ago to complete the 14th Street-Eastern Line to East New York, so that the people of that community would have more service.
6. They asked the City to live up to its contract and build the Nassau Line, in Lower Manhattan, so that the service to Central and South Brooklyn could be increased 50 per cent. through the DeKalb Avenue Station.
7. They asked the City to build shops and yards, which the City is obliged to do under its contract, so that the inspection and repair work would proceed with greater speed and efficiency and with less cost, and thus benefit the service.

From the very beginning the PUBLIC INTEREST has been the chief interest which has controlled the B.M.T.

Health

"IT SEEMS almost unbelievable," writes a business man, "but I feel better and do better work since I began reading The American Magazine."

But is it so strange, after all? Doctors tell us that many people who think that they are sick are really quite well. All they need is to be waked up and stimulated and given something interesting to think about.

What we do depends on what we think; and what we think depends largely on what we read.

You feel better after reading such a classic of human courage as "Why I Did Not Die," by Harold Bell Wright, in a recent number of The American Magazine.

And you feel better after reading the astonishing story of William Muldoon in the current number.

Muldoon is the greatest rebuilder of men in the world. In The American Magazine this month he tells how he does it. "I supply the element of control which a man usually lacks," he says. "I guide him till he can guide himself."

There is magic in that old man. Theodore Roosevelt took his orders meekly. When he blew his bugle, Elihu Root jumped out of bed. And when he said "Hurry up!" Chauncey M. Depew broke into a trot.

Probably you and I are living far below our real capacity, because we lack complete courage and vision.

Read this article in The American Magazine and you will know even better why this magazine has grown in six years from 850,000 to 2,200,000 circulation.

It has had this wonderful growth because it meets the most insistent need in the world—the need of broader and wiser thinking, of larger, more resultful, more satisfying LIFE.

LEAGUE AND PROTOCOL.

The British Government has officially denied any intention to "scrap" the Geneva Protocol. Its note to fellow-members of the League meant what it said and no more. In order to consult the Dominions and to arrive at all possible agreements, more time is needed than the Assembly foresaw last September. France would be willing to lay plans for security and disarmament when the League Council convenes in December, and proceed to a general arms conference in June. But she admits the difficulty of the situation and sees profit in delay. At Geneva the Secretariat declares that it has long been of the opinion that to insure success more time is needed.

In part, the hesitation of the Baldwin Ministry is due to the fact that it has so lately succeeded to an undertaking launched by its predecessor. Much is explained when one remembers that the two leading delegations in the Assembly last September were socialistic. Men who began with the conviction that to outlaw war is a quite simple task found that from day to day the problem grew gigantically. Thus Lord PARMOOR was amazed by the repercussions when he announced that the British fleet would be "at the service" of the League. Repeatedly he has since insisted that it would remain absolutely under British control. The difference involved is fundamental—the difference between an "automatic" League of sovereign States and an organized super-State. As to obligatory arbitration, the situation is obscure. When Sir CECIL HURST explained that England would require reservations, citing as an example the still open question of the rights of neutral merchantmen, Continental enthusiasts reported that this was to be Britain's only reservation. No notice whatever was taken of the fact that delegates of both Italy and Japan spoke those ominous words, "national honor" and "vital interests." Yet obligatory arbitration is basic in the system erected by the protocol. Then there is the fact that non-member nations stand to be adjudged "aggressors" if they refuse to submit to the arbitral plan set up under the protocol.

Finally there is the case of Japan. Her contention that matters legally within the domestic jurisdiction of nations—food supplies, raw materials, immigration—may yet be an imminent cause of war is specifically approved—and was, indeed, anticipated—by enlightened Western opinion. All Japan claimed was that no protocol could profess to banish war under which such questions could not even be discussed; and all the League granted was that the Council should be enabled to discuss them. Intellectually the gain was vast. But if Geneva was enlightened, the rest of the world was invaded by doubt. It will take time to convince Australia, New Zealand and Canada that Japan has no intention of using the protocol to force her emigrants upon them. Where her Dominions are concerned Britain has need of circumspection.

The Baldwin Government is scarcely less thoughtful of the United States and of France. It will not lightly subscribe to a scheme that might be held to affront us. Yet it has full sympathy with the French desire for a disarmament compatible with security.

The fact is that the protocol, which began as a get-peace-quick promotion, has grown until it places before the world the problem of outlawing war in all its complexity. Nothing could be more necessary for the League than that it should receive full and intelligent consideration before it is adopted.

TO ASCERTAIN THE LAW.

There can be no objection to the Department of Justice bringing suit to determine whether the publication of income tax payments is lawful. Since the Attorney General admitted that he was not able to construe the statute with entire confidence, his effort to obtain a judicial interpretation of it is natural and commendable. But it must have been by inadvertence that, in the statement given out yesterday by the Department of Justice, it was said that the Revenue act provided that income tax payments should be "open to inspection only." This is not the language of the statute, which simply declared that the payments should be available for "public inspection." The legal implications of that phrase it will be for the courts to determine. The Department of Justice is hardly warranted in putting its own gloss on it.

The Attorney General hopes that the case may be reached before the Supreme Court adjourns next Spring. Without waiting for that, Congress ought speedily to repeal the provision for publicity of income tax payments. It has shown itself to be not only offensive but futile and misleading. While the Department of Justice is endeavoring to ascertain what the law means, Congress should proceed to blot it out of the statute book.

SENIORES PRIORES.

Why anybody should want to be Republican floor leader of the Senate is a mystery. But it is evident that some august ones prefer kicks to halfpence. Mr. LODGE "led" by following, and was more often the subject than the assertor of "discipline." Any other Senator in his place would have had the same experience. Forgetting the evil days, Republican Senators hope for harmony, peace after victory. Yet even the selection of the "leader" threatens discord. Mr. CURTIS of Kansas, assistant "leader," imitatively and ironically called the "Whip," might press his title to promotion. "JIM" WATSON, who thought he was a candidate for President and for Vice President, recognizes once more his shining talents. Like Mr. CURTIS, he is an amiable and friendly person. Unlike Mr. CURTIS, he sees "leadership" as a series of "keynotes."

Then there is our own Senator WADSWORTH, "leader" of the New York Republicans. His friends see new honors come upon him. Why not whisk away the hopes of Indiana and Kansas and unite upon the "leader" of New York? But could this be done without leaving soreness in celestial bosoms? Besides, Mr. WADSWORTH is, after all, a likely lad, a promising stripling, only 47. Mr. CURTIS is 64. Even "JIM" WATSON is 60. Why not stick to the good old rule, the simple plan of seniority? Mr. WARREN of Wyoming is 80. Except for two years, when there was a deadlock in the Wyoming Legislature, he has served in the Senate since 1890; and he has just been re-elected for another term. He has been in politics, in one way or another, for more than fifty years. He knows the public business well. He is Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations. He doesn't want to be "leader," but he must feel bound by that rule which saved him when the Progressives opposed him, and is among the most precious statutes of the College of Fathers Conscript.

Moreover, he is one of the stanchest guardians of the Citadel of Protection. His are the sheep and cattle on a thousand hills. He is, as the late Senator DOLLIVER of Iowa said, "the greatest shepherd since ABRAHAM." He isn't true merely to beef and hides and wool, but to the whole rounded and glorious scheme of high protection. Mr. WARREN, too, was born in Massachusetts; and he is said to be descended, like so many others of his name, from JOSEPH WARREN of Bunker Hill. The Senate Republicans can't find a wiser "leader" of the straitest sect of Republicanism.

To be sure, there are lookers into the seeds of time who see Senator BUTLER taking charge of the Senate and making it keep step with the desires and policies of the White House. This reminds us how often we have heard, too incredulously perhaps, that "hazing has been abolished."

ABOLISHING ANOTHER SLAVERY.

Bishop BRENT, the moving spirit in calling the first opium conference in Shanghai in 1909, has now a world audience for his appeal in support of the American proposal for the suppression of the opium traffic. The League of Nations furnishes a platform from which one speaking with authority can be heard around the globe. It gives nations an opportunity to state the reasons for their differing views. Whether or not the other nations represented in the conference ultimately agree, the differences must ultimately yield to rational adjustment. In this case, there can be no doubt that the suggestions made by the American delegation under the chairmanship of Congressman PORTER look in the direction of the only practicable solution. They set before the conference the "great ideal of the emancipation of countless slaves "now in bondage to the ruthless mas"ter, the narcotic evil."

This proposal goes to the root of the evil—the restriction of the production of raw opium at the source out in the poppy fields of Turkey, Persia, India and other countries of the East, so that there will be no surplus for non-medical and non-scientific purposes. The restrictions are also extended to cover coca leaves. We are exposed to the taunt of some that we are ready to make such idealistic proposals since we do not have any economic interest in the production of these raw materials of the drugs which, though they have, as DE QUINCEY said, the keys of Paradise, lead also to an "Iliad of woes" and ultimately unlock the doors of hell itself to thousands. But we suffer as perhaps no other country from their infernal effects, against which we cannot protect ourselves save through international cooperation.

It is to be wished that Bishop BRENT were officially representing the American attitude in all that he said. His utterances on opium our own interests support. It is only through such a policy that we can have protection. The even greater dangers of war seem to us remote and we are less eager, except in the expression and effort of such men as Bishop BRENT, to cooperate with others in its suppression at the source. But cooperating with the League in the lesser; we may in time go to the greater, and adventure further in "the realm of the seemingly impossible."

Nearly all the details of the American plan were published in yesterday's TIMES. They go far beyond the proposals prepared for the consideration of the conference by the Committee on the Agenda, not only as relates to production but also to the control of shipment and sale; but they have compelled the instant approval of several of the delegates, notably Mr. SZE, the Chinese Minister to the United States. The 2,000,000 members of the anti-opium organizations in China undoubtedly represent a sentiment that comes as near being national as any that possesses this uncoordinated people. It is less perilous, as Bishop BRENT intimates, not only to the human race but to the League to make this "stride" than to "mark time or dally."

THE SALVAGE OF AVIATION.

There is a phase of American aviation that causes officers responsible for efficiency in the army and navy the gravest concern. It is the dependence of the Government upon "an "aircraft industry which is rapidly "dwindling and which has now almost "reached the vanishing point," to quote from the annual report of Major Gen. PATRICK, Chief of the Army Air Service. If the industry collapsed, the Government would have to go into the business of manufacturing planes and equipment at great expense. The country cannot have a modern army and navy if it does not supply them with swift and strongly built airplanes and a well-trained personnel. Also, it will lag behind in the transportation of goods and commodities if commercial aviation is not developed. The military and commercial services are interrelated. The time may come when commercial aviation can stand alone, but the military services will long depend on the commercial. It will always be practicable to convert the trade airplane for use by the army and navy. General PATRICK says in his report:

> Several [commercial] factories ceased operations during the past year, and others have had such sharp fluctuations in the amount of work within recent years that their labor turn-over has been extremely high, thus increasing the cost of manufacture and causing a direct loss of efficiency in the art of building aircraft.

The situation should have the early attention of Congress, which must either set the Government up in the business of airplane manufacture or make appropriations for the army and navy large enough to keep the civilian aircraft industry going. "The Gov"ernment, through its aeronautical "services, is practically the sole cus"tomer," says General PATRICK, "of the aircraft factories that survive." Of the condition of the army material available he says:

> The war-produced stock has now been exhausted. Many planes have been rebuilt more than once. A careful technical survey which has been going on for eight months, of which the reports are now being tabulated, indicates that the deterioration in some classes of equipment, in storage awaiting rebuilding, notably foreign-built and training planes, is greater than was expected. In the interests of safety, wherever the damage justified it these planes have been dismantled, the unserviceable parts destroyed, and those parts which can be safely and economically used again turned into stock for repairing other planes.

The conclusion is not to be avoided that the flying personnel is daily taking risks in the air for which the Government is responsible. General PATRICK tells the simple truth when he says that "there is today in the "United States no commercial avia"tion deserving of the name, and the "aeronautical manufacturing indus"try is unprepared to meet the de"mand for quantity production in the "event of an emergency." As a means of developing the industry the first thing to do is to give the military services the appropriations for equipment which they actually need. There should also be a law governing the business of flying, licensing pilots and aircraft, and providing for a system of landing fields throughout the country. The result would be the quickening of the interest of capital in airplane manufacture, because the danger of accidents would be greatly lessened, insurance rates would go down, and the present initial cost of planes, engines and parts would decline.

RAILWAY VALUATIONS.

From the arguments before the Supreme Court, in the case of railway valuation now pending, and also from the questions put to counsel by the Judges, it is plain that the present action is largely technical. Naturally, the court is not anxious to assume jurisdiction before it is necessary. It would prefer to have the Interstate Commerce Commission go on with its work of valuing the railroads for purposes of rate-making. But in the end, as all parties to the suit are agreed, a judicial review of the valuations will always be possible if the roads, or any one of them, can show that the effect of the application of the law is confiscatory.

The main difficulty with this whole scheme of Government valuation is that the beard has grown in the shaving. The Interstate Commerce Commission has spent ten laborious years in ascertaining railway valuations as of 1914, and even so almost all its figures are merely tentative. They can hardly furnish an accurate measure of present values, which, according to judicial decisions, ought to be the basis of regulating railway rates. It is a fact that the duty laid by Congress upon the Interstate Commerce Commission was one almost impossible to discharge. There has been great and constant dispute as to what the Valuation act really meant in some of its particulars. One Interstate Commissioner said that to interpret it was as great a feat as to read the Chinese alphabet backward. He gave it up and died. Even the father of the valuation scheme, Senator LA FOLLETTE, has now lost interest in it. Its results to date have gone against his theories and predictions, so that he is now off on some other trail. Doubtless the valuation cases will drag their slow length along, though they have largely ceased to be relevant to existing conditions, and in time will be superseded as the later Transportation act is better understood and more fully complied with.

MORE FOR THE MONEY.

People looking for the best possible returns for their philanthropic gifts are advised by a member of a well-known firm of accountants that there is "more result" from one dollar contributed to the Y. W. C. A. of this city than to any other organization with which he is connected. The range of his connections is not stated, but it may be inferred, without invidious comparisons, that there is at any rate no better investment of its kind. One feature that must commend itself to prudent givers is that of late there has been no yearly deficit hanging over, and that it is the policy of the association to live within its means. This is all the more reason for seeing that it has promptly the funds with which to plan its work for the next year. The annual appeal is now being made, the amount asked being $300,000, which is less than 16 per cent. of the total expenditure. But without this added 16 per cent. the service of this association to the city must be cut down.

Besides the local work, New York City is asked to bear its proportionate share of national and international work. There are small communities not yet able to undertake for themselves without help and guidance from the national board this needed activity. Also, there is the international reach of a service such as was recognized in the letter of Queen MARIE of Rumania, published a few days ago. The Y. W. C. A. is recognized as one of the most efficient agencies of cooperation and good-will among the nations. It has opposed recourse to motives of fear in stamping out menaces that can be removed only by education. Thus we have a service which, beginning at home in our own city, is mindful of national needs and yet embraces the globe in its helpful concern.

WORDS, DOWN AND ACROSS.

Teachers of English, in their struggles with the vocabulary of the undergraduate, have found a welcome ally. It is the cross-word puzzle. Like PERSHING'S doughboys falling in behind FOCH'S battered lines, come these hollow little squares to the rescue of the harassed professor—marching vertically, horizontally and en echelon. In teaching the native language to the native sons he has striven at the same time for scope and precision, qualities which do not always go together. The student must be encouraged to know three or four synonyms for the same word. At the same time he must be discouraged from using all the synonyms he knows all at once. His mind must be made safe for significance against the seduction of mere sound. How much thought and labor have gone into the task is shown by a test vocabulary like that printed in a recent number of the Harvard Bulletin.

It is obvious where the cross-word comes in. It takes what has hitherto been, to the undergraduate mind, a professorial aberration and ties it up with a living interest. For some time to come it should be the easiest thing in the world to arouse a college student to his proud heritage. He may go even further back than CHAUCER. The life of the cross-puzzler is real and earnest, and there are moments when it may be necessary to return to BEOWULF for something in four letters ending in W. The pedagogical possibilities are not restricted to English. In one local high school they are constructing Latin cross-words. All Gaul is presumably divided into 96 squares. From 8 to 17 horizontally is one of the things CICERO called CATILINE. New horizons open up.

To be sure, they are not limitless horizons. After a while the cross-worder finds himself in a world curiously standardized and restricted. It is a world predominantly of two or three letters ending in a vowel. There is really only one river in this new cosmos. It is the Po. ROMULUS and REMUS evidently made a mistake by concentrating on the Tiber. Egypt made her place in history secure by developing a bird named ibis and a goddess named Isis. GUTENBERG'S em and the pi. In Judaea's annals SOLOMON'S glory has been dimmed by the son of ASIJAH, who took care to provide himself with two vowels to one consonant—ASA. China has done her bit with Iao and tael. Japan almost dominates with yen and her immortal broad sash, the obi. There is only one world-language worth speaking of. It is the Erse. Natural selection operating in the zoological realm favors immensely the survival of the three-lettered animal. The lion and the elephant are dethroned and in their place rule the emu, the gnu and the eel. If COLERIDGE'S Mariner were living in this cross-world of ours, he would not be carrying an albatross around his neck. He would be proudly sporting an auk. Cross-worders puzzling on the origin of life differ as to whether the auk came before the ovum or the ovum before the auk.

How long it will last is not difficult to predict. From the violence of the fever we gather that the crisis is near. Any day now may witness a sudden subsidence in the passion and the tumult—we mean the vim and the din.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Problem Without a Solution.

It already is evident that the new police regulation in regard to the parking of automobiles is not a satisfactory solution of the difficult problem which the vastly increased use of those vehicles has created. Perhaps that problem simply cannot be solved with any near approach to the contentment of all concerned—cannot, that is, without changes in the streets, the expense of which would be appalling to the taxpayers.

The indubitable fact is that the city was laid out with no such purpose in mind as meeting the present demand for traffic facilities, and with the present arrangement all attempts at regulation will be mere compromises, with a constant cutting down, one after another, of the privileges necessary to the convenient and efficient use of motor cars.

Too often the would-be regulators forget that the cars have two needs—one for free and fairly rapid progress from place to place and another for parking space while the owners transact their business or attend to their pleasures. The new rules aim chiefly at facilitating movement, but it is the rare motorist who traverses the city streets as part of a ride. Usually he wants to get to some place and to remain there for a while. When he cannot do that, his car is of comparatively little use to him.

Hence the loud cries now going up from the shopkeepers whose customers cannot do more than drive past their doors, and from the people who find themselves forbidden to spend at their purchasing anything like the time they need or think they need for doing it intelligently. And if parking is drastically restricted to a few minutes, while the utility of the car thus is seriously diminished, facility of movement is not increased to the hoped-for degree, for the cars whose owners would keep them standing at the curb if it were permitted must send them on aimless journeys through the streets and so add to what already is over-congestion.

The protests now made must be heeded, but how? If parking privileges are increased, then the streets will be reduced to narrow lanes, which is not much different from closing them altogether.

A Defender Who Doesn't Attack.

A new weekly, The Commonweal, has been added to the multitude already existing in this city. Like not a few others, it describes itself as "a review of literature, the arts and public affairs," but in its current issue, which is No. 2 of Vol. I., it frankly confesses, by defending the legitimacy of "propaganda," that it is and purposes to be a propagandist.

Behind The Commonweal is the Calvert Publishing Corporation, and behind that the Calvert Associates. Even there, presumably, the sequence does not end, for the obvious object of the new weekly is to make a more or less authorized, and therefore a more or less authoritative, presentation of what the Roman Catholic Church has been and is, to defend it from current attacks, and to give such explanation of its customs and doctrines as may be deemed necessary.

Judging from the issue now at hand, all of these purposes are to be carried out with intelligence and with a moderation of language and a command of facts that usually are lacking from the journalistic and other outgivings of contemporaneous enemies of the old Church, and most notably absent from the "literature" of the Ku Klux Klan. Suavity, not ferocity, marks The Commonweal's style of exposition and argument, and it refrains sedulously from insult or denunciation of those disagreeing with its ideas.

The usual bitterness of theological controversy is missing from this newcomer in the weekly field, so far at least, and with appreciable success it has endeavored to interest as well as edify its readers.

Praise Is Shaded With Doubt.

Not quite everybody will read with complete satisfaction and approval the report by the Christmas Club that in the United States, this year, its members have saved and deposited under its rules almost a quarter of a billion dollars—$242,855,840, to be exact. That is a lot of money, even in these days when more millions, in talk at least, are discussed as if they were little more than small change kept loose in trousers pockets. And in the saving up of all this money, no doubt the lessons and the rewards of thrift have been taught to a great many people who needed them. That is all to the good, but certain killjoys will turn their gloomy eyes from the saving of the past to the spending that is about to take place—the spending in preparation for which this Christmas Club was invented and organized—and ask all and sundry how often the economy is to be followed by extravagance, to the utter confounding of lessons on the rewards of thrift.

Of course, money can be put to many uses far less commendable than the buying of Christmas presents, but old-fashioned folk, who haven't forgotten what their progenitors told them about rainy days, will insist on suspecting that there would be a closer relation between resources and Christmas expenditure if the money so to be used were taken out of an ordinary savings bank instead of from a depository the avowed and conscious purpose of which was the accumulation of a sum as large as possible to devote for spending in a lump for a purpose sentimental rather than economic.

Very probably most of the money put into the Christmas Club fund comes from people who do not run a savings bank account and therefore would have gone out in driblets through the year, with no measurable return, if this device had not existed, but it should at least be said that the savings bank is a pretty good place for folk of small means to put their spare cash. Once there, it is very apt to be treated carefully.

Their Power Carries Responsibility.

Again is wonderment excited by the way in which the police conduct negotiations with the leaders of the two warring Chinese tongs. This week eight of the Hip Sing magnates and eight high in the On Leong were taken in closed cars to Police Headquarters. There the two groups were seated separately, with detectives between them for fear they might fly at one another's throats, and the recent assassinations were talked over and the reasons for them explained in fact or seeming. Then an Assistant District Attorney issued a solemn warning of what would or might happen if the killings were resumed, but apparently it did not occur to him to mention or comment on the fact that what the men before him could prevent in the future they could have prevented in the past, and therefore were directly responsible for it.

Whether or not the Hip Sing Tong took in members expelled for cause from the On Leong Tong does not seem to be the question at issue for our legal authorities, so why did they spend time on its discussion?

THE FIRST GOLF IN AMERICA.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your Nov. 1 issue appeared a short story setting forth the claim of Sarasota, Fla., to being the scene of the first golf played in the United States. I understand that there are a number of cities which lay claim to this honor. So far as we have been able to discover, one of the earliest known records of any golf event occurring in the United States is an invitation to a "golf ball" which hangs on the wall of the Savannah Golf Club, yellowed with age, and which reads as per the enclosed copy.

We have records also to show that the game of golf was played in Savannah thirty years prior to the issuance of the enclosed invitation to the "Golf Club Ball." If Sarasota, or any other community, would like to get the facts, this office will be pleased to furnish them. Since golf was played 100 years prior to the first game played in Sarasota—and there are authentic records to show that it was—we trust that you will be good enough to place this letter before your readers.

GOLF CLUB BALL.

The honor of Miss Elizabeth Johnson's company is requested to a ball to be given by the members of the Golf Club of this city at the Exchange on Tuesday evening, the 31st inst., at 7 o'clock.

Savannah, 20th December, 1811.

Thus it will be seen that a golf club existed in Savannah over one hundred years ago and that the ancient pastime was played in Savannah long before it was introduced into the East. This early introduction of golf into Savannah is easily explained by the fact that Savannah in those days was the home of many Englishmen and Scotchmen, who doubtless brought their clubs over when they came and formed the club which was important enough to give large holiday balls, to which the belles of the vicinity received engraved invitations.

A BALLADE OF HOLIDAYS.

(Some of them pagan, I fear!)
Holydays, when one should pray;
Natal days, sacred and dear,
These form the zone of our year,
Winter, Spring, Summer and Fall;
Christmas and Christmas is near—
Christmas is best of them all!

Never is seen New Year's Day
Aught that is lipped or austere;
Martyr and Patriot, they Bring days we proudly revere.
Many a glistening tear
Greets the Memorial call;
Great is The Fourth, but 'tis clear
Christmas is best of them all!

Labor an inning at Play
Takes ere the meadows grow sere.
Soon The Discoverer may
Hear us commend his career.
Then we give thanks for our gear,
Harvest, and freedom from thrall;
Splendid! But still 'twould appear
Christmas is best of them all!

Christmas is fullest of cheer,
Cheer for the great and the small;
Christmas—and Christmas is here!
Christmas is best of them all!

THE TAX ON CORPORATIONS.

Change Is Urged to Equalize the Levy on the Small Business.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now that the important subject of tax reduction is again receiving serious consideration, may I advance a plea in favor of the "small corporation"?

The ordinary small and close corporation differs in practically no essential feature from its unincorporated competitor. Yet we find the substantial tax reduction relief has been given to individuals but that corporations have not received any consideration in this connection.

Existing tax rates discriminate strongly against the incorporated firms with small incomes in favor of the unincorporated business, although firms with large incomes benefit under the corporate form as compared with their unincorporated competitors.

Considering the case of an unincorporated business owned by one individual with net total earnings of $10,000 a year, his total Federal income tax would amount to $207.50, while his State income tax would be $30, making total taxes of $287.50.

Assuming the same business to be incorporated, with $5,000 paid as a salary to the owner, leaving net corporate earnings of $5,000, the total Federal income and State franchise taxes paid by the corporation and the proprietor would amount to $962.50.

Under the corporate form, therefore, the total taxes would be $675 greater than the $287.50 paid under the unincorporated status, or more than 100 per cent. excess.

Corporations at present pay Federal income taxes of 12½ per cent. (with a $2,000 exemption if the total net profits do not exceed $25,000), and a 4½ per cent. State franchise tax upon such net profits without any exemption.

The writer believes that the following revisions would be reasonably in order:

A. Concerning the Federal income taxes, all corporations to receive at least a $2,000 exemption irrespective of the net income, and a reduction in rates, particularly for corporations with net incomes of less than $100,000.

B. Concerning State franchise taxes, the rate to be reduced from 4½ per cent. to 3 per cent., with a $2,000 exemption for all corporations.

The writer believes that a tremendous impetus would be given to business throughout the country if this equitable revision of corporate taxes were undertaken.

THE DEMOCRATIC SOUTH.

Republican Persecution Has Fixed Its Political Status, It Is Argued.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have just read your editorial "The Negligible South," in which you say: "It is not a wholesome thing for any State or section to have its political attitude determined not by actual and living questions of the present, but by old traditions and prejudices and encrusted habits."

I presume that you have little actual knowledge of the South—that is, first-hand knowledge. This presumption is not founded altogether on the above statement. I have read your editorials frequently during the past four years and I have sometimes felt that your unjust attitude toward the South is caused by ignorance of real conditions in this section.

Republican persecution welded the old South into the Democratic Party. It was vital that they stand together. Divided they could not survive. This is not an "old tradition," a prejudice or "an encrusted habit." It is history. The sons and daughters of the men who joined hands to present a solid front to an irate foe will be slow to vote a Republican ticket, especially since the Democratic Party is capable of handling "the living questions of the present."

The majority of votes cast for the Republican Party in the South is cast not by men and women whose ancestors made the history of the South, but by negroes, foreigners and descendants of the poor whites, or as the negroes called them, "white trash."

You say: "What will or should break up the political fixity and stagnation in the South cannot be said." It is my prophecy that it will not be broken up until the spirit of the old South is dead or passed forever into desuetude.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have taken note of a recent contribution to THE TIMES concerning the Armenians of New York. The article was, on the whole, sympathetic and informative; but it contained a few errors which I hope you will allow me to correct. The Armenians in New York are not clannish, and their homes are scattered throughout the city and the suburbs. Most of those living in Manhattan are not, as the writer thinks, congregating along the "Armenian Boulevard," Lexington Avenue between Twenty-third and Thirty-second Streets; they live generally upon the upper west side, on Washington Heights. For some reason, though, the "Armenian Boulevard" is their church and club district. And, naturally, few are the Armenian newcomers who do not first land there, before selecting their final residence.

The writer also stated that the Armenian men meet their friends in the clubs along the "Boulevard"; that they do not entertain them at home. I have known the Armenians in their homes for many years; they entertain a great deal in their homes. The clubs and restaurants are reserved for Armenian or American business men and out-of-town visitors. Armenian business men from as far as the Middle West and the Pacific Coast find it very convenient to meet New York business friends in these clubs and restaurants. As for the food being no different from other Near Eastern food, it reminds me of an epicurean friend who once complained to me that here in America we had no native dish, that all the food was prepared as in Europe!

The writer stated further that one does not see a single blue-eyed Armenian in the Armenian church which he visited. But there are very many blond Armenians, and according to reliable statistics about 30 per cent. of the Armenians are blue-eyed. Be that as it may, the Armenians are a pious people, and a church may not be the very best place to make a study of eyes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial of Nov. 18 under the caption "Hill's Home Brew" is not a fair analysis of the situation. Section 29 was undoubtedly written into the Volstead act to secure the necessary votes to pass. It does not favor the farmer as against the city dweller in the making of "home brew." That there is no "privileged class of home brewers" is shown by the fact that New York City purchases over five thousand carloads of wine grapes each season and California alone ships over 25,000 carloads of wine grapes to Eastern markets. Congress protected the farmer by creating a new market for his fruit, and most of the home wine is made in the cities.

CONGRESSMEN COOL TOWARD THE LEAGUE

Brooklyn Representative Favors Waiting Until "Europe Becomes Decent"—Celler Is for Joining.

League of Nations advocates heard their ideals criticised and condemned by Representative Loring M. Black of the Fifth District, Brooklyn, who, with four other Congressional Representatives, attended a luncheon of the League of Nations Non-Partisan Association at the Hotel Astor yesterday. Twenty-four representatives from Greater New York had been invited to attend the "going away" party, on the eve of their departure for the Capitol to discuss with leaders in the movement the desirability of the United States entering the League of Nations and the World Court.

Of the guests of honor, three were noncommittal in their attitude toward the League and two were positive. Emanuel Celler of the Tenth District, Brooklyn, expressed his stanch advocacy of American membership in the international body. Mr. Black said he was opposed until "Europe becomes decent" and until Great Britain and Japan cease to "threaten" the United States by continuing to maintain large navies.

John F. Carew of the Eighteenth District, and leader of the New York Congressional delegation, described himself as a "practical politician" who could not afford to take a positive stand on the League question because the majority of his constituents were opposed. Sol Bloom, representing the Nineteenth District, promised to make a personal canvass of his constituents and abide by their opinion if the question should ever come before the House for decision. Andrew L. Somers of the Sixth Congressional District of Brooklyn said that he had been "weaned" away from previous support of the League, but in reality had an open mind on the subject, which could be made to support it if he should find it advisable. All agreed, however, that treaty-making powers were vested solely in the Senate, and they urged the workers of the association to direct their efforts toward members of the upper house for more definite action. All the Representatives at the luncheon were Democrats.

Mr. Black's Views.

Congressman Black said that, like Mr. Carew, he too was a "practical politician," and that while he believed that in the far future the United States might join with other nations, "I believe as a politician that my own future would not be very safe in advocating the League of Nations at this time." Many things have to be done, Mr. Black said, before the United States "can be reconciled to the notion of the League of Nations."

"It is all right for Congressman Celler to say he was elected because he told his constituents he was for the League of Nations," said Mr. Black, "but I rather think that his personality and his attitude on light wines and beers had a good deal to do with it.

"I don't think the American public is at this time ready to accept the League of Nations, and I for one could not honestly go before the Committee on Foreign Relations and say that the people in my district wanted it. At the present time I think we are preaching something that is imperfect and which we ought not adopt while the spirit of Europe is unfavorable to country. When Europe decides to be friendly instead of hostile to us, then I think American politicians can go before the voters and urge some close relationship with Europe, but not until then."

Mr. Black pictured the disarmament conference as developing "most unfriendly to the United States." America called the conference with the highest aims and purposes, he said, but Europe, however, in a "war game," in which Mr. Black asserted "we lost because we were idealistic about it." This country should not be asked to cooperate with European nations in helping, he declared, until "we go first to Europe and tell them of the necessity of a supplemental disarmament conference so that we ourselves can feel secure."

Sees "Threat to America."

At the Washington conference, Mr. Black contended, "Europe took advantage of our idealism and the weakness of our politicians and they disarmed America in a most serious way, while they did not carry out the spirit that was intended, and disarm." In his opinion, the only reason why Great Britain and Japan have maintained large navies is as a "threat to America." He also pictured an invasion of the Monroe Doctrine through participation in the League.

"I welcome suggestions of the churches on almost everything," he went on, replying to an address made by Rev. Charles S. Macfarland of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, who spoke of the favorable attitude of the churches toward the League and the World Court. "On the other hand, I think that by inculcating Christianity in every man they can do far more good for the League of Nations or anything that has to do with international peace than by direct contact with politics. There is no spirit of peace in this world, not even among the nations that are in the League. We thought we could bring it about by participating in the war, but it has been destroyed by the trickery and connivance of European nations. I am not going to the Senators and say I believe the League is a good thing to encourage."

Arthur Dunn, a Westchester worker for the League of Nations Non-Partisan Association, pointed out that because of America's disposition "we are running the risk of becoming an international slob." For exacting the payment of every penny, plus interest, for refusing to meet officially with the other nations of the world and for other such reasons "the United States is being hated by the other countries," Mr. Dunn said. America's foreign policy, he declared, "is leading to another world war." He urged that we join with the fifty-five countries in the League to "clean their animosity."

Cares a "Practical Politician."

"I want to be elected to carry out the Democratic principles of economy and the other things that I believe in," Congressman Carew said. "But most of all, I want to be elected. To a man in my position, you know, the least I can do for you at the present time is to wish you well, and I hope you will all live long enough to see a great advance made to the idea that you are aspiring to. This is a ticklish question for politicians and I am nothing but a practical politician. There is a substantial sentiment in my district against the League, and I think that any politician who takes hold of the League of Nations will have his hands burnt."

Mrs. Frank Day Tuttle, Chairman of the Executive Committee, who presided, said she favored the League because it "is practical, virtually universal, continuous and moral," and she was hopeful of accomplishing the organization's aims.

Dr. Macfarland announced that a delegation of the churches would go to Washington soon to continue the fight for American participation in international affairs. The Church, he said, was practically unanimous for the World Court and its sentiment was improving rapidly for our entry into the League.

FATHER GIVES BRIDE AWAY

Vincent Astor Is Best Man—The Marriage Unites Two Old Families.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 20.—Miss Laura Biddle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Craig Biddle of this city, became the bride of William Rhinelander Stewart Jr. of New York City, this afternoon. The ceremony took place in the Church of the Redeemer, at Bryn Mawr, and was performed by the Rev. George C. Carter. The marriage joins two of the oldest families of New York and Philadelphia.

The church, decorated in yellow and white, was filled to capacity with persons prominent in the social life of the two cities. The chancel was banked with yellow roses and chrysanthemums and huge bunches of the yellow flowers were effectively arranged in the aisles.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a robe of rose point lace over white satin, made along plain classic lines. A train of cloth-of-silver fell in graceful folds from the shoulders and was trimmed at the edge with orange blossoms. Miss Biddle wore a string of pearls. Her tulle veil was arranged with a wreath of orange blossoms; she wore white satin slippers and stockings and carried a bouquet of white lilacs.

Miss Edith Woodward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Woodward of New York, was maid of honor. She wore a white velvet gown made with a V-shaped neck and short sleeves, a quilling of ribbon on the bottom of the skirt giving a flare effect. Miss Woodward wore a hat of white velvet trimmed under the brim with a bunch of corn-colored flowers, fastened with a narrow ribbon to a bird's head of the same color, which was on the outer side of the brim. She wore corn-colored stockings and white satin slippers and carried a bunch of white roses.

Vincent Astor served as best man and the ushers were George F. Baker Jr., Walter Bienecke, Gordon Douglas, J. S. Cosden, J. L. Replogle, Lytle Hull and Jo I. Thomas of New York and Paul D. Mills, Livingston Biddle, Craig Biddle Jr. and George Drexel Biddle, brothers of the bride.

Attending the bride as flower girl was Miss Nadejda de Braganza, daughter of Princess Pierre of Braganza of New York and Paris, who is a niece of the bridegroom. She wore a frock of white velvet with white slippers and stockings. Her white velvet sash was trimmed at the sides with a bunch of small yellow flowers and she carried a basket of yellow roses.

A breakfast for 200 guests followed the ceremony at Wooton, Bryn Mawr, the home of the bride's great-uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Childs Drexel. The porches were enclosed and banked with yellow and white flowers, palms and ferns.

The bride, though only 18 years old, is well known in this city and is connected with many of the foremost families. She is a niece of A. J. Drexel Biddle and Livingston L. Biddle, while her father, Craig Biddle, is widely known as a tennis player and a sportsman. Her paternal grandparents are Edward Biddle and the late Mrs. Edward Biddle, and she is a great-granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel. She is also a great-niece of Mrs. Alexander Van Rensselaer. Her mother was the daughter of the late Henry Whelan and Mrs. Whelan, who is now Mrs. C. H. Harrison, lives at Bellevue-Stratford. Miss Biddle is the great-granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Townsend Whelan.

Mr. Stewart is a graduate of Harvard University. His mother, now Mrs. Jean St. Cyr, was Miss Anna Armstrong, whose sister, Miss Rita Armstrong, married Colonel Anthony Drexel, thus making another link between the families of the bride and bridegroom. His sister is the Princess Miguel de Braganza. Mr. Stewart is the nephew of Lispenard Stewart and is related to Bishop Philip Rhinelander.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Van Rensselaer, Mr. and Mrs. Barclay Warburton, Miss Mary Brown Warburton, Mrs. Clarence W. Banning Grange, Mrs. Henry Bulkeley McIntire, Miss Gwendolen McIntire, Mrs. Walter Thomson, Miss Loulie Thomson.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Condé Nast and his daughter, Miss Natica Nast, who wore a lovely ensemble suit of Russian red with a hat to match; Mrs. Joshua S. Cosden, who was attired in a black fur coat trimmed with a light tan fur collar and cuffs; Mrs. J. IRISH REPUBLICANS WIN.

Carry Bye-Elections in South Dublin City and North Mayo.

DUBLIN, Nov. 20.—Bye-elections to the Dail Eireann in South Dublin City and North Mayo have resulted in the return of Republicans by substantial, although not overwhelming majorities.

This is regarded in some quarters as a serious setback to the Government, but the results were apparently largely due to the apathy of the electors, fewer than 50 per cent. in Dublin voting.

Owing to the illness of President Cosgrave, who is going to the Continent to recuperate, it has become necessary to appoint a new Minister of Defense, which portfolio he has held since the resignation of Richard Mulcahy. The question will come up in the Dail Eireann tomorrow. It is considered probable that Peter Hughes, member of the Dail for County Louth, will receive the appointment.

The New York Times acknowledges receipt of a contribution of $10 from F. G. for the widow of Sir Ernest Shackleton. This money has been forwarded to Henry Woodhouse, President of the Aerial League of America, 280 Madison Avenue.

HOSPITAL ELECTS BOARD OF LAYMEN

MEDICAL STAFF TO AID

Duties of the Two Business and Scientific Organizations Will Be Kept Separate.

The New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital announced yesterday a radical departure from the usual procedure in choosing hospital directors. The institution has just completed a reorganization whereby an all-lay board has been selected. The board hereafter will continue to be made up wholly of laymen, in the sense that no active attending physician of the hospital will be eligible for election.

The announcement said that the step had been taken after consultation with physicians and laymen interested in hospital management throughout the country. Under the new plan, Post Graduate will have, in addition to the lay directing board, a medical board. This board will consist of all members of the Faculty of full professorial rank. The new directorate will formulate the institution's policies in the future and the medical board will carry them out.

Dr. James F. McKernon, President of the institution, said that it had been decided that such a step would free the medical staff for the work of hospital operation and teaching, one board being administrative while the other carried out the scientific purposes of the institution, and either being free to make suggestions to the other.

The new directors are Vincent Astor, James C. Brady, Edgar H. Boles, Clarence Dillon, William Fahnestock, William V. Griffin, Ludwig Kast, James F. McKernon, George T. Slade and the Rev. Karl Reiland.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were: President, Dr. James F. McKernon; First Vice President, William V. Griffin; Second Vice President, Edgar H. Boles; Treasurer, William Fahnestock, and Secretary, Robert E. Allen. The Dean of the Medical School is Dr. William D. Cutler and the Superintendent of the hospital is Colonel Louis C. Trimble.

WORLD FLIERS LEAVE PLANES IN OHIO HANGAR

Will Go to Washington Today to Make Formal Report to Army Air Chief.

DAYTON, Ohio, Nov. 20.—Hangars at McCook Field today received the three world-cruising airplanes, and their pilots will journey to Washington by rail tomorrow to make the formal report of their round-the-world flight to Major Gen. Mason M. Patrick, Chief of the Army Air Service.

Their report will conclude the last chapter in the first circumnavigation of the globe by airplane, and the six airmen will resume routine duties. The three cruisers landed at McCook Field from St. Louis.

Lieutenant Henry Ogden will be reduced to his former rank of sergeant and go directly to his home station at Selfridge Field, Mich., where he will assume his original duties.

As Lieutenant Erle Nelson climbed aboard the New Orleans today for the last time, to see whether everything was all right, somebody shouted, "Where are you going, to try it over again?" There was no wistfulness in the smile that accompanied his answer: "Not on your life."

Lieutenant Harding will be relieved of his commission Nov. 30 and will resume his duties at McCook Field as a civilian employe.

When the fliers landed at McCook Field it marked the last formation flight of the three machines. All of the airmen will receive a leave of absence after they report at Washington.

Major Murray was attracted to Wardensville some years ago after he had made several trips to that region, and for several years he had lived the life of a hermit in a little bungalow in the mountains. Villagers' children and the dogs of the town romped about him as he told the boys and girls stories of adventures in foreign lands, and of fighting with the French Army. Major Murray also had served THE NEW YORK TIMES as a correspondent in Paris. Several of his books, some of them in French, are on library shelves here.

SAYS GEORGE GOULD TOILED FOR ESTATE

BUT CONDEMNS ONE DEAL

Admits His Late Client Should Not Have Kept Sale of Western Union Stock a Secret.

A defense of the late George Gould and his actions as the managing trustee of the $32,000,000 estate of his father, Jay Gould, was made yesterday before Referee James A. O'Gorman in the trial of the accounting suit, by William Wallace, counsel for the estate of George Gould. At times there was an emotional tremor in his voice as he defended the conduct of the eldest son of Jay Gould in handling estate transactions that in twenty-six years totaled $788,000,000. Practically all of these related to the so-called Gould lines.

Mr. Wallace quoted George Gould as saying:

"I stood between the roads and the estate, bearing large personal risks, and my brothers and sisters were either disinclined to be of assistance or were so involved in their personal affairs that they were not able to share the burden."

Mr. Wallace said that between 1907 and 1911, when the estate needed ready money, the late George Gould had advanced sums ranging from $500,000 to $3,000,000.

As evidence of the regard in which Jay Gould had held George, Mr. Wallace read extracts from letters which Jay Gould wrote to his son shortly before his death. In one of these he wrote: "Take good care of yourself. I dare not think what the result would be if anything should happen to you." He also had told his son that whatever he did should never be questioned and referred to the fact that he had always urged him to assume full responsibility regarding estate matters.

Mr. Wallace said he would justify the transactions carried out by George Gould, but that he was constrained to say that he could not attempt justification of the sale of Western Union stock, which involved approximately $17,000,000. The lawyer said that he felt that George should have told his brothers and sisters about it at the time. It was this transaction, that according to testimony, George kept from the others for seven years.

"I feel frankly that he should have told his brothers and his sister, Helen, when the sale was made public," Mr. Wallace said. "He had a moral and perhaps a legal right to retain $3 a share as commission on the sale, but I regret that the entire matter was not frozen out at the time."

Mr. Wallace said that had it not been for George the administration of the estate would often have been adrift, without a pilot on a troubled sea. He said that George deserved only commendation for his energy and his motions for the advancement of the affairs of the estate. He pointed out that George Gould had said in his testimony before trial that he was proud of the trust his father had placed in him and he had given his best efforts in the management of the vast estate.

QUIMBY SALE NETS $14,352.

Anglo-American Pink Lustre Bowl Brings Highest Price, $1,550.

The second and last sale at the Anderson Galleries yesterday of the Thomas Quimby collection of early Staffordshire figures and other objects together with the eighteenth century English furniture amounted to $8,386.50, the total for both sales being $14,352.50.

An Anglo-American pink lustre bowl, a rare piece in proof condition, went to Mrs. R. L. Sparks for the day's highest price, $1,550. It is four inches high, eight and a half inches across and is splashed with pink lustre on both outside and inside. A print of Shipwright's arms is in its centre and oval medallion portraits of Washington, Lafayette and Franklin, the American spread-eagle and shield, and "Republics are not always ungrateful" encircle the bowl.

H. M. Coolidge bought Nos. 221 and 297 for $270 and $310 respectively. The first is a set of four early nineteenth century Bristol emerald-green glass candlesticks, the second an eighteenth century English carved and gilt painted over-mantel mirror. A fortress flying the yellow and red flag of old Spain returning the fire from an English frigate and other ships forms the paintings.

Loses Appeal to Dismiss B. M. T.'s $30,000,000 Damage Action.

The Circuit Court of Appeals granted a motion yesterday to dismiss the appeal from a decision of Federal Judge Knox that requires the city to answer and defend the action for $30,000,000 damages instituted against it by Lindley M. Garrison when he was receiver of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. The complaint alleged that the failure of the city to construct certain rapid transit lines under Contract 4 had deprived the company of revenues totaling the amount sued for.

Since the reorganization of the company the action has been pressed by the B. M. T. interests, which have won all the legal skirmishes so far. In his opinion Judge Knox said that in making the contract the city was authorized to and did obligate itself in such a manner as to be liable for its defaults and that, in part at least, liability might be enforced.

The matter came before Judge Knox on a motion to dismiss the action because of lack of jurisdiction.

TRIPP DISCUSSES UNREST.

Westinghouse Chairman Lays It to High Distribution Costs.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 20.—The high cost of distribution was blamed for much of the current unrest in an address by General Guy E. Tripp, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, before the Electrical Jobbers' Association today. He emphasized the importance of the increase in the volume of business as compared with increased discounts as a basis for business success.

"When the farmer discovers that the milk for which he received 3 cents is being retailed at 18 cents, he feels cheated," General Tripp said. "When the consumer learns that the final cost of milk for which he pays 18 cents was 3 cents he feels cheated. The upshot is that all hands go hunting for the man who got the money."

As a solution General Tripp suggested that false methods be revised.

No Mistake or Failure is as Bad as to stop and not try again.

Mr. I'm Afraid is only half a man to sit down in idleness and growl over his misfortunes and grumblingly say, "All the world is against me."

Such a slothful man, talking like that, is only slandering himself and harming his family. Any man who so chooses can easily murder the angel born in him and spend his life in drudgery, darkness and despair.

Man alive! Up with you, buckle up to your old backbone, stop shuffling and vacillating, kick down the ladder round by round as you rise and never give up again!

It would be shameful to lose when you can make another trial.

STOCK MARKET HITS ITS FASTEST PACE

Tremendous Volume of Sales Taxes Machinery of the Stock Exchange.

EMERGENCY RULES ADOPTED

MORE NEW HIGH RECORDS

Despite Profit-Taking and Short Selling, the Price Average Shows Slight Advance.

Stocks were turned over yesterday with a tremendous velocity which has not been exceeded since the election. It was the fourteenth day of heavy trading since the Coolidge victory. Sales on the New York Stock Exchange aggregated 2,586,180 shares, exceeding the enormous total of Nov. 8, which was considered a record day, by about 200,000 shares.

Prices made progress, too, on the upside, although profit taking and bear selling were evident throughout the entire five hours of trading. Railroad shares as a whole closed the day at 70.59, an advance of .51. The industrials were almost stationary, closing at 126.11 for the average, an advance of .02 for the day. The market as a whole closed with an advance of less than one-half a point over the previous day, the average at the close standing at 107.50 for fifty representative stocks, an appreciation of .42 on the day's trading.

There were many factors of outstanding importance in the lively trading in the stock market. The principal one appeared to be that outside participation in the market—that is, orders received from all parts of the country—outweighed the orders to sell. Also of importance were the reports of impending dividends on railroad issues which have heretofore been neglected. Still another factor was that the Federal Reserve Bank had taken no action toward changing its rediscount rate. Without any basis of fact, speculative Wall Street had expected that some sort of a brake would be put on the market and looked for an increase in the rediscount rate. When the weekly meeting of the Governors of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York went by without any change in the rate, and it had not even been considered, there was a sigh of relief from speculators on the bull side and prices as a whole continued their advance.

Trading at Fast Pace.

Yesterday's trading in a total of more than 2,500,000 shares not only exceeded a number of high records for the New York Stock Exchange but was at a faster pace than the machinery of the Stock Exchange could handle. In the first hour of trading the number of shares bought and sold aggregated 400,000. At times the tickers ran twenty-five minutes behind sales. Nevertheless, they were able to catch up partly before the close and at that time were only seven minutes behind actual trading on the floor of the Exchange.

Speculation yesterday appeared to veer into the low-priced railroad shares. There were reports that these orders were "institutional" in character, but there was no mistaking the enthusiastic inquiry for low-priced railroad stocks. Some of the orders were based on the possibility that the small and heretofore neglected roads would come into their own in the next few months through merger with larger and stronger organizations.

What is probably nearer the truth is that pools, dominated by banking interests, have accumulated the stocks of these railroad companies over a long period of depression and now are engaged in marking up the prices. Particularly active speculative issues were Erie, New Haven, St. Paul, Great Northern preferred, Missouri, Kansas & Texas, Wheeling & Lake Erie and others of the same sort.

One development was that industrial shares appeared able to take up the "burden" when railroad shares reached a position where they could go no further. As a consequence, there were two alternating trends during the day. While the railroad issues were advancing strongly, the industrial issues were more or less quiet. But in the intervals in which the railroad stocks faltered, their place on the "band-wagon of the bull market" was taken by the industrial issues. During one of these bursts of speed by the industrial issues, United States Steel common, the market's leader, sold up to 116¾, the highest price it has touched since 1917.

Emergency Rules.

During the present trading it became necessary to establish emergency rules on the floor of the Stock Exchange. One of these was that no bid and asked prices were to be sent to the tubes on the Exchange floor and that these tubes were to be retained for actual orders. Such a condition never before existed.

Another development was the employment yesterday by many prominent brokerage houses of the financial district of additional clerks to handle their floor business on the Exchange. On ordinary days most of the Stock Exchange firm hire one of these free lance brokers to aid their regular members in executing orders. Yesterday some of the prominent firms had five or six of these brokers working for them.

New high records were established yesterday by fifty-six stocks, evenly divided between the industrial and railroad lists. The new high records for the year were made by the following stocks:

Orders Road to Pay $93,000 For Fire in a Woman's Timber

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 20.—A verdict of $93,000, said to be the largest on record in Atlantic County, was returned today by a jury in the Supreme Court at Mays Landing in favor of Mrs. Rebecca F. Winston of Estelville.

Mrs. Winston sued the Reading Railroad for the destruction of 4,700 acres of timberland near her home by fire which she said had been started by sparks from one of the railroad's locomotives.

The railroad, which is to appeal, denied that it had been responsible for the fire. It maintained that all of its engines were equipped with spark arresters and contended that there was nothing to show that the sparks which caused the fire had not come from a locomotive owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad, which also passes near Mrs. Winston's property.

CENOTAPH 'SPIRITS' CALLED A FRAUD

Controversy Rages Over Photographs Supposed to Show the Faces of British War Dead.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—"Spirit photographs," which purported to have been taken at the cenotaph service on Armistice Day, are denounced by The Daily Sketch, after investigation, as "a cruel fraud designed to deceive credulous people and bereaved relatives of the glorious dead." Moreover, the newspaper calls Mrs. Deane, who professed to have taken them, as a "charlatan and fraud," who knew perfectly that her spirit photographs were faked.

This latest controversy in the spiritualistic world began with the publication in The Daily Sketch of a picture of the Armistice Day service with clouds around the top of the cenotaph, in which apparently could be seen floating numerous faces of men.

The photograph, it was explained, was taken during the two minutes silence by a certain Mrs. Deane and Miss Violet Deane in company with Miss Estelle Stead, daughter of the late W. T. Stead, well-known journalist and leader of spiritualistic thought, and Miss Scratchard. Charges of fraud are now advanced by The Daily Sketch only against Mrs. Deane.

"These charges have arisen through the discovery that the faces in the cloud can be in many cases identified as those of well-known sporting men like Battling Siki, Jimmy Wilde and several prominent professional football players who are still alive.

The Daily Sketch investigated and proceeded to see whether it could make pictures for itself. It obtained a photographic group of some of the most charming and lively members of the Gaiety Chorus and by clever manipulation produced a picture showing them floating over the entrance to the theatre and smiling on all who entered. Then the newspaper issued a challenge to Mrs. Deane. Let her produce one of her spirit photographs under conditions proposed by the paper to guard against fraud, and the paper was prepared to hand over £1,000 to the Middlesex Hospital.

Its condemnation of Mrs. Deane's photographs naturally aroused answers from believers in spiritualism, and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in particular wrote declaring that he could not possibly see the identification of the spirit faces in the cenotaph picture with well-known athletes. He pointed out that the faces were so shadowy in the photograph it was impossible to be sure about them and argued that Mrs. Deane had not the technical skill to fake them as was alleged. She says: "So you no understand that I cannot do this under any conditions? They do not come from me. They come from some power which works through me and over which I have no control. My results are often very different from what I expect. Such power may work to console afflicted folk. But I doubt if money would tempt it to come at the blowing of a newspaper man."

RIDICULES "DEATH RAYS."

Gen. Fries Also Says No "Supernatural" War Gas Has Been Found.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (Associated Press).—Reports of the development of new poison gases with "super-natural powers" of destruction, or of the evolution of death dealing rays of terrible effectiveness, are both ridiculously erroneous and seriously misleading, Brig. Gen. Amos A. Fries, chief of the chemical warfare service, asserts in his annual report.

"All known rays and power obey certain definite laws," General Fries said, adding that the same restrictions applied as well to gases. "Here and there advances are made in understanding those laws and directing them; but it is believed proper and safe to say that no real scientist can yet foresee the day when such control of these substances is possible that life and machinery can be destroyed at anything but short distances,—distances too short for any considerable use in war."

MRS. PINCHOT CHARGES DRY LAW CORRUPTION

Says New Law Is Planned in Pennsylvania to Stop Distilleries From Operating.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—Charges of gross corruption in connection with the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment were made by Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the Governor of Pennsylvania, before 1,000 women here today.

"You would not believe the extent of this corruption if I were to tell you," she said. "Men from whom we expect integrity yield to the pressure."

Replying to a previous speech by Chief of Police Morgan Collins, to the effect that liquor is brought into Illinois from Pennsylvania, Mrs. Pinchot said that her husband's agents seize quantities of liquor at the State distilleries and complain to the Federal authorities, but that the distilleries go right on because their Federal permits are not revoked.

"But a bill will be submitted to the coming Legislature," she continued, "requiring breweries and distilleries to have State as well as Federal permits. When that is passed Illinois will receive no more liquor from Pennsylvania."

Putting the dry forces under civil service will do the greatest good toward prohibition enforcement, according to Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, United States Assistant Attorney General.

MADE LOUIS LETTERS PUBLIC

Judet, Paris Editor, Brought Out Correspondence.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—Ernest Judet, former editor of The Eclair, who was tried and acquitted of espionage, was the guiding spirit behind the publication of the correspondence of the late French Ambassador to Russia, Georges Louis, it became known today.

M. Judet's connection with the publication of these letters, which accused M. Poincaré of being partially responsible for the World War, was admitted by the publishers of them, who said M. Judet was executor of M. Louis's will.

The publisher denied that the correspondence ever had been in the hands of foreigners and said that he had never had any dealings with the German journalist, Hartmann, except to refuse to grant him the German rights for the book. Hartmann met M. Judet in Switzerland, where he learned of the existence of the letters, though he never was permitted to see them.

It was also denied that M. Judet had altered the text of any of the letters, which were declared to be in the handwriting of M. Louis.

Schooner Raided by Hijacker Pirates, Adrift Six Weeks, Located in Midocean

The British schooner Veronica, describing herself as the victim of pirates who left her adrift in midocean for six weeks without compass or chronometer, was reported found yesterday by the steamship President Harding of the United States Line, incoming from Hamburg. The President Harding told of finding the schooner, adrift with a large crew, in radio messages to the offices of the United States Lines and to the Independent Wireless Telegraph Company, via the radio station at East Moriches, L. I.

The first messages telling of the discovery of the drifting schooner, which had been missing for six weeks, were sent by radio in the morning. From their contents it was presumed that the Veronica had fallen victim of hijackers reported to have raided many ships loaded or believed to be loaded with liquor intended for smuggling into the United States.

The President Harding reported in her first radio that the British schooner had drifted across her course. The steamship gave the position of the schooner as latitude 41.46, longitude 43.31.

"Veronica sighted at dusk. Vessel displayed flare and rockets, which in the S-O-S in Morse code. The Harding's course was changed at once in order to render assistance. With the use of searchlights, the ship's boats were sent alongside the Veronica. The schooner's captain reported that they had been raided by pirates on Nov. 15, who after raiding the vessel had stolen the compass magnets and had put the chronometer out of order.

"The Veronica requested [or refused, the word is not clear in the message] a tow. They attempted to lower a case of liquor to the ship's boats. The President Harding was delayed two hours on account of rendering assistance to the Veronica, which, to all appearances, was seaworthy and had a large crew in good health, who were satisfied to remain on board. Believe Veronica broke from moorings during recent gales. Owners acknowledged report."

The reference to the owners having acknowledged report, it was explained at the United States Lines offices, means that the President Harding sent to the owners of the Veronica at Halifax a message reporting the finding of the schooner, describing her condition and position and received an acknowledgment of the radio from the owners of the schooner. It is believed by officials of the United States Lines that a tug and provisions are on their way to the Veronica.

ITALIAN CHAMBER STIRRED BY FASCIST

PREMIER IS ALSO ATTACKED

ROME, Nov. 20.—The Chamber, excitement in which is daily growing as a vote of confidence on the Government's internal policy approaches, was today stirred more deeply than it ever has been since the opening of this session by two speeches, one against and one in defence of Fascism's home policy.

The first was by the Liberal Deputy Soleri, faithful follower of Giolitti, who voted against the Government last Saturday, and the second was by the Fascist Deputy Demarsico, who entered Parliament at the last elections for the first time.

Signor Soleri's speech, which from beginning to end was a condemnation of Premier Mussolini's home policy and especially of his decree limiting the freedom of the press and his failure to suppress violence and restore peace, was punctuated by frequent interruptions from the ministerial bench and by applause from a small group of Deputies who sat around the orator. He ended, however, amid the dead silence of the House, even those few Deputies who had previously applauded him apparently not wishing to endorse his criticisms of the Government.

Signor Demarsico's speech on the contrary was a riot of acclaim throughout. When he sat down he was greeted with round after round of applause, which was repeated after the President of the Chamber had given the sitting closed, whereupon a crowd of friends and admirers rushed at him to embrace and kiss him and shake him enthusiastically by the hand.

Signor Soleri based his criticism of the Government on the decree restricting the freedom of the press, on dissolution of many municipal councils, on the rise of the cost of living and on suppression of political liberty. Addressing Premier Mussolini, he said:

"You have declared that the internal situation of Italy is good. I pay you the compliment of believing that you do not hold the Italian people in such contempt as to suppose that they can stand oppression of their liberties without resistance. If suppression of liberty is necessary—and I do not deny that it is necessary—it is the best proof of the utter failure of your home policy."

"It is a situation which arose in 1919, before we took over the Government."

"The Communists also suppressed liberty," continued Signor Soleri, "and Fascismo grew to great strength because the people believed that after breaking communism it would restore liberty. Now that this hope proves to have been groundless public opinion has abandoned Fascismo. The Communists protected against the State from without, but the turbulent Fascisti act against the State from within, which is infinitely worse.

"The majesty of the law must be upheld by force if necessary, but it must be upheld by the nation itself, or in other words, by the armed forces of the Crown and not by the militia, which is a tool of one political party, otherwise peace is unstable and illusory.

"I present a motion of no confidence in the Government. I quite realize that the Government neither needs nor seeks our advice or support because it feels secure in the support of its 300 majorities. Nevertheless, we shall vote against the Government because we do not see that it is able to lead the country back to peace, to enforce the laws strictly and impartially or to keep its followers in order, which are the most crying needs of the moment."

Signor Demarsico spoke immediately after Signor Soleri. He attacked the latter's arguments one by one, quoting a wealth of constitutional precedents to show the perfect legality of all of the Government's actions. Then he painted a stirring contrast between Italy as Fascism found it and Italy as it is now, defend the Fascist militia with impassioned words, described Mussolini's ceaseless and successful efforts in face of tremendous difficulties to elevate the country materially and morally and encouraged the Government to continue along the road it is now treading.

He ended amid a tornado of applause by extolling the sacrifice of the Fascisti, who willingly gave up their lives to build Italy anew.

"They died smilingly, our 3,000 martyrs," he shouted turning toward Signor Soleri, who sat opposite him across the floor of the house, "to construct something permanent. Make no illusions for yourselves; they have indeed created something permanent, and their sacrifice will not have been made in vain."

COLD WAVE SWEEPS ITALY.

Snow Falls Near Rome—Rural Natives Set Watch for Wolves.

ROME, Nov. 20.—Italy is in the grip of a severe cold spell which covers virtually the entire peninsula. Not only the mountains in the north but even those surrounding Rome are covered with snow and the temperature here sank during last night to about 20 degrees Fahrenheit, which is unusual for this region.

The sheep and cattle already are being driven down from the Abruzzi Mountains to the plains for the winter season, and in several villages special watches have been organized as a defense against the wolves forced out of their mountain haunts by snow and hunger.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 20.—A snowfall which has lasted five days has completely demoralized the country. All traffic is disorganized and the high water in the Danube is expected to prevent the early closing of the river ports this Winter.

MOORS CUT DOWN SPANIARDS IN PASS

GEN. BERENGUER WOUNDED

Failure to Discharge Soldiers Whose Time Is Up Said to Be Causing Trouble in Garrisons.

MADRID, Nov. 20.—The troops retiring from Sheshuan have had a stiff engagement with the Moor. Near Sok-el-Arba, halfway between Sheshuan and Tetuan, at a point where the road passes through a narrow defile, the Moors attacked vigorously. General Federico Beringuer, brother of the ex-High Commissioner, was wounded in the side. A full list of casualties is not yet known, but one Lieutenant Colonel was killed and two were wounded, which seems to indicate serious losses.

The columns finally reached Sok-el-Arba.

Stormy weather still prevails and has caused considerable damage to the Spanish camps.

In the Larache sector the relief of Mexerah base camp and its outlying posts continues. A convoy of thirty lorries and 400 mules was put into Mexerah yesterday.

General Berenguer, the former High Commissioner, having complained that his quarters in the fortress where he is confined are very damp, the Directory has ordered his accommodation to be improved.

MADRID, Nov. 20 (Associated Press).—It was officially announced today that during the withdrawal of the Spanish troops from Sheshuan to Sok-el-Arba, about fifteen miles north of Sheshuan on the road to Tetuan, General Federico Berenguer was severely wounded just as he was taking over command of a column commanded by General Serrano, who had been killed by a stray bullet.

In the Spanish forces and the Riffian tribesmen Lieut. Col. Temprano was also killed and Lieut. Cols. Alvares, Zarenas and Lasada were wounded. It was said there were many casualties among the officers and men of the native troops.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—Postponement of the discharge of the soldiers in the 1921 class, whose time has expired, has caused trouble throughout Spain, according to a person well acquainted with the Spanish situation who has just arrived over the border, says the correspondent of La Journal at Hendaye.

According to the writer, there were numerous cases of insubordination in the African army and also in the Madrid barracks, where mutineers had to be disarmed. Two hundred of them were arrested and will be court-martialled, he reports.

The acting Premier, Rear Admiral Marquis de Magaz, told a delegation of soldiers' families who appealed for the discharge or at least the transfer to Spain of those in Africa whose time had expired that necessity dictated their retention. He hoped, however, that the men could be discharged by Jan. 10.

Premature calling to the colors of recruits of the 1924 class, who were not due to be summoned before February, has added still further to the discontent, according to Le Journal's informant.

GERARD SHATTERS IBANEZ SPY TALE

'My Sympathies Are With France,' Alfonso Told Ambassador in Wartime Conversation.

King Alfonso of Spain, who is now being accused by Vicente Blasco Ibañez—in pamphlets distributed from a safety zone in Paris—of having allowed French secrets to reach Germany during the war, told ex-Ambassador James W. Gerard that he was a partisan of the Allies.

Mr. Gerard revealed the fact yesterday. The conversation with the King occurred when Mr. Gerard went through Spain after returning to the passports from Germany following the entrance of the United States into the war.

"During the two or three days that I was in Madrid," said Mr. Gerard, "I had an audience with King Alfonso. We were alone for about an hour and he asked me a great many questions relating to the war. In the course of the conversation he said:

"'Don't forget that I am an Austrian Grand Duke and the son of an Austrian Grand Duke and Duchess. But I suppose you are curious to know where my sympathies are in the war. My sympathies are with you.'

"I didn't put that in any books or articles," Mr. Gerard added, "because I did not think he intended to have that published at the time. But I felt that he was telling me his honest opinion."

CLASH OVER INDIA AT OPIUM PARLEY

Message From Gandhi and Missionaries Demanding Suppression Denounced by Delegate.

AMERICAN PETITION FILED

Canada and China Support the American Proposals—First Conference Not to Meet Again.

GENEVA, Nov. 20 (Associated Press).—A lively incident marked the close this afternoon of the session of the International Opium Conference when John Campbell, a Scotchman, who is the official delegate of India, protested strongly against the declaration alleged to have been made during the session by a British missionary that the Government of India did not represent the people of India.

The incident came as an unexpected climax to the meeting, which had been set apart for hearing the views of the world's private organizations on the opium and narcotic drug evil. Inspiring appeals for effective measures of control were made by eight speakers, among them two American women, Mrs. John J. Moorehead of New York, representing the Foreign Policy Association of America, and Mrs. Hollister Sturges of Philadelphia, representing the White Cross of America, who acted as substitute for Canon Bliss of Seattle, who is ill in a Geneva hospital.

India, one of the countries which produce and export opium, had been praised by several speakers for cutting down local consumption, but criticised for not going far enough in the fight against the opium scourge in general.

H. G. Alexander, a representative of the British Quaker Society, created something of a sensation when he announced that he had just received a telegram from the Indian leader, Gandhi, in which he declared: "All India wants the complete suppression of the opium traffic except amounts needed for the world's medical requirements."

After Mr. Alexander came the Rev. E. J. Dukes of the British Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade. It was Mr. Dukes who is alleged to have made the remark about India which was the offensive to Campbell, India's official delegate. When the speakers had concluded the Spanish delegate moved that the Standing Committee prepare a list of the suggestions contained in the various addresses for the information of the conference.

Indian Delegate Protests.

Immediately Mr. Campbell demanded the floor. He declared that the Indian Government was always ready to receive and act, on complaints, but some things had been uttered before the delegates which exceeded all limits of courtesy. One speaker, Mr. Dukes, he charged, had not only declared that the Indian Government did not represent the people, but had gone so far as to proclaim that he himself had a right to speak for the Indian people.

President Zahle intervened to say that he, as President, did not think that Mr. Dukes made the remarks which Mr. Campbell attributed to him, but Mr. Campbell insisted that notes had been taken by his delegation, and there could be no doubt whatever.

After a spirited debate the Spanish motion was put over until tomorrow afternoon, to which time the conference adjourned.

One of Mr. Dukes's statements, which everybody heard, was that the people of India did not "want a stop put to all cultivation of opium except what was necessary for medical needs."

The voice of private organizations heard today by the conference proved powerful for united international action in combatting what all the speakers proclaimed to be an international peril. Eloquent appeals were made by Mrs. Moorehead and Mrs. Sturges. Mrs. Moorehead said that untold millions were waiting anxiously for the outcome of the Geneva Conference. She pleaded especially for the protection of the younger generation.

Mrs. Sturges submitted to the conference a petition signed by 340,000 men and women of America, declaring that they viewed the growing addiction to narcotic drugs as a deadly menace to individuals and nations, rapidly spreading and poisoning of the human race, which could be overcome only by cooperation among all nations.

The petition asked the conference to adopt measures adequate for "the total extirpation of plants from which narcotic drugs originate, except as "found necessary for medicine and science."

Mrs. Sturges explained that many more thousands of signatures to the petition are on the way.

Other speakers included the Rev. A. L. Warnshuis, representing the International Missionary Council, which he said took a stand for Protestant churches in Christendom; Bishop Beaupin, France, who spoke for the Catholic Students' Union, and Dr. Koo, representing the National Anti-Opium Association of China. Dr. Koo declared that the goal of his association was the suppression of opium planting in China and the prevention of smoking and the use of narcotic drugs.

Support for American Proposals.

Canada and China threw their support to the American proposals for the control and ultimate eradication of the narcotic evil when the conference resumed its sessions today. Dr. Henry S. Beland, speaking for Canada, pointed out that the United States had enacted laws the enforcement of which would be materially assisted if the opium evil if clandestine and organized smuggling did not flood the whole land with heroin, morphine and cocaine.

Dr. Beland insisted that the remedy against the invading plague lay in the hands of the conference, and he appealed to all the nations to free humanity "from these hideous monsters."

Alfred Sze, Chinese Minister to the United States, said that the speech delivered yesterday by Bishop Charles H. Brent of the American delegation in elucidating the American proposals had brought the first ray of sunlight he had seen since the past fortnight. This was an allusion to the failure of the preceding conference that which dealt with Far Eastern opium problems.

On behalf of China Mr. Sze thanked Bishop Brent for recommending that nations deriving profit from the sale of opium to smoking addicts should expend this revenue for the unfortunates from whom the profits were obtained, remarking he had fought for the principle at the first conference. He conceded that there had been a recrudescence of the cultivation of opium in China, but said that China would never abandon her policy of total suppression declared in 1906. He gave his pledge that the new Government in Peking again would take steps to free China from the curse. In the Chinese opinion, he said, was rapidly rising, and only yesterday he received a cablegram from the National Anti-Opium Association saying it comprised 1,300 organizations with 2,500,000 members.

Rumania, Egypt, Ireland and the Dominican Republic all expressed themselves in favor of strict provisions limiting the use of opium and other narcotics to medical and scientific needs. Egypt favored including hashish, or Indian hemp, in the list of dangerous habit-forming drugs.

Michael MacWhite, for Ireland, urged that the seven takers-in-chief should not be such as to disappoint the United States, which was cooperating with the League of Nations in this matter.

Sir Malcolm McIntyre of England expressed belief that direct limitation of the production of narcotic drugs was possible.

The Turkish delegate asked to have hashish put on the agenda of the conference. Turkey, he said, merely produces opium, but the Turks themselves never use the drug.

The project to revive the first opium conference, which dealt with Far Eastern problems, and hold a plenary meeting tomorrow has

OPERA

By OLIN DOWNES.

DER ROSENKAVALIER, opera in three acts, book by Hofmannsthal; music by Richard Strauss. At the Metropolitan Opera House.

The Princess	Florence Easton
Baron Ochs	Paul Bender
Octavian	Maria Jeritza
Von Faninal	Gustav Schützendorf
Sophie	Queena Mario
Marianne	Marcella Roeseler
Valzacchi	Angelo Bada
Annina	Kathleen Howard
Commissary of Police	Carl Schlegel
The Major-Domo	Max Altglass
Von Faninal's Majordomo	Raimondo Diello
Notary	William Gustafson
Innkeeper	George Meader
An Singer	Ralph Errolle
Milliner	Phradie Wells
Beefcake, a flunky	Ludovic Surgalla
Animal vendor	Raffaele Limarini
A Negro Boy	Madeleine Lawcok

Conductor, Artur Bodanzky.

The cast which presented Strauss's "Rosenkavalier" last night in the Metropolitan Opera House was in most particulars that of last season, the changes including Queena Mario in place of Elisabeth Rethberg as Sophie and the appearance of the American tenor, Ralph Errole, as the Singer. Other minor substitutions were made which need not detain us. The principal distinctions of the performance were Miss Easton's Princess, Mme. Jeritza's Octavian and Mr. Bender's Baron. Miss Easton not only sang admirably, but her interpretation had the charm, the sentimentalism and the rather bitter wisdom of Hoffmansthal's character.

Miss Easton makes much not only of her scenes with Octavian but the soliloquy as the curtain of the first act falls, as the orchestra discourses some of the most eloquent music of the entire score. Jeritza's Octavian is more natural dressed as a maid than as a suitor, but Mme. Jeritza would be a pleasing figure in any costume and, as usual, she more or less dominated her scenes. Mr. Bender's Baron had the bulk and the coarseness of the character. Its farce is amusing without distasteful horseplay and the voice would be capital for any part. Mr. Errole's voice is light and pleasing in color and it is well employed, but Miss Mario is not an adequate interpreter of the rôle of Sophie, either as actress or in the domain of the vocal art. She needs more variety of gesture, of tone color and general experience to do justice to this, one of the most charming of Strauss's characters.

Mr. Bodanzky's first act was well adjusted and moved smoothly. He is not to blame for the overlong scenes between the princess and her lover. The second act lacked flexibility and esprit. It should move with more lightness and wit. In other respects the performance gave pleasure and the delightful opera, excellently staged, proved again its right to the permanent position that it occupies in the Metropolitan repertory.

New York Symphony.

The feature of the concert given by the New York Symphony Orchestra, Walter Damrosch, conductor, yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall, was the performance of the slow movement of the Bach concerto for two violins, with Albert Spalding and Paul Kochanski as soloists. The quality of the music places it apart from all but the greatest works in this form; actually there is less a concerto in the modern meaning of the term than a work for an ensemble and two solo parts, in the vein of the "concerto grossi" of Bach's and Handel's time.

There were some roughnesses in the performance of the first and the last movements, but the "Largo ma non troppo" had the deep breath and the lovely sentiment of Bach in one of his most tranquil and beautiful moods. The solo violinists were in thorough sympathy with the music, as was Mr. Damrosch, and the broad, virile tone of Mr. Spalding was especially suitable for the interpretation of the music.

The orchestral compositions were Brahms' Third Symphony and the gorgeous "Poem de l'Extase" of Scriabine. The audience was large and it enthusiastically recalled conductor and soloists.

Mlle. Armandie in Recital.

When Mlle. Armandie, the French soprano, who gave a recital at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon, decides to infuse more gaiety into her programs she will find life very much brighter and incidentally cheer her audience up. At present her singing, while very good and very correct in the French style, is all too much in half-lights. Her classic group was well sung in the academic manner, but when it came to the modern it was to do with sudden demise, which is too large a proportion for an afternoon concert. Now, if Mlle. Armandie had sung more Canadian "chansons," like the delightful "Trois Princesses," harmonized by Vuillermoz, she would have added a real page of folk-lore music to her offerings. There was a great deal to commend in Mlle. Armandie as a singer, the only objection one could raise being the sombre character of much of her programme. She was cordially received by the audience.

Philharmonic Gives Concert.

The Philharmonic Orchestra under its leader, William van Hoogstraten, gave a symphonic concert at Carnegie Hall last evening before a large audience. It was impossible to resist the spirit of Handel in his concerto Grosso, with which the program opened. The somewhat heavy dignity of the Introduction paved the way for the Miltonic periods of the affecting Largo. The work is written with more than a reflection of Handel's oratorio manner; he was a "Croyant"; something that a Ravel belonging to this doubting generation never could be in his music, made for the nerves and not the soul. The rarified atmosphere of the French composer was exchanged for the more full-blooded Dvorak in his Second Symphony. The audience was particularly receptive to this, something not to be wondered at when one listened to the rich material which the composer has wrought into its fabric. The assisting artists in the Handel work were Messrs. Guidi, Lange and Leo Schulz.

Quartet Gives Work of Reiser.

The Lenox String Quartet, including Messrs. Harmati, Wolfinsohn, Moldavan and Stoeber, performed at their concert in Aeolian Hall last night a quartet in E minor, Op. 16, by Alois Reiser, a composer once represented at the Stadium Orchestra's concerts and competitor in the present work at a recent Berkshire chamber music festival. Though his music had missed the prize there, it was worth rehearing, and Mr. Reiser was among the listeners. The "modernism" of its moderato assai began in high cacophonies, but melted into glowing, simple harmonies and ended in a shimmer of golden sound in the andante sostenuto, recalling the "radicals" of an older day brought to reason under Dvorak. The evening opened with Brahms's quartet, Op. 51, No. 1, and closed with the Op. 77, No. 2, of Haydn.

Albertina Rasch Dances.

Albertina Rasch, a dancer of classic technique formerly at the Vienna Opera and at Hammerstein's Manhattan, appeared at the Town Hall last night in a score of divertissements with more than a score of young assisting dancers. She herself as Columbine led the varied figures drawn from the rôles Harlequin, Pierrot and the like in Schumann's "Carnival." Mary Parsons gave an "invocation" without music, a silent study in rhythmic acceleration and retard. Miss Rasch, with Chester Hale, La Gitana" with Jacques Cartier, and a "Toyland" group to music of Victor Herbert, accompanied by Max Rabinowitch, piano, and Peter Mersenblum, violin.

Spanish Night at the Piccadilly.

Lee A. Ochs, managing director of the Piccadilly Theatre, gave a Spanish night last night as he is showing a bull-fighting film, "The Street of Seville."

Among those who accepted invitations were the Consul General from Cuba, Chile, Peru, Uruguay, Venezuela, Costa Rica, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Argentina, Salvador and Brazil. Mischa Guterson's special orchestra played the national anthems in honor of the Spanish-speaking countries.

OPERA IN ENGLISH.

All-American Company Gives First Performance in Rochester.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 20.—The first grand opera company composed exclusively of American singers made its début at the Eastman Theatre here this afternoon when the Rochester American Opera Company sang "Pagliacci" and two acts of "Boris Godounoff," at its premier performance. The new company will present all of its operas in English. Its members were gathered from all parts of the country on competitive operatic scholarships and have been preparing at the Eastman Theatre and the Eastman School of Music for the past year. For this season all of its performances will be confined to Rochester.

It is the hope of the new company to give opera a wider appeal for the American people. Eugene Goossens, famous English composer-conductor, who has just finished a season with the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted "Boris."

INCE HAD DEAL WITH HEARST

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 20.—Thomas H. Ince died just as he was about to start an expansion movement which would have connected his film fortunes with those of William Randolph Hearst, it was learned today.

Hearst and Ince were on the point of a deal by which Ince was to obtain screen rights to the Cosmopolitan Film story, "The Enchanted Isle," by Peter B. Kyne. This production, to be produced by Ince, was hailed in many sources as the forerunner of a possible amalgamation of the Ince and Cosmopolitan producing forces at Culver City.

THANK HOTEL MEN HERE.

A feature of the annual dinner of the New York State Hotel Association held last evening at the Hotel Commodore was the presentation of an embossed silver and gold plaque, a gift from the Italian Hotel Men's Association. The presentation was made by Emilio Axerio, the Italian Consul General, and it was accepted for the Association by Frank A. Dudley, President of the American Hotel Association. The plaque was given as an expression of appreciation for the hospitality extended to the European delegation at the International Hotel Congress in this city last November.

Ellmore C. Green, President of the association, was toastmaster and the speakers were Thomas Dunbar Green, and James Schermerhorn of Detroit. There were more than 1,500 present.

JAILED FOR VISITS TO GIRL.

Jamaica Youth Said to Be Infatuated Sent Up to "Think It Over."

Because Frank Seitz, 21, of 6 Franklin Place, Jamaica, could not stay away from the home of a girl with whom he is said to be infatuated, despite a court order, he was sent to jail yesterday for two days "to think it over." He pleaded guilty to violating parole in the Jamaica Court and will be sentenced by Magistrate Miller tomorrow.

Mrs. Amelia MacGowan of 115 Flushing Avenue, mother of the girl, was complainant. She said Seitz came to the house during her absence. Miss MacGowan, the mother said, left home Saturday, and has not yet returned. She is a stenographer, 19 years of age.

SAYS CHARITY CALLS FOR GREAT LEADERS

COMMENDS MILBANK FUND

Elihu Root was the chief speaker last night at the Hotel Commodore at a dinner of the Advisory Council of the Milbank Memorial Fund, which is launching elaborate health demonstrations in this city, at Syracuse and in Cattaraugus County to enlist the public at large in the fight on disease.

Homer Folks, Secretary of the State Charities Aid Association, said that the route of the public health demonstrations started by the Milbank Fund fifteen years ago could be traced today by the public hospitals and clinics which had been established in towns and cities because of the education of the Milbank Fund demonstrations. Public and private gifts for health work on the foundations thus laid had totaled $9,000,000, he said.

"Not only is it extremely difficult to spend large sums of money beneficially, but it is extremely difficult to expend them so as not to do more harm than good. Money itself can do nothing. It is fruitful only as it furnishes opportunity and occasion for human endeavor. All the money in the world and all the organizations in the world are of no use unless a man be found. The human element in the equation is all in all. Find the man of penetration, of enthusiasm, of wisdom, of self-devotion, of birth, of spirit, of commanding personality, and then money that gives him opportunity to do things for the benefit of the public is money well spent.

"The great question of all the people who want to improve the condition of mankind is how to get mankind to try and improve itself. In the attempt to teach people how to avoid the scourge of tuberculosis, to teach them to stop it when it begins, to cure it, to make it a continually dwindling and gradually disappearing evil, we have been led by wise advice to undertake that through something besides mere words—through demonstration."

GOULD GIVES $100,000 TO AID HOSPITAL FUND

St. Mark's Board Announces Contribution—$1,250,000 Sought for New Buildings.

Edwin Gould yesterday gave $100,000 to St. Mark's Hospital to be used in connection with the campaign to raise funds for its new buildings at Eleventh Street and Second Avenue.

The gift was announced at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Managers, by the President, Henry E. Meeker.

The cost of the new buildings will be $1,250,000. They will be designed in the manner of architecture of New York in 1840.

St. Mark's Hospital was established thirty-five years ago in St. Mark's Place. The plan of progressive building has been adopted so that the hospital can continue to care for patients. The wing facing on Eleventh Street will be erected first.

The total number of patients in all departments from 1890 to Dec. 31, 1923, was 193,971.

Traffic League Wants Commerce Commission Sole Arbiter.

The National Industrial Traffic League resolved yesterday at the closing session of its annual meeting at the Hotel Commodore to oppose any attempts at general readjustment of freight rates "based upon political expediency or unproved theory" and to apprise the President and Congress of its attitude.

The resolution, which urges that the question of freight rate revisions be left solely in the hands of the Interstate Commerce Commission, said, in part:

"Any wholesale revision of the rate structure of the United States at this time would seriously handicap the carriers of the country, render uncertain their prospective earnings and cripple their efforts to finance the improvement of needed facilities, and would seriously hamper manufacturing industries and commercial enterprises in developing markets for their products, and disturb every character of business endeavor and precipitate an era of business depression."

Approval was given by the league to reports by committees opposing the Howell-Barkley bill for the amendment of the Labor Board legislation; any measures for the amendment of Section 4 of the Interstate Commerce act, which section pertains to infractions of the act, and to a proposed amendment which would change the provisions of the law concerning the time stipulations for settlements between shippers and railroads. Paul M. Ripley of New York, head of the Traffic Club here, was elected President of the league, and C. E. Childs of Omaha was elected First Vice President.

MYSTERY IN DEATH OF TWO.

Child Finds Bodies of Mother and Boarder in Hallway.

NEW BRUNSWICK, Conn., Nov. 20.—Elma Iko, 12 years old, returning from school today, found the bodies of her mother, Mrs. Mary Iko, and a boarder at the house, Frank Mueller, side by side in the hallway.

The girl immediately notified the police, who following an investigation, turned the case over to the County Prosecutor's office. There was nothing to indicate how the couple met their death, the officers said, although there was a slight trace of illuminating gas in the house. No jets were found open, however, and the officers said the gas that was evident at the time of the investigation was not of sufficient quantity to cause death.

County Physician J. Suydam said an autopsy would be performed tomorrow.

URGE CHRISTMAS TREE BAN.

Forestry Conference Delegate Advocates Federal Law.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—A Federal law to prohibit the sale of Christmas trees was advocated today by H. V. Berry of Fort Plain, N. Y., a delegate to the National Conference on Utilization of Forest Products.

"It is poor practice to teach children to have trees at Christmas," he said, "and to teach them to plant a tree next year. You are allowing them to do what you are seeking to prevent."

MORDKIN RETURNS ON SOVIET PERMIT

Mikail Mordkin, the Russian dancer who last visited this country in 1912, returned yesterday to begin an engagement with his company next week in the Greenwich Village Follies. Among those who met him at the pier on arrival was a group of Near East Relief workers headed by Captain George E. Smith.

It was explained that in 1922 the Near East Relief staff had found the dancer with his wife and 10-year-old son near death in a box-car near Tiflis in the Caucasus, suffering from typhus, and it was only the care of the Americans that saved their lives. Ever since that time, Mordkin said, he had been trying to get the Soviet authorities to let him come to America, and had succeeded only a few months ago. He is here on a six months' permit from that Government.

The dancer shows no signs of the sufferings he went through as a refugee from Russia after the revolution in the Crimea and the Caucasus. He has been living in Moscow since his return from Tiflis late in 1922, and yesterday, in his manager's office, he gave reporters some impressions of conditions of theatrical life in Moscow. He refused to discuss politics or the economic situation of his country.

"There is a great shortage of housing in Moscow," he said, "and four of us in my family lived in one room. Lodgings are supervised by committees under Government regulation. You pay your rent to this committee. I paid five gold rubles a month for each square foot of floor area of my room. The Government has just issued regulations prescribing 4 square feet as a minimum of space per individual and 15 square feet as a maximum.

"The theatres are being operated at full speed, perhaps even more vigorously than they were in the old days. The Government subsidizes them and promotes them. At the Great State Theatre, on the one hand, you find the best seats bringing 7½ gold rubles, while on the other there are sections that are free of cost to the working people.

"The old traditions of art are being preserved. I cannot say that new conditions find much reflection in what is being done. One amusing instance comes to my mind, however. There is a half historical, half legendary character named Pougatcheff, a Brigand who flourished more than a century ago. The old theatre would have nothing to do with him. Now, however, he is declared to have been an expression of the people's oppression under the old regime. So glorified is he that next January, the 250th anniversary of his hanging, the Moscow Art Theatre will produces a play about him.

"That is only an incident, however. In general the theatre is not much affected by new conditions. For a time right after the revolution there was a short wave of nudity and license on the stage. So many of the poor people who had never gone to the theatre now suddenly went, for that sort of thing appealed. The Soviet Government has stopped anything of that kind, however, and the stage is now very discreet.

"We are searching for some form of art expression to meet the new conditions, but we have not as yet found it. In the end there will be differences, I am sure. For instance, the Government has taken a club in Moscow, formerly sacred to the nobles, and transformed it into a workingman's theatre. And in all the other theatres, just as the Great State Theatre, there are free sections for working people, the tickets for which are distributed by their committees. The best artists appear in these theatres. In the end, the meeting between these artists and the new kind of audiences cannot fail to produce new ideas."

Aid Erie Canal Centennial.

Representatives of trade and civic organizations in this city have held several conferences to discuss plans for participation in the Erie Canal Centennial. As a result a New York City advisory board will be formed. The celebration will take place during the Summer of 1925 and the Centennial Commission, of which George Clinton of Buffalo, a descendant of De Witt Clinton, is Chairman, will make a full report to the Legislature next month.

Pastor Is Upheld in Will Fight.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 20.—The Rev. George E. Schnabel, pastor of the Immanuel Lutheran Church of this city, was upheld today as the executor of a $15,000 estate left by Mrs. Josephine Shook, a member of his congregation, in the Surrogate's Court. Mr. Schnabel is the executor and chief beneficiary of Mrs. Shook's will, was alleged by her relatives to have exerted "undue influence" over the woman.

'WE'LL BEAT YALE,' HARVARD SLOGAN

Halfback, Injured for Two Weeks, Expected to Start Against Blue—Drill in Yale Bowl Today.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 20.—Harvard's undergraduates, with the crimson coated band, and every youngster shouting "We'll beat Yale" at the top of their voices, marched from Harvard Square to the stadium this afternoon to show how thoroughly it is behind Bob Fisher's team, which will start for New Haven tomorrow morning.

At the field the students found three elevens running through signals, and the racket continued, every player being cheered. The coaches also were cheered and the windup was a bonfire onto which many tons of straw were piled by the scrubs. The practice today was Harvard's last before meeting Yale on Saturday, except for the short signal drill which will be held down in the Bowl tomorrow afternoon.

There was a significant change in the line-up of the first team during the last run of plays by the varsity. Jack Adie, who has not been in the best of trim and who was replaced at centre by Captain Greenough after the Princeton game, was back in the middle of the line, and the leader was in his old position as right tackle, which he played year before last and where he began the present season. Adie was on the cripples' list, but yesterday and the day before was able to do some running. It may not be a final choice to place him at centre Saturday, but he was there today.

Miller to Wear Pad.

Another welcome shift was that of Miller into the back field again. Miller has been out of all scrimmaging for nearly two weeks with a shoulder injury which took a long time healing, and during the process the coaches were not willing to subject him to any hard football. He is not completely recovered, but his shoulder will be protected by a heavy pad and even if he does not start the game he will be available as a substitute until he hurts his shoulder again.

Jack Hammond was on neither the first nor second team, still being lame, in addition to nursing a shoulder which is not quite right yet. Hammond, however, in all probability will be ready to start Saturday, although Maher is now rated as about as dependable a kicker as Hammond and is a more versatile backfield asset. Gamache is expected to replace Dean at end.

Greenough's passing, while he was at centre, was as good as Adie's was earlier in the year, and the return of the former centre rush, who has had three years' experience, will add considerable to the rush-line strength of the team.

Substitutes Are Shifted.

The first string of substitutes was the same as yesterday except that Samborski was in the backfield, with Rogers and Howe, and Lindner was at tackle in place of Corcoran. Lindner was Greenough's substitute when Greenough was taken from tackle to centre rush and many think he is a stronger player right now than the captain. He was aggressive against Brown, as was Coady, and will be ready to step into the line if there appears to be a break.

Two players from the second squad were brought up to the varsity today and will be taken to New Haven. These men were Jack Heagney, tackle and scrub team captain, and T. H. D. Blake, quarterback, who has been with the scrubs for three seasons.

Tomorrow at 10 o'clock the Harvard party will be off for New Haven with forty-nine players, twelve coaches, ten attaches and eight managers. The entire Harvard football group will go to Derby tomorrow night after the drill in the Yale Bowl. Leo Leary and Lothrop Withington, Babe Felton and Mal Logan, who have been helping Fisher take in the season, all will go with the regular coaches.

This afternoon Gehrke, Daley, Braden, Zarakov, Cheek, Nash and Spalding all were at the field, but none was dressed for football. These fellows, though, probably all will be in uniform Saturday.

The confidence that Harvard will make a battle of it at New Haven is gaining strength, but those who have seen the team for the last month and also have seen Yale feel that it is going to take all sorts of breaks for Harvard to come through a winner or even tie the Blue on Saturday.

DOBIE WORKS ON DEFENSE.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 20.—Another perfect day permitted the Cornell football squad to spend its entire practice period out of doors, and Coach Dobie took advantage of this opportunity to give the varsity a thorough drilling in defensive play against the Pennsylvania system of attack, especially the forward pass.

Although the utmost secrecy surrounded the practice, reports were in circulation that Dobie has expanded the Ithacans' defensive formations and that more men will be available for checking the Penn aerial game than have been used before. The loss of Frank Affeld, varsity centre, has confronted Dobie with a special problem. Affeld played a roving centre and was particularly useful in defense against short passes. Reed, his probable successor at the pivot position, is heavier than Affeld but less agile and not so speedy.

In today's defensive play Patterson, Wester, Whetstone, Isaly and Molinet all received special coaching and the ends also came in for a good deal of attention. Completely recovered from the bruises he suffered in the Dartmouth game, Fred Wester returned to the line-up today at quarterback in place of Isaly. All of the other regulars were in their places.

PENN SCORES THREE TIMES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—With ground and air plays the Penn varsity, preparing for Cornell, romped through the scrubs on Franklin Field this afternoon for three touchdowns. The scores were made by Laird, Fields and Craig. This was the first scrimmage held since the tie battle with Penn State, all of the regulars being in the line-up with the exception of Robinson, the centre, who has a bad knee. Dick Snyder held down centre.

The second varsity also scored twice on the scrubs.

Rutgers and Bucknell will run through signals at Franklin Field early tomorrow afternoon and Penn will not scrimmage until later.

Princeton Freshmen Tie at Soccer.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—Princeton and Penn freshman soccer teams battled to a 2 to 2 tie on the River Field this afternoon. Two extra periods were played. Herwits and Pratt of Penn were injured.

Harvard Rewards 6 Youths With Trip to Game in Bowl

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 20.—Half a dozen happy youngsters started a trip from Cambridge to New Haven tonight, accompanied by two truckloads of equipment that will be used by the Harvard football players when they face Yale in the Bowl on Saturday. The youngsters have been chasing footballs all over Soldiers' Field this Fall and helping out whenever possible. The Harvard players are their idols and they follow the team's victories and defeats with the same interest as the undergraduate body. For their efforts in helping out on the gridiron they are being rewarded with the trip to New Haven, and they will be the guests of the Harvard Athletic Association at the game.

HARVARD TO HONOR HAUGHTON MEMORY

Classmates and Former Pupils on Football Squads Plan to Erect Memorial.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 20.—Classmates and former football players coached by Percy D. Haughton at Harvard are to erect a memorial for him at Harvard. With this in view a thousand letters were mailed out today seeking funds. The signers are classmates of the dead coach, who died in harness while coaching at Columbia, and former pupils of his on Harvard football fields. An extract from the communication follows:

"We believe that most of the men who were associated with Percy Haughton will wish to share in this tribute. It should serve as an inspiration to future teams and as a permanent remembrance of one who stood pre-eminently for the best type of clean, manly sport," states the communication sent to all members of Haughton's class and the football squads during the year he was head coach here.

It is signed by Arthur Adams and J. W. Farley of the class of '90, of which Haughton was a graduate; Farley was Chairman of the Advisory Committee during the Haughton régime here. Other signers included J. W. Cutler, '09; G. G. Browne, '10; Dr. Paul Withington, '10, who succeeded Haughton as head coach at Columbia; Robert T. Fisher, captain of the 1911 eleven and his successor at Harvard; H. R. Hardwick and M. L. Logan, '15.

"It is not desired, however, that any one should contribute any larger sum than he wishes. The form and location of the memorial will depend upon the amount of money received, and will be subject to the approval of Mrs. Haughton, widow of the dead coach, the Harvard Athletic Committee and the Harvard Corporation," the communication says.

WESTERN CONTESTS WILL SETTLE TITLE

CHICAGO, Nov. 20 (Associated Press).—Reports from Western Conference training camps have not reflected the intense undergraduate and public interest this week in Saturday's closing games of the season. From the routine reports of practice from the ten institutions it would not be realized that the season has crescendoed to a climax which finds four of the elevens battling for first honors, although three are leading forlorn hopes.

"Stags grooms substitutes for Badger battle," sums up the information on practice at the University of Chicago in preparation for the game which would permit the Maroons an undisputed claim to the championship.

"Scrimmage against the freshmen, who filled the air with passes from Ohio State formations," covered the situation at the University of Illinois, which still had hope of a conference championship despite the Chicago tie and the Minnesota reverse.

Iowa and Michigan reports of fear of each other told the story of the other two championship aspirants. They play each other and either could claim a hold on the title by winning. If at the same time something happened to Chicago.

Above it all, however, soared the speculations and hopes of thousands of football-goers who will trek to the various gridirons to ring down the curtain in the proverbial blaze of glory on one of the Big Ten's most unusual seasons.

Reports that Notre Dame intends "to eat 'em alive," just to show how far it stood above the team which held Chicago, the probable conference winner, to a 3 to 0 score, have not dismayed Northwestern. Enjoying its most successful season in three years, having finally won a conference game, Northwestern is laboring mightily to see if Notre Dame's famous four horsemen, Crowley, Miller, Stuhldreher and Layden, cannot be forced to suffer from stringhalt rather than complete the devastating ride toward a claim of a national championship.

Tod Rockwell, Michigan's quarter, has an opportunity to end his conference football career as the leading point scorer, since Harold (Red) Grange of Illinois, who leads him by one point, is out for the season with an injured shoulder. Rockwell has 77 points to his credit.

The record of Harry Thomas, Chicago halfback, of never having participated in a conference game in which his team was defeated is also at stake. Thomas was one of the two conference games Chicago lost in the three years he has been with the team.

Premier honors in the Hoosier section of the Western Conference inspire Indiana and Purdue to strenuous preparation for their tilt at Lafayette. Indiana's victory over Ohio State gives it the edge, but the Boilermakers have a victory over Northwestern and a good showing against Chicago to their credit.

Minnesota has the football honors of the north in its hands as it grooms for the Vanderbilt game at Minneapolis.

SPECIAL WIRE FOR GAME.

Illinois and Ohio State Alumni Here to Get Football Returns.

The alumni of the University of Illinois and Ohio State University who are residing in the metropolitan district have arranged for a special wire, over which each play of the game between the Illinois and Ohio State elevens at Urbana tomorrow will be received. Announcement to this effect has been made by O. J. Troster, Secretary of the Illinois Club of New York. The returns will come in at the Brown University Club, 19 East Thirty-ninth Street, starting. It is expected, about 2:45 New York time.

Wesleyan Eleven Names Phillips.

Dave Shade to Meet Phil Krug.

Dave Shade, California welterweight, who has been recognized as the foremost challenger for the world's championship held by Mickey Walker, is scheduled to meet Phil Krug, the Harrison, N. J., boxer, at the Seventh Regiment Armory in Newark on Dec. 4.

TWO YALE ELEVENS READY FOR BATTLE

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 20.—Although today's football drill was limited to signal rehearsal and a dummy workout it lasted nearly two hours. It was begun in the Bowl, and, because darkness fell before the program of skeleton playing was carried out, the squad went over to Pratt Field and, under electric lights, worked another half hour.

No line-up changes were made except that Eddie Bench was restored to quarterback, emphasizing the coaching plan to use him in the opening charge against Harvard Saturday and to call Phil Bunnell, should a scoring opportunity present itself later in the battle.

Shepard Bingham took his place at left end and Trainer George Connors said that Bingham's knee is strong enough to warrant his being used against the Crimson. Because Bingham has not scrimmaged for three weeks there is no chance of his playing the entire game, but Stanley Gill, Ted Hart, Shattuck Osborne and Fred Potts have been developed by End Coach Charley Comerford into an impressive squad of wingmen, all of whom are likely to be summoned for emergency duty.

Two Elevens Named.

Today's dummy practice against the varsity closed the playing season for the scrubs, who will break training tomorrow night with an elaborate banquet at which the coaches and Captain Lovejoy will thank them for their services.

Ready to Receive Harvard.

Arrangements were completed today by Jimmy Burns, President of the Yale Football Association, for the reception of the Harvard team at 1:40 o'clock tomorrow, when the Bowl will be turned over to the Crimson invaders, who have stated that they will depart by 5 o'clock. The Yale band will take its first grand rehearsal on Pratt Field. Following their signal drill in the Bowl the Harvard players will go to the Hotel Clark at Derby to spend the night. They will return to their dressing-rooms at the Bowl just before the game.

Yale undergraduates believe that it will be possible for their eleven to exceed Harvard's record score of 41 points in the game here Saturday. Whether the Eli coaches will hold back scoring plays and be content with a much smaller score is uncertain. Most of the Yale campus estimates place Saturday's probable score at 20 points for Yale and 7 for Harvard.

STUDENTS CHEER RUTGERS.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 20.—Rutgers had its last practice on Nielson Field for the 1924 season this afternoon amid an outburst of student enthusiasm never before equaled along the Raritan. As darkness came on the students laid a tacking dummy labeled "Bucknell" on top of a pile of wood in the centre of the gridiron and shouted some more as the mass went up in flames.

Undefeated for the first time in history, Rutgers finished its work today and will go to Philadelphia tomorrow for a final drill on Franklin Field before the game with Bucknell there Saturday. This morning Rutgers University awoke to find campus flag poles flying "Beat Bucknell" banners, ruddy painted posters tacked to trees and shouting and the street pavement smeared with huge signs. Tonight a torchlight parade around the campus ended at Ballantine Gymnasium, where in a rousing rally, speeches were made by Acting President W. T. Marvin, Graduate Manager Garrison, Coach Wallace, Paul Robeson, all-American end in 1918, and four letter men, Paul J. Duffy, 1921 Captain, and Cliff Baker, quarterback in 1918 and 1919.

It was determined at today's practice that Homer Hazel had recovered and would play fullback Saturday, and that the only absentee would be Bender, left tackle, who was also hurt in the N. Y. U. game. Coldschmidt will start at this position with Zing and Freedman in reserve. Benkert will be at right halfback and Singer and Chandler alternating at left half.

FARLEY HURT IN PRACTICE.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 20.—Tonight West Virginia football fans were thoroughly alarmed as a result of the news that Farley, star left halfback, had been removed from signal drill this afternoon. Coaches announced that he is suffering from painful bone bruises and they fear complications. Farley started in the regular line-up but had to be excused.

Hill, veteran centre, hurt in yesterday's scrimmage, is not likely to get in uniform before Saturday. Nardacci joined the Mountaineer squad today and was used at both halfbacks. McHenry was shifted from left guard to centre for Hill, and Jennewein drew the guard assignment. Captain Graham and Ekberg were in at end and fullback, respectively, for a short time during the rehearsal of signals. Despite the condition of some of the regulars, Dr. Spears put the squad through another long workout. The team will be worked hard in preparation for the Thanksgiving Day game with Washington and Jefferson.

FORDHAM SQUAD INTACT.

Maroon Will Line Up Full Strength Against Catholic Unuiversity.

Coach Frank Gargan ordered another hard day for the Fordham squad yesterday and put them through an hour and a half of stiff signal drilling in preparation for the Catholic University game which will be played at Fordham Field tomorrow. A blackboard talk was included in the day's program and Gargan lectured the players on the defects of their work in Wednesday's scrimmage. The squad then went outdoors and were put through one of the longest signal drills of the season. Touchdown plays was the feature of the practice and Gargan covered all the points of the aerial game with the first squad.

The Maroon will be able to line up with full strength when they meet the Washington collegians on Saturday. Leary was seen back in good playing condition yesterday after being on the sidelines for the past few days. Captain Paul Breanen is again in fine trim and will be ready for this week's game after a two week's absence from the squad. Slane will probably start in the Fordham backfield but Gargan intends to play his other backs in order to have a final look at them prior to select the best one for the Maroon's big game with Georgetown on Nov. 29 at the Polo Grounds.

YALE TO KEEP JONES FOR 3 MORE YEARS

Board of Control Unanimously Votes to Renew Contract With Head Football Coach.

Yale Men Pleased His Policies Will Be Continued—Has Coached Six Elevens.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 20.—John Blossom, Graduate Director of Athletics at Yale, tonight announced that T. A. D. Jones has been re-engaged as football head coach for three years. Mr. Blossom said that the vote of the Board of Control of the Athletic Association was taken at a special meeting held Wednesday night and was unanimous.

Jones has been head coach of Yale football teams for the past five seasons, his contract expiring this year. In 1916 he was head coach of Black's championship eleven. Business took him away from New Haven until after the World War, but he returned in 1920. His team won all its games last season and has gone through the present Fall undefeated so far.

Jones was graduated from Yale with the class of 1908, Sheffield Scientific School, and played on football and baseball teams three years. He captained the baseball nine in his senior year.

That Jones has again put football at Yale on a firm basis is the opinion of Yale men. The renewal of his contract means to them that the policy he has followed for the past two years and which has met with sweeping success will be continued another three years at least. Under his system driving the players is eliminated, and the motto is intensive but light work.

Jones will continue his work as general sales manager for A. H. Fewell & Co., wholesale coal dealers of New Haven. He joined that firm a little over a year ago.

ARMY IS PREPARING AGAINST AIR ATTACK

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 20.—Today's fine weather gave the Army squad a chance to get in a long football practice, the last one it will have this week. Navy plays, which have been in evidence for the last couple of days, were used by the Mules, as the scrubs now are being termed. The varsity men got a good long look at them today, for the big team's defensive drill went for an extended period.

Navy's airline attack didn't get far, the varsity's defense breaking up most of the overhead tosses, while Wilson and Bill Wood intercepted several. Army expects the Middies to develop a strong passing attack and is working painstakingly on methods to successfully cope with it.

With Baxter's return to the squad the situation as to the ends are decidedly improved. With Fraser at the other wing the Cadets will have two smashing flankers who fit in nicely on the offensive and who are also fast down the field and the forward pass well. With Baxter's return leaves only one position on the line which might be called doubtful at this late date. That is at left tackle, where Saunders, Weatphalinger, Schmidt and Mack are all competing keenly for the job. Saunders, an aggressive, shifty fellow, weighing 190 pounds, who had some football experience before coming here from the far Northwest, is being looked on with favor, and may land the job. He is a plebe playing his first year on the Army eleven. The game with Norwich on Saturday may settle this important question.

LENTZ BACK WITH NAVY.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 20.—Lentz, the big guard who was involved in scholastic difficulties, was in the Navy varsity lineup today and may start in the line against the Army.

Some surprise was occasioned by the fact that when Lents went to his old position of left guard, Eddy, who has been playing the place, was shifted to right guard, relegating Chillingworth to the second team. The move, however, gives considerable more weight to the centre of the line.

However, Chillingworth can cover greater distances in punting than any other member of the squad, though his loss may not be felt so keenly with Hamilton, a good punter, in the backfield. Eddy, on the other hand, is the best place kicker among the Naval players. But the move may not be a permanent one, but designed to try out a different combination for use if necessary.

Assurance of the permanency of the backfield combination which was assembled yesterday was indicated when Hamilton, Albertson, Filippin and Shapley were again behind the line for the varsity. Undoubtedly this is the strongest and most versatile combination that can be assembled with good runners in Caldwell, Banks, Wellings and Lewis in reserve.

Scrimmaging is probably done for the season and most of this work was devoted to perfecting the plays which will make up the Navy attack and in breaking up the Army plays as diagnosed by the Navy scouts.

Y. W. H. A. TO HOLD SWIM.

Young Women's New Athletic League Plans Meet for Dec. 20.

A new athletic league has been formed by the different branches of the Young Women's Hebrew Association in the metropolitan district, it was announced yesterday, and for its first event has arranged a swimming meet to be held in the pool of the Young Women's Hebrew Association, 30 West 110th Street, on Dec. 20. Seven events will be staged.

It is also the intention of the new league to hold a basketball tournament later in the season. Entries will close for the swimming meet with Miss Bessie Simon of the Young Women's Hebrew Association.

Penn Team After Soccer Title.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—The University of Pennsylvania soccer team will move a step closer to its second successive intercollegiate championship if it succeeds in defeating Haverford College tomorrow afternoon at Haverford. Penn has gained victories over Harvard, Yale and Cornell, and in addition to Haverford must meet Princeton.

Green Turtle Will Be Prize In Illinois-Ohio State Game

CHICAGO, Nov. 20 (Associated Press).—A green turtle with a shell two feet in diameter will be the trophy for which the Illinois and Ohio State elevens will be battling when they meet at Urbana on Saturday. Junior honor societies of both universities have arranged the prize in emulation of the "little brown jug" for which the Michigan and Minnesota elevens struggle each season. The turtle left Columbus today with the Ohio State squad on its way to the scene of the contest, and the Buckeyes promised their backers to bring it back again after Saturday's game.

LAFAYETTE LINE-UP STILL IS UNCERTAIN

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., Nov. 20.—The Lafayette football team, taking a short rest at Stroudsburg, Monroe County, at the foot of the Poconos, put in a day of light work today in preparation for the all important game with Lehigh at March Field here on Saturday. This morning the men were taken to the Stroudsburg Fair Grounds, where a signal drill and dummy scrimmage practice was held, which was followed by a long drill in punting and drop and placement goal kicking.

Coach McCracken is developing punters and had five of them booting the ball today. These were Ernst, Grube, Moore, Millman and Kirtleski. Grube, who is giving Crate a hard run for right end, is developing rapidly as a kicker and probably will be called on some time during the Lehigh game.

Captain Berry spent a long time trying drop kicks from all distances and angles, and Ford had splendid success with placement goals. Budd was kicking off and Danny Lyons, a guard, also was drilled at this in case Budd should be taken out.

The afternoon was spent in walks about the hills nearby and tonight the men received a blackboard talk. There was no varsity line-up on the field today and it is probable that there will be no definite announcement of the team which will start before game time.

The men are in the finest possible shape and Moore, who it was feared would be unable to get in the game in case it is necessary to replace Ernst, is rounding into shape nicely. It is expected he will be in physical condition to start.

LEHIGH ENDS WORKOUTS.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 20.—Going through a long but light workout this afternoon, Lehigh University's football team practically ended its preparations for the Lafayette game. Everything has been done, and with the exception of a short signal drill tomorrow afternoon the Brown and White gladiators are ready for the annual battle at Easton.

Coming through all the scrimmages this week in good physical condition has greatly inspired the players and coaches. Several new plays have been developed for the Lafayette game.

Two positions still remain to be definitely filled. The jobs of centre and quarterback still remain in doubt, with Cheel and Dietrich likely to be alternated at centre, and Lewin and Prior are the leading candidates for the signal-calling position. The other backs who will start the game will be Meilinger and Stephens, half backs, and Captain Greer, fullback.

A capacity crowd of 14,000 will see the game at Easton, all of the tickets having already been sold.

COLGATE IN LONG WORKOUT

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 20.—The Colgate eleven practically completed its preparation for Saturday's game with Chick Meehan's powerful Syracuse team in a long workout this afternoon. Mud replaced the snow of the last few days as the sun came out again, and the Maroon players went up and down the wet, soggy field in light signal drill followed by the usual dummy scrimmage. There was plenty of practice in handling a wet ball.

Big Jim Welsh, giant guard for four seasons, came back again today to help coach the line for the all-important tussle with the Orange. He and Ellery Huntington are the only old timers to arrive so far, but it is expected that other stars of former years will come back tomorrow for Alumni Day and the laying of the cornerstone of the new gymnasium, and will come out on the field to help Coach Harlow and his assistants.

MILLROSE BLANKS OUT.

Many of America's Olympic champions as well as those of European countries are expected to compete in the eighteenth annual invitation indoor games of the Millrose A. A. at Madison Square Garden, entry blanks for which have just been distributed. Following the custom adopted a number of years ago, the meet will be made a two-night carnival, the dates being Jan. 27 and 28.

The program for the first night will consist of the classic Millrose 600-yard run, three-mile walk, special sprint series at distances of forty, fifty and sixty yards, a two-third-mile run, running high jump, series of intercollegiate relays, three-mile run, 50-yard high hurdles, one-mile interclub relay, interscholastic relay for members of the Public Schools Athletic League and two events for women, a 50-yard dash and a 440-yard relay.

The second night's card will include the Rodman Wanamaker one and one-half-mile run, 5,000-meter walk, 50-yard dash, the Lynn 300-yard run, pole vault, another series of intercollegiate relays, 880-yard run, 50-yard low hurdles, one-mile interclub relay, interscholastic one-mile open relay, the Millrose-Meadowbrook one-mile match relay and the interstore relays.

COLUMBIA VARSITY STAGES SCRIMMAGE

CATES TO OPEN TUESDAY

Columbia's varsity eleven marched into its final week of the season yesterday and signalized the event by staging a brief but sprightly scrimmage—the first for the A team since the Army game. The brush with the C aggregation marked the beginning of the end. Another scrimmage today and possibly one on Monday and the hardest stretch will be past, with the Syracuse game acting as a climax on Thanksgiving Day at the Polo Grounds.

Captain Walter Koppisch and Quarterback George Pease, the two big stars of the Army tussle, were kept out of the scrimmaging yesterday, and the prospect is that Coach Withington will give them only light preparation for the Syracuse engagement. Both were slightly hurt at West Point, and orders yesterday were that only players 100 per cent. perfect physically be allowed in the scrimmage. Under this rule Raphael, the 240-pound guard, was also barred. Vandergrift, who has been shifted over from tackle, replaced Raphael, with Robbins filling Pease's shoes and Krissel understudying Koppisch.

The scrimmaging was only fifteen minutes long, and the A varsity spent the bulk of that time putting on the offensive with which it hopes to blast Syracuse's hopes on Turkey Day. The attack was also perfected and polished in the daily dummy scrimmage, the team acting as opposition in the absence of the junior varsity at West Point, where the scrubs played a game yesterday.

Coach Withington surprised the squad by dwelling on individual instruction for a solid hour, the longest stretch of this work which the team had had since early October. The daily dummy tackling and taking-out drills went by the board as the coaches concentrated on individual instruction and position play, including all the fine details characteristic of the Haughton system.

For the first time this season the undergraduate body will be admitted to practice on Tuesday, when an open workout will be held on South Field. The gates will be opened to all the students, and the occasion will be turned into a final rally for the Syracuse game. Songs and cheers will be rehearsed, and the student band will provide the music. Coach Withington will put on his usual workout, and there may be a scrimmage between C team and the junior varsity.

More than a thousand undergrads are expected to come out and cheer the team. Morningside Heights is tremendously thrilled over the impending battle, the first big home game since the Blue and White began climbing back to the crest. Tickets are going like the poverpial hotcakes, and the size of the Columbia cheering section is certain to break all records for the university.

SCOUTING FLEET TEAM IN GAME TOMORROW

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The Scouting Fleet football team, representing the navy, will meet the Army All-Infantry team at Griffith Stadium, Washington, Saturday afternoon in the first annual contest for the President's Cup, donated by President Coolidge.

Commenting on the coming game, Secretary Wilbur said this afternoon:

"It gives me great pleasure to see the growing spirit of sportsmanship shown by the enlisted men of the army and navy which makes possible such events as this coming football game.

"As Secretary of the Navy I wish the navy every success in this battle. I am confident that both teams will put forward their best efforts to win the coveted trophy. The public will have a splendid opportunity to witness the spirit to win which is inculcated into the hearts of the men of both the services."

VETERAN STARS IN WALK.

Former Champions Entered in City Hall-to-Coney Island Event.

A record number of starters is expected to toe the mark for the fourteenth annual City Hall to Coney Island walking race which will be held on Thanksgiving Day under the auspices of the Walkers' Club of America.

Several former champion walkers, who have been some years in retirement, have announced their intention of coming out again and will use the Coney Island race as a workout, among them William J. McFadden, the former New York A. C. walker and junior national two-mile indoor walking champion of 1916; Alexander Jessup, the three-mile junior national walking champion of 1917, and Louis Zabowitz of the Pastime A. C., three-mile junior national champion of 1918, who was considered one of the most promising walkers ever developed in this country, and who won three championships before he was 21. There is also a possibility that Edward Rena, who won nearly all the walking championships from 1915 to 1919, will compete.

Last year a team of five Canadian walkers, led by Philip Granville, the winner of the seven-mile national walking championship of the United States in 1923, competed in this race, and after a hard contest defeated the Pastime A. C. team and those of the other clubs for the team trophy.

TOM TUNNEY WINS IN GARDEN TOURNEY

McNULTY SCORES TRIUMPH

Boxers from the United States Navy and the various municipal departments of New York City took part in a first-rate amateur tournament in Madison Square Garden last night. The bouts were held under the auspices of Mayor John F. Hylan's Committee on Municipal Athletic Activities and were attended by an enthusiastic crowd of some 5,000 persons.

As usual in amateur tournaments, there was enough spirit to offset any lack of science, and between the boxing and two bands, one from the city and one from the navy, the crowd was well entertained. The navy bouts were the elimination contests for the Scouting Fleet championships and were refereed and judged by navy officers.

George Gross, a member of the Fire Department, showed that he could put out something besides fires when he stopped Theodore Schuler of the Police Department with two blows. Both knocked Schuler down, but after the first one he got up, and to his sorrow.

The next time Gross hit him the back of Schuler's head hit the floor first and the next thing he knew they were throwing water on him in his corner. The bout lasted just 39 seconds. Gross looks and acts like Paul Berlenbach and Schuyler probably thinks he can hit just as hard. The bout was in the 160-pound class.

Another short and sweet encounter was that between Michael Quill of Plant and Structures and William Hyde of the law department. The jury brought in a verdict against Hyde after 17 minutes and 39 seconds, during which Quill pounded him all about the ring until the referee stopped the contest.

One of the best of the Navy bouts, and, for that matter, one of the best of the evening, was that between Paddy McNulty and Mickey Flayshaw. As their names indicate, these two lads are Irish, and they fought according to the best traditions of the race, hammer and tongs from the minute they squared off until the referee dragged them apart. McNulty got the judges' decision after an extra round, which made five in all, as the Navy bouts were four-round affairs.

In another good bout between the sailors Frank Constantine, three-time winner of the featherweight championship of the Pacific Fleet, outpointed Johnny Lussier of the Wyoming.

HERRMANN BACKS LANDIS.

Reds' Owner Also Says He Will Support Heydler at Meeting.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 20.—President August Herrmann announced today that the Cincinnati Reds would stand by K. M. Landis, Baseball Commissioner, and John Heydler, President of the National League, at the election of officers in the coming league meeting.

"The Cincinnati club is for Landis and Heydler," said Herrmann. "Many Eastern critics have had Cincinnati lined up as an adversary of Heydler in the coming league meeting. Others have taken it for granted that Cincinnati was against Judge Landis. All are erroneous, we are for Heydler, we are for Judge Landis, who has done great things for the benefit of the game, and we cannot understand how the idea spread that we were against either of them."

ROME, Nov. 20.—The American baseball players who wandered south after the Paris games were received in audience by the Pope today. The Pontiff imparted the benediction, and the players, some of whom were accompanied by their wives, were impressed with the solemnity of the ceremony.

The American group included Hugh Jennings, Evers, Faber and McInnis. Jennings remarked that the boys would liked to have given an exhibition of America's national game in Italy's brilliant sunshine.

Twins, Tissue-Paper Weights, Battle to a Draw in Garden

For the first time in any boxing ring there was a tissue-paper weight bout in the amateur boxing tournament held in Madison Square Garden last night when the Michel Twins, 7 years old and weighing together 110 pounds, hooked up in a slashing three-round contest. At the finish Referee Mickey Walker, welter-weight champion of the world, called it a draw. Each youngster scored one knockdown. When Bob dropped Frank, Walker rushed over and picked him up much to the miniature boxer's disgust. In fact, he was so incensed that he took a swing at the referee. After the bout Benny Leonard and Walker shook hands in the ring and Benny told the crowd he was glad to meet Walker and hoped to meet him again when he could get a purse for it.

DEMPSEY OFFERED $475,000 FOR BOUT

An offer of $475,000 for his share in a bout against Harry Wills for the world's heavyweight championship was wired yesterday to Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, the champion, in Boston, by George E. Doolan, a real estate operator in White Plains, who announced that he was representing a syndicate of White Plains business men. Who the men interested in the syndicate are Doolan stated he was not prepared at this time to say, but he said they stood ready to promote the fight next Summer if Kearns accepted the offer.

If held, Doolan said, the bout would take place on July 2, either in Westchester County or a near-by Connecticut city and in a new arena that would have a seating capacity of 100,000. The arena, he said, would be a permanent structure. A meeting of the principals interested in the proposed venture will take place in Atlantic City early next week, when a more definite announcement of plans will be made.

Kearns Is Not Tempted.

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, heavyweight boxing champion, now presenting daily boxing exhibitions at a Boston theatre, said today he was not interested in an offer of a $475,000 purse for a bout between the champion and Harry Wills at White Plains, N. Y., July 2 next.

"I get plenty of these offers," Kearns said. "The answer is always the same—'not interested.' I listened to one from a syndicate at Shelby, Mont., and had a hard time getting some of the money out of it."

MEYERS IS VICTOR IN SKATING RACE

Eddie Meyers, speed skating star of Iceland, was the victor in the Class A pursuit race on his home rink last night. The field of four skaters had covered three-quarters of a mile when Meyers lapped Paul O'Brien of the 181st Street Ice Palace, who trailed the field. George Pickering, also of Iceland, was second and West Becker of the 181st Street Ice Palace was third. Meyers's time for the race was 2:20 1-5, and for his effort he received a special trophy in the form of a bronze cup.

Miss Helen Steinert of the Women's Skating Association won the quarter-mile race for women from Miss Marie Bertoli of the Peerless Skating Club by a margin of three yards, while the quarter-mile men's Class B handicap was featured by a blanket finish between the three leaders, S. Engels of the Peerless Skating Club, who had a 50-yard handicap, winning by inches.

DETROIT, Nov. 20.—Derrill Pratt, veteran infielder, who has been a member of the Detroit Tigers for several years and who formerly was a member of the New York Yankees, today received his unconditional release and his services were waived on by each of the other fifteen major league clubs.

Pratt, considered one of the leading second basemen in baseball when in his prime, began his big league career with the St. Louis Browns in 1911, and in 1919 was traded to the Yankees, who later traded him to Boston from which club he was obtained by the Tigers.

TITLE CONTENDERS TO CLASH TONIGHT

Great Interest in Kaplan-Garcia, Kramer-Dundee, Lombardo-Paluso Matches.

Six of the recognized leaders among the featherweight boxers in the country are scheduled to clash tonight in Madison Square Garden in three ten-round bouts in the opening series of elimination contests designed by the New York State Athletic Commission to produce a world's champion, a title which was vacated by Johnny Dundee several months ago with the announcement that he no longer could make the class weight limit of 126 pounds.

The six boxers, named in the order they were drawn by the commission to oppose each other two weeks ago, and the order in which they will appear on tonight's progam, are: Kid Kaplan, Meriden, Conn., vs. Bobby Garcia, Camp Holabird, Md.; Danny Kramer, Philadelphia, vs. Mike Dundee, Rock Island, Ill.; José Lombardo, Panama, vs. Lew Paluso, Salt Lake City.

Officials at the Garden were preparing yesterday for a capacity crowd, and announcement was made that all arrangements had been completed for what promises to be the most important tournament of its kind ever held in boxing. At the offices of the commission it also was announced that all preparations for the tourney had been completed.

All six boxers will appear at the commission headquarters, in the Fuller Building, at 2 o'clock this afternoon for final physical examination and weighing in. In the event that any boxer reports overweight or is found to be physically unfit, he will automatically be disqualified from the tournament and his place taken by a substitute. Babe Herman, the Pacific Coast boxer, and Billy De Foe, St. Paul, have been named as substitutes and also will appear before the commission this afternoon ready to take their places on the card if needed.

Plan Eliminates Draw.

Under the rules of the tourney as laid down by the commission, each of the three bouts is scheduled for ten rounds. In the event, however, that at the conclusion of ten rounds the two judges and referee fail to agree on a winner, or unanimously declare a draw, two extra rounds will be ordered, the fighting to be resumed after a rest of five minutes. This was done in order to avoid the prolonging of the tournament because of drawn contests.

The winners of tonight's contests will qualify for the semi-final round, which will be held in the Garden three weeks hence. There will be another drawing for this round, the boxer drawing a bye, meeting the winner of the semi-final bout in the final battle of the tournament, to be held after another lapse of three weeks. The ultimate victor will be recognized by the commission as the holder of the world's featherweight championship.

So far as ring records show, no similar tourney has ever been held in the history of boxing. Fighters have relinquished their titles in the past and other fighters have stepped forward to become recognized as new champions by the process of elimination, but the process was usually one swayed by public sentiment, covering a period of time, and the matches were usually made by the managers as popular opinion demanded. Never before, however, has a legally authorized boxing body ever staged a tournament for the crowning of a world's champion under conditions similar to those proposed by the New York Commission.

Brower Sponsors Idea.

The idea of the tournament was first conceived by George E. Brower, Chairman of the commission, several weeks ago, following the announcement from Dundee that he would not defend his featherweight title because he felt he could not make the weight. After careful deliberation the commission named six boxers it considered eligible to compete in the tourney and then held a blind draw to determine the manner in which the boxers would oppose each other.

So far as the commission is concerned, the recent announcement made by Johnny Dundee that he might, upon his return from Europe, reclaim his title, will have no bearing on the status of the tournament. Dundee, the commission maintains, has forfeited all right to the title, and that should he at any time again decide to fight as a featherweight he would have to enter the lists as a challenger for the title and not as defending champion.

The bouts tonight have aroused unusual interest and indications are that the expectations of the Garden officials for a capacity crowd will be fulfilled. Kaplan, Kramer and Lombardo are regarded as the likely favorites. Garcia, however, is expected to give Kaplan a hard battle. He has been champion of his class in the United States Army for three years and has never been stopped in more than seventy battles. Dundee, too, is expected to give Kramer a hard tussle. Mike has never lost a decision and recently has scored a number of notable triumphs.

Landis to Reward Senators With Diamond Studded Fobs

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Diamond-studded gold watch fobs will be presented to members of the Washington Senators by Commissioner Landis as an additional reward for their victory over the New York Giants for the world's championship, it was decided tonight. The fob is about an inch and a half from top to bottom and an inch wide. In the centre is a miniature of the National Capitol with its massive dome. On either side is a gold American eagle. At the bottom are two white enameled bats. At the point where they cross is a white baseball. In the centre is imbedded a diamond. The fob is finished in red, white and blue enamel. Over the top is the word "Washington" in gold letters on a blue background, while at the base appear the words "World's Champions, 1924."

GERMAN CUE STAR SEEKS HOPPE MATCH

Satisfied with the form he has displayed in exhibition matches during the last two months, Erich Hagenlacher, the German 18.2 balkline champion, yesterday announced that he would like to meet both Willie Hoppe, the world's champion, and Edouard Horemans, champion of Belgium, in special matches before the international tourney is held. The playing of Hagenlacher has been one of the surprises of the billiard season and the climax to his brilliant performances came a few days ago when he made an unfinished run of 500 in a 600 point game.

Horemans is expected in New York shortly from his tour of the Middle West and there is a possibility that Hagenlacher will challenge him to a 4,800-point match to be played here next month. It will be impossible to arrange a match with Hoppe for some time, as the champion will meet Young Jake Schaefer in two 3,200-point balkline matches on the Coast, the first to start in Los Angeles on Nov. 25 and the second to open in San Francisco on the afternoon of Dec. 2. Hoppe, it is known, is not averse to meeting any of the headliners and doubtless would welcome a match with Hagenlacher, to be played in January, as a warm-up for the championship tournament.

Horemans, after a brilliant season in South America, returned to the United States last September and since that time has been playing remarkable balkline in his games in the Middle West and in the New England States. He has not been seen in New York since his return and a match between Horemans and Hagenlacher, in which the European title most likely would be at stake, should prove a popular march. It also would serve to let the billiard followers learn the kind of billiards both men are playing this season under the strain of high-class competition.

Albert Cutler, the junior champion, who will defend his title against David McAndless at Osborne's Academy, 181st Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, on Dec. 2, 3 and 4, also is anxious to arrange an exhibition match with Horemans. He said yesterday that he would be willing to arrange a match with the Belgian under conditions satisfactory to Horemans.

BILLIARD RESULTS.

Robert L. Cannefax, world's three-cushion champion, defeated Mundito Campanioni, Cuban title holder, in the first two blocks of a six-block match at the Strand Academy yesterday. In the afternoon he was the victor at 50 to 31 in seventy-three innings, and in the evening he ran 50 points against his opponent's 32 in forty-eight innings. A run of 7 by Cannefax in the evening was the highest made in the two games.

Erich Hagenlacher, German 18.2 balkline champion, defeated George Kahn in a three-cushion match at the Fourteenth Street Academy yesterday afternoon, 50 to 25. He made his total in forty-three innings and had a high run of 7. Kahn's high run was 6. In the evening Hagenlacher played Philip Meise at cushion carroms and won by the score of 100 to 24.

Walter Townsend sprang a surprise when he defeated Leo Silver in the New York State professional pocket billiard championship at Lawler's Brooklyn Academy last night by the score of 100 to 95. He went out in forty innings, overcoming a lead of 67 to 21 held by Silver at the end of the eleventh inning. Silver's high run was 23, Townsend's was 14. This is the first defeat sustained by Silver in the tournament thus far. In the afternoon game William Barg won his third consecutive victory, defeating James Kent, 100 to 39, in thirty-nine innings, and making a high run of 25. Kent's high run was 18.

Harry Stern was the winner over Charles Steinbugler in the interstate 18.2 balkline championship at Lawler Brothers' Manhattan Academy last night by the score of 200 to 137 in twenty-six innings. His high run was 33, one better than Steinbugler's.

Tadao Suganuma defeated F. Nemes in an exhibition 18.2 balkline match at Julian's Fourteenth Street Academy last night by the score of 200 to 32 in sixteen innings. His high run was 86. In the amateur handicap three-cushion tournament at the same academy Jacob Appel defeated Morris Fain, 50 to 18, in seventy-seven innings.

Your Overcoat Is Important

In any business where appearances count—and isn't that saying any business?—your overcoat is the most important thing you wear. More people see you in it than in any other garment. In many business calls you may not even take it off.

Becoming clothes of any kind are a good investment, but in winter a good overcoat is the best investment of all.

D'Andrea Brothers can fit you properly in a Ready to Wear overcoat that will do you full credit anywhere. When you slip it on price may be your last consideration, but we can promise you a pleasant surprise here, too.

BARNES-FARRELL WIN AT PINEHURST

Triumph in Pro Best Ball Play by Turning in a 65 for Afternoon Round.

HAVE TOTAL SCORE OF 134

Finish Four Strokes Ahead of Kerrigan and Brady—Two Teams Tied for Third.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 20.—Long Jim Barnes of Pelham, former open champion, and Johnny Farrell of Quaker Ridge turned in a great round of 65 over the championship course here this afternoon, to wipe out a lead held by two other teams and win the professional best ball matches held here today with a score of 134 for the thirty-six holes.

Facing the afternoon stretch Barnes and Farrell with a total of 69 were just a stroke behind Mike Brady of Winged Foot, metropolitan open champion, and Tom Kerrigan of Siwanoy, another all-New York team, and Freddie McLeod of the Columbia Club, Washington, D. C., also an ex-champion, who was paired with Harry Hampton, the Canton (Ohio) pro.

While Farrell played a splendid round and gave his partner a great deal of assistance, it was the magic work of Barnes which was chiefly responsible for the pair taking first money. After the pair made the turn on the afternoon round with a 33, including a 2 by Barnes on the seventh, Long Jim stepped out and played the last nine in 33 by himself, Farrell helping out to the extent of a stroke.

Barnes was in repeated difficulties, but extricated himself in each instance with remarkable shots. On both the twelfth and thirteenth holes Barnes drove into the rough, but made the edge of the green in 2 and had 4s. He got a beautiful birdie 2 on the fifteenth, the second of the round. On the sixteenth his tee shot was in a trap, but he was well out and made his putt for a 3.

Kerrigan and Brady made it an all-Westchester finish by taking second place. Although they slumped somewhat this afternoon, they managed to hang on to second place.

BOWIE RECORD SET BY SENATOR NORRIS

Bedwell Colt Runs Six Furlongs in 1:12 2-5 to Beat Stoneham's Dry Moon.

SWINGING AGAIN TRIUMPHS

Special to The New York Times.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 20.—Senator Norris, H. G. Bedwell's three-year-old colt by Cudgel—Cypher Code, this afternoon turned the tables of C. A. Stoneham's Dry Moon to win the Flight Handicap for all ages over the six-furlong course. In their last meeting Senator Norris ran fourth in the race in which Dry Moon was forced to establish a new track record for six and a half furlongs. In today's race the winner was in receipt of seven pounds, being in light with 106 pounds up, and was himself forced to a new track record of 1:12 2-5 to beat Dry Moon by three-quarters of a length. The winner paid $21.70 in the mutuels.

Harry Payne Whitney's splendid filly Swinging ran to her seventh consecutive victory in winning the Scandal Purse, a dash of six furlongs for two-year-old fillies. She beat five others and won with the greatest ease. The filly paid $6.10 for a $2 ticket. She carried top weight of 116 pounds and ran the distance in 1:13 2-5.

Senator Norris upset calculations in the Flight Handicap. The colt was practically a 10-to-1 shot, Dry Moon being the short-priced favorite on his record performance, with J. S. Ward's Worthmore, recently returned from Kentucky, the second choice. E. R. McLean's Noel was equally fancied with Senator Norris, while Bigheart and Fraternity were outsiders and did not figure in the running of the race.

Senator Norris on Rail.

Senator Norris had the post position on the rail and the sextet was sent away to a good start. The colt, with F. Stevens in the saddle, went to the front in the first furlong, opening up a lead of three lengths down the backstretch on Dry Moon, which was the contender all through. Worthmore, with top impost of 128 pounds, apparently did not like the going and never appeared threatening to the two leaders.

Coming into the homestretch Senator Norris went a bit wide, holding on gamely, however, under a hand ride. He began to tire toward the end, and Dry Moon was overhauling him as they finished. Worthmore tired under his heavy burden and was five lengths in back of Dry Moon at the wire. The Ward three-year-old barely saved third money by a head from Noel. The fractional times of the race were as follows: 0:22 4-5, stick and Balancoire II being 1 to 20.

Swinging was practically a prohibitive favorite in the Scandal Purse, the odds against the chestnut daughter of Broomstick and Balancoire 2d being 1 to 20. There was nothing to the race, as the filly was in command from flag-fall to finish. She broke from No. 4 post position in a field of six, and McAtee immediately took her into the lead. Swinging won all the way as her rider pleased, being three and a half lengths in front of Edinburgh at the winning post.

The strongest of the opposition was G. Rabin's Edinburgh, but she never was able to menace the leader and finished three lengths in front of J. A. Buchanan's Miss Greble, which grew weary in the run home. The rest of the field was outclassed. Swinging picked up 116 pounds, level weight with Edinburgh, and ran the six furlongs in 1:12 2-5, going to the quarter in 0:23 flat and to the half in 0:47 2-5.

Mrs. C. C. Hall's colt Villager made a fine finish to beat a dozen others in the claiming race for two-year-olds over the Futurity course, the opening number on the card. The colt was one of the last to get away from the post and was outrun by his field during the early part of the race. He was seventh straightening out for home, worked his way through the leaders in the final furlong and won going away. Hudgins rode him out to win by a length from Mrs. F. Byers's Grace Troxler. El Cid ran third from start to finish.

The favorite was beaten by a head in the dash of six and a half furlongs for three-year-olds and upward, when E. J. Holland's Jolly was up in the final jumps to gain the decision by a narrow margin from Mrs. G. C. Winfrey's Lady Rose. The filly was away with a rush from the barrier and opened a good lead, weakening when put to a drive.

Pierce Saves Ground.

Pierce saved ground with Jolly all the way by slipping through to the rail and was nearest to the pacemaker. The gelding came to the front when the filly weakened. Elemental held on steadily to take third money.

Johnny Maiben brought S. Louis's Rue and Red home in front in the fifth race, a gallop of a mile and a furlong, for three-year-olds and upward. Maiben rated the colt back of the pace set by Rupee and wore him down in the closing battle to win by a length and a half. H. G. Bedwell's Quotation ran third all the way.

PRICEMAKER IS VICTOR.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 20.—Pricemaker, C. C. Wright's three-year-old colt by Hourless—Fair Priscilla, this afternoon won the Midway Purse, a mile dash for three-year-olds and upward, which had the place of honor on the card. The winner was the second choice in the wagering and beat the favorite, C. W. Clark's United Verde, by a length. Pricemaker paid $6.20 in the mutuels.

Stutts had the mount on the winner, which met with considerable interference on the first turn. He went into the lead in the first half mile and held United Verde safely thereafter. The latter came across sharply from an outside position at the first turn, causing a bad jam. He was well up all the way, but was not good enough. H. L. Crain's Miss Melse was also interfered with, but finished gamely to take the short end of the money.

The Cynthiana Purse over the Futurity Course brought four to the post, the winner being P. Coyne's Pindar Peel, which gained an easy victory. He was well handled by Mack Garner, was kept closely behind Canyon and when the latter began to tire in the stretch Pindar Peel moved away to win with much in reserve.

INDOOR POLO TEAMS READY.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 20.—The Yale and Harvard indoor polo teams will meet here tomorrow in the first of their series of games. The Yale trio, with Captain Hank Baldwin and Hewitt of last year's intercollegiate championship team still available, are seeking their third successive indoor championship this season and with the addition of several new stars, have the material for another strong team, but Harvard also has strengthened greatly since last Winter and with Princeton, the winner of the outdoor intercollegiate championship, still in the race, there should be a great battle between the members of the Big Three for supremacy.

Harvard has arrived with Alexander Shaw, a member of the Dedham Country Club team last Summer; Holden White, a middle western star, and George Kent, the captain, ready to face the Blue. In addition to these men Harvard has the services of F. D. Stranahan, John H. G. Pell and J. E. Tufts, all members of last season's outdoor team.

VAN KEMPEN ENTERS RACE.

Will Pair With McNamara in Six-Day Cycle Grind.

Peter Van Kempen, star cyclist of Holland, and Reggie McNamara, veteran Australian rider who has triumphed in many long grinds, have been paired to ride in the coming six-day bicycle race which starts in Madison Square Garden on Nov. 30, it was announced yesterday by Manager J. M. Chapman.

Two other strong teams were announced yesterday by Manager Chapman. On one of these teams, Gaetano Belloni, Italian star, who won the Garden race two years ago with Alfred Goullet for a partner, has been paired with Charley Deruyter, the sturdy Belgian rider. The other team will be composed of Louis Benezatto, popular rider of the Unione Sportiva Italiana Club of New York, and Constant Girardengo, famous Italian cyclist.

RINK CLUB CHANGES CARD.

Will Bring Herman and J. Leonard Together in Thursday Feature.

Officials of the Rink Arena in Brooklyn announced yesterday that they had made a change in their card of boxing bouts scheduled for next Thursday afternoon.

UNITED Cigar Stores

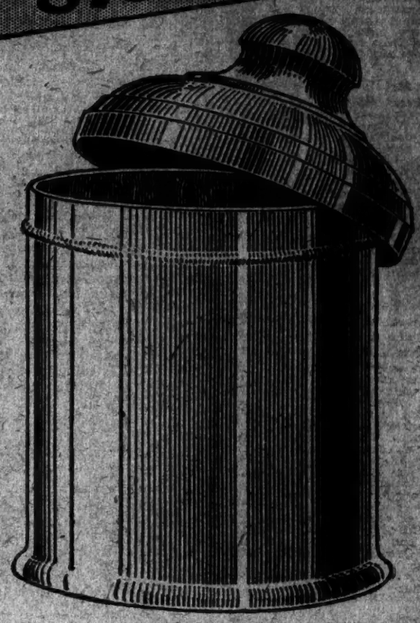
at all the United Cigar Stores ~ on November 21st, and 22nd, this handsome metal, cedar-lined



RICORO CIGAR HUMIDOR

We want you to like the last Ricoro in your box as well as the first! For that reason we are offering you free, with every box of 25 or 50 Ricoros, this wonderfully good-looking humidor to keep permanently the rich flavor, aroma and mildness which you find in a fresh Ricoro.

When you buy a Ricoro at a United Cigar Store you receive a cigar in perfect condition. But when you buy them by the box to take home, as more and more of you are doing, they are apt to dry out. We suggest keeping them in this humidor during the winter months.

The supply of these humidors is limited, so we must limit the offer to two days. Don't miss it. Go into the nearest United Cigar Store Friday or Saturday and get yours.

Look for Rise in Hat Prices.

Unless all signs fail retailers will have to pay more for their reorders on men's Spring hats, it was said yesterday. Manufacturers are finding it very difficult to cope with the market in hatters' fur, both as to mounting prices and the securing of adequate supplies even at the higher quotations. The quantities of skins available for hats have been greatly restricted by the enlarged purchases of the women's garment trade for trimming purposes. This situation was thought for a while to be only a passing phase, but it has been growing worse for some time. It is held a foregone conclusion that, when the hat manufacturers open their Fall lines some months from now, the price levels will be materially higher.

Orders for Summer Clothing.

Southern retailers have placed good orders for men's Summer clothing, but in the North the buying interest is much to be desired, according to manufacturers here. The lack of good selling weather last Summer left a carryover for the coming season, it is said, which is causing much of the buying, other than that coming from the South, to be of the fill-in variety. On the other hand, the orders for four-piece knicker suits are very satisfactory. These are featured mainly in tweed overplaids and sport type fabrics, with the blues on the order of smoke and lavender and grays being preferred.

Raw Silk Situation.

The local raw silk market continues strong and active. Mill operations are expanding and the demand for raw material is steadily increasing. Manufacturers are showing no reluctance in covering their needs for several months ahead, according to H. L. Gwalter & Co., Inc., notwithstanding the advance the market has registered since the beginning of the month. Trading at Yokohama, for active and prices there are moving higher. Double extra A is quoted at 2,150 yen ($6.70) and best No. 1 to extras at 2,080 yen ($6.49). Shipments for the first four and a half months of the season to Nov. 15 have broken all records. The Canton market is benefiting by the strength at Yokohama, and these sorts have advanced slightly during the week. Little business is being done at Shanghai. The Milan market is stronger, with a better inquiry from European consumers.

Rayon Production to Set Record.

Production of rayon (artificial silk) for this year is expected to set a new record. It would not be surprising, it was pointed out yesterday by a well-posted executive, if production ran somewhere in the neighborhood of 40,000,000 pounds, or from 15 to 20 per cent., greater than last year, which showed the largest output thus far. The demand continues strong, with the buying distributed over both fine and coarse sizes. Prices are firm and unchanged and are likely to remain so until the turn of the year. It is understood that additions to manufacturing facilities are under way that will be a factor in the production for 1925.

Napped Goods Prices Soon.

Indications in the cotton goods trade yesterday were that prices on cotton blankets and napped fabrics would be announced in some quarters before the week is out. Leading factors in this branch of the trade have been holding off for the Federal cotton crop report, which comes out today, before making their final decision as to what the goods will cost. It is understood that some prices are ready to send out in case the report is not such as to force their being revised one way or the other. Well-founded rumors were afloat yesterday that not a little business had already been done on these merchandise, but whether this was done tentatively, with the orders subject to confirmation after the naming of prices, could not be learned. The cutters-up appear to be much more interested in napped cloths than the jobbers.

Percales to Be Withdrawn?

So large a business has been booked on percales since the naming of prices on goods for delivery during the next three months that a withdrawal of these fabrics from sale by leading printers within the next forty-eight hours would not come altogether as a surprise. In one instance, it was learned yesterday, this action has been contemplated for several days, but as yet the trigger of it has not become opportune. Not for a long time have buyers taken percales more freely than they have since the new prices were issued, this being in no small way due to the excellent styling of the goods. Price for price, the new percale lines, from a design standpoint, are said considerably to outshine the new ginghams.

Glove Orders Take Spurt.

Reorders for both men's and women's gloves have been recently coming through to wholesalers in greater volume. The cold spell of the early part of the week played no small part in the stimulation of buying. Much business remains to be placed, however, manufacturers say, before the totals for the season will be entirely satisfactory. But, now that the tide has turned, it is expected that reordering on a more liberal scale will be quite general. In the men's merchandise the cape and suede gloves lead, while in women's goods the buying of short kid gloves with the novelty French cuff continues prominent.

Gray Goods Prices Weaken.

Gray goods prices eased off somewhat in this market yesterday, with second hands doing most of the business. Spot and near-by shipments of 39½-inch 64-60 printcloths, for instance, were let out at 9¾ cents, with 10¼ cents paid for resale of 39-inch 68-72s. Eight cents was paid for 39½-inch 60-48s. Sheetings were not active, but prices on them appeared to be sustained better than those for printcloths. For 37-inch 48-square, four-yard sheetings 10¾ cents was the best that could be done, but buyers did not take many of the goods at that figure. In the 36-inch sheetings 8⅝ cents was paid for 5-yards, 8 cents for 5.50s and 7¼ to 7⅝ cents for 6.15s.

Foreign Fur Shipments Increase.

Offerings of foreign furs promise to be heavier in the Winter auctions in this city than has been the case for some time. This was said yesterday to be due to the increasing interest of foreign sellers in this market and their willingness to ship here as against London because of the greater consumer purchasing power in this country. One thing is lacking to make the American market an ideal outlet for furs, however, and that is a willingness on the part of buyers here to take kinds other than those that are in good demand. The disposition of the foreign buyer to purchase furs when prices are to his liking and then to hold them until a demand develops is lacking here, probably due to the shortage of capital on the part of many of the smaller merchants. It is the operations of these merchants in the aggregate, however, that help to make this market as good as it is.

Stock Departments Are Growing.

The effect of present retail buying methods in the men's shoe field has been to force the enlargement of the stock departments of several of the principal manufacturers of the better lines. While these manufacturers have had departments of this kind for several years, their high cost had resulted in their being held as small as possible until lately. The biggest factor in this cost was the investment tied up in the actual stock, which, in the case of high-priced shoes, runs very quickly into large sums. The value of stock departments is being proved, however, by the way the demand for "at once" shipments growing out of the cold weather of the past few days is being met. To make up the same shoes on order would retard deliveries several weeks.

A meeting of the Special Hosiery Committee which has in hand the standardization of staple hosiery colors will be held next Tuesday morning, it was announced yesterday by Margaret Hayden Rorke, managing director of the Textile Color Card Association.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

In so far as yesterday's stock market tested the question whether a check to the general advance was bound to result in immediate general reaction, it showed the resisting power of the present movement. There was little or no sign of suspended interest on the part of the outside buying public and, in a large part of the market, new advances of considerable scope were made. There was, however, rather more evidence than heretofore of professional effort to keep the movement going, and to stimulate the outsider's imagination by shifting the focus of activity and rising prices quickly from one group of stocks to another. Traditionally, this program has the double purposes of always dangling something before the outside public's eye and of enabling the agile "professional" to take his own profits in one quarter of the market while bidding with seemingly unrestrained enthusiasm in another, but it usually marks the gradual shaping of a situation making for genuine reaction.

Yesterday's outside public accepted the invitation of the professional contingent, but the resultant market was not quite so spontaneous as it has been on other recent days. Transactions again ran beyond 2,000,000 shares, making the eighth occasion of the sort in the twelve five-hour business days since Nov. 4. Twelve days of that magnitude, out of thirteen five-hour days, is the highest record—that of 1901. In yesterday's market, the railway shares held the lead for strength and activity; a considerable number of them advancing 2 points or more.

Money rates did not change; even time money and commercial paper remained, as heretofore, only a fraction above the New York Reserve Bank's rediscount rate. In view of Wednesday's arrival of the Stock Exchange rumor (subsequently unconfirmed) that the Reserve bank rate would be raised to control the Wall Street speculation, yesterday's weekly statements for the system and for the New York bank have some bearing on the situation. To this extent they show the effect of the stock market on the credit position, that rediscounts at the New York bank increased $25,621,000, more than doubling in amount, while rediscounts in the rest of the system decreased. There was reason, however, to expect that showing; for the sweeping reduction of $100,000,000 in surplus reserves at the New York Associated Banks, last week, very nearly wiped out their excess over legal requirements. The private banks had either to call in loans or use the Reserve bank machinery.

Even with this increase it is to be observed that the New York bank's rediscounts, aggregating $50,971,000, are considerably under their total of the first half of October; $90,000,000 below the figure of April 9, and only 60 per cent. of what they were a year ago this week. This means that the Reserve bank is not in a position to control the money market through an advance in its discount rate. It may, and probably will, attain such a position later in the season, but only if the market is forced to borrow still more largely from the bank.

What Wall Street has in mind is the rate advance of Nov. 2, 1919, and its effect on the Stock Exchange. But when that step was taken Wall Street time money rates were 7 per cent., rediscounts at the New York bank were $833,000,000, and its reserve ratio 40 per cent., as compared with this week's 76½. The power that the bank unquestionably holds, even today, lies in its $167,000,000 investment in short-term Government securities. Should the Stock Exchange situation call for positive restraint, sale of these holdings on the open market would draw sufficiently on private bank deposits as to compel a more prudent policy on their part in the money market, or else subject them directly to the Reserve bank's rediscount restrictions.

Grain prices were weak again yesterday, and so was cotton, whose market passed the day in conjecturing whether today's semi-monthly Government estimate will not put the yield at last at 13,000,000 bales. The Cotton Exchange apparently expects that it will, yet yesterday's closing spot price was still more than 2 cents a pound above September's lowest.

MONEY.

THURSDAY, NOV. 20, 1924.

Stock Exchange call money was again maintained at 2½ per cent. throughout the day. Not a great deal was offered, dealers said; but neither was the demand great, a condition which counterbalanced. Money offered continued to come from out-of-town, city institutions being spare of funds. Time money market was featureless, sixty-day accommodation going at 2@3¼ per cent., ninety days' at 2½, four months' at 2¼, while five-six months' was offered at 3%; but there was no demand at that figure. Commercial paper market was dull, with borrowing very light, and some banks reporting paying off of loans.

Growth

Traffic on the transit lines of Greater New York is increasing at the rate of nearly one hundred and fifty million additional passengers per annum. As long as no new lines are built, existing lines are the sole ones to benefit by this tremendous increase in traffic. At five cents each the new riders, alone, contribute more than seven million dollars annually to the companies' gross revenues. Furthermore, it costs no more to operate a subway or elevated train whether it carries one hundred or one thousand passengers.

FRENCH LOAN PLAN NEARS COMPLETION

MANY RUMORS CIRCULATED

But They Prove to Be Without Foundation—No Obstacles Interposed by Washington.

Plans for underwriting the new French Government loan were said yesterday to have been carried almost to completion and investment bankers said a definite announcement as to terms was expected within a few days. Formal offering of the bonds, which will comprise the largest French Government loan since the war period in the American market, will be made early next week, probably on Monday.

Because of the delay incident to international financing operations of such size as the imminent loan to France, many rumors were abroad in the financial district, virtually all of them without foundation. One of these stated that the United States Government had interposed obstacles in the way of the loan; another that a "hitch" had developed over terms, and still another that the loan would not be offered until the French budget would have been balanced. From Washington it was learned that the Government had encouraged rather than discouraged the plan for a loan, and from Paris and New York it was learned that neither "hitches" had crept in nor concern over the budget problem of France voiced by American banking advisers.

The weekly statement of the Bank of France showed a reduction of more than 105,000,000 francs in note circulation, and from the peak level of two weeks ago, when the 41,000,000,000 franc limit allowed by French law had been approached, the decrease had been in excess of 200,000,000 francs. This showing was said by bankers to have allayed whatever concern may have developed over the French budget.

In the absence of definite word as to terms, investment houses which expect to participate in the offering were planning on a loan to be floated on a 7½ per cent. interest yield basis. It was indicated that $50,000,000 of 7 per cent. bonds, to be priced around 93, would constitute the first offering, these bonds to mature in thirty years. Should these bonds meet with public favor, as expected, it was contemplated that another issue of like amount would be offered some time later, probably after the end of this year, with a short term loan as an alternative proposition.

The French banking credit of $100,000,000 set up by J. P. Morgan & Co., which firm will head the underwriting group in the new loan, will not expire until next March 15, leaving nearly four months in which the French Government can take its time in arranging for dollar credits that it may need.

PLANS TO BALANCE BUDGET.

Czechoslovakia to Reduce Expenses Before Seeking a Loan.

The Government of Czechoslovakia will balance its budget before seeking external loans, according to advices received by bankers here yesterday. London institutions were said to have taken the position that no new loans should be arranged before a balanced budget had been provided.

Figures made available by the Czechoslovak Government showed that further reduction had been made in the excess of expenditures over revenues. Revenues for 1923 are expected by the Government to total 15,701,000,000 crowns, and expenditures 15,974,000,000 crowns, a deficit of 273,000,000 crowns. About twice that amount had been forecast originally.

BUYS PENNSYLVANIA STOCK.

Part of Half a Million Dollars' Worth to Go to Employes.

The purchase of a half million dollars of Pennsylvania railroad securities has been made from Kuhn, Loeb & Co. by the Brotherhood Investment Company and will be sold to the customers of that firm, including members of the Brotherhood unions. In a letter which George N. Deguire has sent to Elisha Lee, Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, he said:

"Knowing of your interest in the work we are doing, I want you to know that we purchased last week, through Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Pennsylvania securities to the extent of approximately a half million dollars, which are being offered for resale to railroad employes and others through our various banks."

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Holland Guilder at Par for First Time in Five Years—List Dull.

There was the same sort of backing and filling-in in the European exchanges yesterday as was noticed on Wednesday. The trend swung first one way and then another, with no particular effort back of the movement, to push rates out of the narrow area.

The only exception to the rule, however, was the crossing of par by the Holland guilder, one trade of Amsterdam cables being reported at 40.20½ cents, highest since mid-May, 1920. Bankers ascribed the advance to covering purchases, evidence of this being seen in a premium for Friday's cables ranging from one-half to a full point above prevailing range yesterday. The statement was further made that the recent burst of strength in guilder, which has kept pace with sterling, caught many traders with heavily overdrawn foreign accounts necessitating purchases by previous "shorts." The Holland Government looks with favor upon such a movement as it will mean shipment of gold abroad to stem the advance.

For sterling and the Continentals, there was but a meagre business. London checks finished ½ cent up, at $4.62⅝, on a rally from $4.62¼. French francs were 2⅝ points up at 5.26½ cents, on publication of favorable French Bank statement, showing a successive contraction in circulation, and drop in Government borrowings. Belgian was sympathetically higher at 4.83¾ cents, but elsewhere rates were uniformly at Wednesday's finals.

Certificates and dividend warrants to be payable June 15 and December 15.

Mr. M. W. Bottomfield, Vice-President of the Transcontinental Oil Company, has written us a letter covering the issuance of these Certificates from which we summarize as follows:

"These certificates are to be secured by a first lien on 905 standard steel tank cars used in the distribution of the products of the Transcontinental Oil Company, and which are indispensable to the Company's operation. These cars are currently appraised in excess of $1,500,000 by Messrs. Ford, Bacon & Davis, Inc., Engineers, or 150% of the total face value of the certificates to be issued. Title to all of these cars is to be vested in the Trustee, under lease to the Transcontinental Oil Company at a rental sufficient to pay these certificates and the dividend warrants and other charges as they become due.

The National Steel Car Lines Company, acting as vendor, will convey title to the cars to The Pennsylvania Company for Insurances on Lives and Granting Annuities, Philadelphia, as Trustee, for lease to the Transcontinental Oil Company.

These certificates are to be originally issued at the low figure of approximately $1,105 per car, which will be reduced after two semi-annual installments are paid, to less than $967 per car.

As an additional safeguard, the Transcontinental Oil Company will agree to deposit rentals with the Trustee monthly in anticipation of each semi-annual maturity.

The Transcontinental Oil Company owns and operates three refineries, one at Fort Worth, Texas, one at Bristow, Oklahoma, and one at Boynton, Oklahoma, the three refineries having a combined refining capacity in excess of 13,000 barrels per day. The Company maintains its own retail distributing department for the distribution of its products under its well-known trade names of "Marathon" gasoline and "Marathon" oils.

Under date of January 30, 1924, Dr. I. C. White, State Geologist of West Virginia, has appraised the properties of the Transcontinental Oil Company at $47,746,653.98 and since that date, through the development of certain of the Company's producing properties, the value of the properties covered in Dr. White's report have been materially enhanced. The only funded debt of the Company, exclusive of car trusts, is an issue of $2,000,000 First Mortgage Bonds due in 1931. The present market value of the outstanding common shares of the Company, which are listed on the New York Stock Exchange, is in excess of $12,000,000."

We offer these certificates for subscription subject to issuance as planned and subject to the approval of counsel and to prior sale.

NEW HAVEN'S LOAN TO BE REFUNDED

Plan Agreed Upon to Pay Off $23,000,000 of 7s With 6 Per Cent. Issue.

NEW BONDS TO RUN 15 YEARS

Railroad's Proposed Action Causes an Advance in All Its Securities on the Market.

Tentative plans for refunding the $23,000,000 7 per cent. European loan of the New York, New Haven & Hartford through the sale of a new 6 per cent. series at par, has been agreed upon by the bankers and officials of the railroad, according to E. G. Buckland, Vice President and general counsel. Under the provisions of the plan, holders of the present bonds will be permitted to exchange their present holdings for the new 6 per cents. In case all of the bonds are not refunded in this manner the remainder will be offered to the general public at par and the proceeds used to pay off the issue being retired.

The new bonds will run for 15 years and will have provision for a 2 per cent. sinking fund. They are to be secured by an equal amount of mortgage bonds of the New York, New Haven & Hartford.

Refunding of the 7 per cent. European loan has been one of the difficult problems facing the directors and officials of the New Haven for several years. The issue was originally dated April 1, 1907, and was due April 1, 1925. At that time the credit of the railroad was such that it was decided to extend the maturity of the issue for three more years by increasing the interest from 4 to 7 per cent. and paying 20 per cent. of the issue, then $27,885,000, in cash.

Until recently it had been expected that a part of the bonds would be paid off in cash and another offer made to the bondholders for an extension of the remainder. Improved operating conditions on the New Haven and the general betterment in the outlook for the railroads as a whole made possible the change in plans which would permit the refunding of the bonds on a cash basis.

When the news of the refunding reached the financial district there was a general advance in the securities of the New York, New Haven & Hartford. This included the stock as well as the bonds. The following table shows the action of the bonds during the day.

	Open	High	Low	Last	Net Chge.
Trans. bonds	84	84	84	84
Deb. 6s, 1948	83⅝	84⅜	83⅝	84⅜	+⅛
Deb. 4s, 1957	51⅛	52	51⅛	52	+1⅛

In some sections of the financial district surprise was expressed that the New Haven would consider the offering of bonds on a 6 per cent. basis. This was due in part, to the unexpectedness of the terms. Comment in many quarters that the fact that the bankers were considering such a plan indicated a decided improvement recently in the credit of the New York, New Haven & Hartford.

OMITS PREFERRED DIVIDEND

The directors of the Pratt & Whitney Company suspended dividend payments on the company's preferred stock yesterday. A dividend of 1¾ per cent. quarterly was due to be declared. The last payment made was on Aug. 30, 1924. This company is owned and controlled by the Niles-Bement-Pond Company, which guarantees the dividend payment. The latter company suspended dividends on its preferred stock earlier in the week.

The directors issued the following statement:

"This action is in line with the recent decision of the board of the Niles-Bement-Pond Company that the interests of these companies will be best furthered by conserving their working capital until current earnings may again justify payments of preferred dividends. The preferred stock of Pratt & Whitney Company is cumulative, and dividends not paid now must eventually be paid before dividends can be resumed on its common stock. In addition, the guaranty of Niles-Bement-Pond Company is such that all Pratt & Whitney preferred dividends must be paid before that company can pay any further dividends on its own preferred or common stock."

HOLLAND GUILDER GOES TO PAR HERE

GERMAN SITUATION HELPS

Five Foreign Exchanges Now on a Gold Value Basis—Dutch Extending Commerce.

On a single purchase of Holland guilders in the New York market yesterday that currency moved up to par for the first time since May 17, 1919, and added another to the small but growing list of international exchanges which are now quoted on even footing with the American dollar.

Yesterday's New York purchase was akin to a short-covering operation. It resulted from steady selling in the Dutch market of guilders for an American account during a week of gradually rising guilder prices, and yesterday the New York interest found cost it had overdrawn its guilder balances abroad. As a result the institution stepped into the market to make the purchases necessary for balancing its books and paid 40.20 cents per guilder, which is its gold value. The cable rate, as contrasted with the strictly New York rate, was ¼ cent higher.

With the guilder's return to par the group includes five foreign exchanges which in the last few weeks have got back to a gold value basis. They are the Swiss franc, the Canadian dollar, the Swedish krona, the new German reichsmark and now the guilder. Not all of these bills have held their par value, but all are close to it, either a shade above or a shade below.

The marked improvement in the German industrial situation was said to have influenced the guilder's rise. Germany being one of Holland's large customers. A direct benefit to Holland with its exchange at par, is its ability now to ship gold to those markets where the guilder is selling at a discount and, again, to use the guilder at par value in buying bills or other positions in which Holland might care to build up foreign balances.

Since the armistice Holland has extended its commerce to all quarters of the world and, second only to the United States, is expected to benefit from the re-establishing of German credit. Less smaller in resources than either the United States or Great Britain, international bankers have pointed out that the Dutch flag will be one of the three or four most prominent in the new contest for international business.

TO SPEED DELIVERY OF MEXICAN BONDS

Texas Banker in Charge of $50,000,000 Issue, Expects to Get Them in Two Weeks.

J. L. Arlitt, Texas banker, who recently handled the task of selling in the United States $50,000,000 of United States of Mexico 4 per cent. external loan bonds, is trying to speed up delivery of the bonds so as to pave the way for Mexico's resumption of interest payments under her debt reorganization plan. The Mexican Government has until Dec. 15 to make its 1924 payment under this plan.

According to members of the Arlitt staff, the underwriters of the new Mexican loan have been assured of the sale of the entire issue. Houses in the Middle and Far West which, he reported, recently had taken 65 per cent. of the entire issue, were said to have assured Mr. Arlitt that they could swing the rest of the bonds without trouble, and Mr. Arlitt himself was reported to have notified the financial agent of the Mexican Government in New York, Alberto Mascarenas, that he was prepared to make an initial payment. This payment will amount to $10,000,000, and under specifications of the underwriting agreement is to be made ten days after the bonds have been delivered.

Delay in making this payment was said yesterday to be due to certain delays in turning out the new bonds. The lithographing contract was turned over to a Texas firm and, according to reports, delivery is expected within two weeks. October net operating income of the Wisconsin Central, a subsidiary of the "Soo" line, was $182,385, compared with $144,330 and $161,622. The gross, amounting to $1,090,531, was less than in either of the two years immediately preceding. For ten months net operating income was $1,187,265, compared with $1,913,139 last year.

Despite a decline in gross for October from $2,113,899 to $1,956,840, the Kansas City Southern reported $451,966 net income after taxes, compared with $455,282 a year ago.

Estimates of increased railway earnings were supported yesterday by statements of officials of three large companies, the Northern Pacific, the Burlington and the St. Louis & San Francisco. J. M. Kurn, President of the last named, said that its earnings this year would be about $10 a share on the common stock, while Charles Donnelly, President of the Northern Pacific, and officials of the Burlington predicted substantial increases for October, compared with a year ago.

After a meeting of the Burlington directors it was stated that, with October earnings estimated, net income after charges for ten months was expected to be at least $4,000,000 more than last year. It was estimated that the final net for the year would show a further gain, despite the usual decline in the volume of business thus far in November.

Mr. Donnelly said Northern Pacific should earn $6 a share this year and that prospects indicated better results in 1925. "The road is in splendid shape," he added. "We could handle from 50 to 60 per cent. more business without putting a strain on the property. Despite the inroads caused by the heavy grain movement, our equipment is in the best shape in ten years, with bad-order cars at 5 per cent. and bad-order locomotives at 4 per cent."

The Pere Marquette loaded and received from connections in the first fifteen days of November 30,814 cars, against 32,674 in the first fifteen days of October and 32,584 for fifteen days a year ago. The movement of coal over this road has not been as heavy as in other years because of mild weather.

ROADS SHOW GOOD OCTOBER EARNINGS

First Three to Report Do Nearly Half Better Than a Year Ago.

BIG LINES ARE PROSPERING

Favorable Estimates by Northern Pacific, Burlington and St. Louis & San Francisco.

The first three railroad reports for October, made public yesterday, show a net operating income of $2,179,000, compared with $1,416,000 earned by the same roads a year ago. Gross income was $8,436,000, compared with $6,676,000.

The Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie made the most favorable report of the three. It showed $3,790,142 gross, compared with $2,895,504 a year ago and $3,247,981 two years ago. The net income was $1,546,590, compared with $916,436 and $714,885. The gross for ten months was $22,068,482, compared with $24,430,588 and $22,862,771. Net operating income for ten months was $2,671,541, against $4,661,836 and $3,675,346.

CRUDE OIL OUTPUT GAINED LAST WEEK

Daily Average Was 1,941,050 Barrels—The First Advance in Two Months.

Production of crude oil in the United States increased 5,500 barrels daily last week, according to figures made public yesterday by the American Petroleum Institute. The daily average production, taking into consideration new pools not previously reported, aggregated 1,941,050 barrels, against 1,935,550 barrels in the previous week and 2,234,300 barrels in the corresponding week last year. These figures vary with those published on Wednesday by The Oil City Derrick, which reported a decline of 5,876 barrels in production last week to a daily average of 1,939,246 barrels. The increase reported by the American Petroleum Institute is the first gain in output reported in about two months.

The gain in production reported last week was due almost entirely to the increase of 21,700 barrels in the daily average output in Oklahoma. North Texas, North Louisiana and the Gulf Coast also reported gains in output, but these were offset in part by losses in California, Wyoming, Colorado and Montana, Central Texas and Kansas.

The following table gives the daily average production by important fields and sections compared with one week and one year ago. The figures are in barrels:

	1924 Nov. 15.	Nov. 8.	1923 Nov. 17.
Oklahoma	514,300	502,900	387,300
North Texas	82,550	*78,850	66,800
Central Texas	163,950	168,750	293,800
North Louisiana	90,150	88,350	58,150
Arkansas	117,300	121,100	123,800
Gulf Coast and S. W. Texas	135,150	131,250	98,800
Eastern	106,000	106,000	108,500
Wyo., Mont. and Colorado	84,450	89,500	154,950
California	530,300	500,250	706,000
Total	1,941,050	*1,935,550	2,224,200

Receipts of California crude oil at Atlantic and Gulf ports last week aggregated 672,000 barrels, against 640,000 barrels the week before, while imports of foreign crude oil aggregated 1,892,000 barrels, against 2,016,000 barrels in the previous week.

Figures of the American Petroleum Institute show some interesting changes in stocks of crude and refined oils at refineries during October. The following is the Institute's summary, covering approximately 62 per cent. of the operating capacity of the country for October:

	Barrels of 42 gals. Inc.	Dec.
Domestic crude oil		134,615
Foreign crude oil		14,888
Oil for re-running		909,160
Gasoline		1,417,014
Kerosene		66,750
Gas and fuel oil		468,617
Lubricating	676,046
Miscellaneous oils	255,507
Total	931,553	2,671,044
Deduct		931,553
Net decrease		2,139,491

East of the Rockies there was an indicated decrease in gasoline of 1,826,293 barrels, and west of the Rockies an indicated increase of 409,279 barrels, making a net decrease of 1,417,014 barrels for the refineries reporting.

Huge Gas Holder Ordered.

The Los Angeles Gas and Electric Company has ordered what is probably the largest gas holder on the Pacific Coast. It is of the waterless type and has 15,000,000 cubic feet capacity. This is 5,000,000 cubic feet greater than the capacity of the largest holder now in use west of the Rockies.

SMASHED TRAFFIC RECORD.

An indication of the improvement in Northwestern business conditions was furnished yesterday by the directors of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy road.

After declaring regular dividends on the capital stock, they forecast an increase of $4,000,000 in earnings for the ten months above expenses and all charges, compared with the corresponding period of 1923. For October it was said, a new record was set when the company handled 207,293 loaded freight cars. The regular 5 per cent. dividend due for the second half of this year was made payable Dec. 26 to stock of record Dec. 17.

The Colorado & Southern declared a dividend of 2 per cent. on its first preferred and 4 per cent. on its second preferred, both payable Dec. 31 to stock of record Dec. 13. The road, in omitting to take action on the common stock, it was explained, had been obliged to take heavy losses in recent years on its investments.

Illinois Central Orders Cars.

Another large order was announced yesterday by the Illinois Central Railroad, bringing the total of electrical equipment for the Chicago suburban service up to $8,250,000. The new order included 130 motor cars, placed with the Pullman Car & Manufacturing Company, and eighty-five trailers, placed with the Standard Steel Car Company.

East Penn Electric Income.

The East Penn Electric Company reports net income for October available for depreciation and dividends of $88,351 against $84,810 last year. Net for the twelve months was $988,596, against $801,261 in the preceding year.

FINDS OUTLOOKS BRIGHT.

Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Co. Says Trade Will Increase.

The Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Company, in its mid-month review of business, points out that "on the whole, the business outlook is very definitely brighter than at any time in a twelve month."

It says that the cumulative effect of a much larger spending power in agricultural communities has not yet had time to manifest itself, "but will doubtless carry over into the new year and help make it a more prosperous one than the present. Warm weather has somewhat retarded the expected seasonal improvement in retail trade."

Utilities Merger Announced.

The International Utilities Corporation announced yesterday its acquisition of the control of the Southwestern Utilities Corporation. The same interests announced a week ago the acquisition of the Kentucky Securities Corporation.

RAILROAD SALE APPROVED.

According to word received yesterday from Denver by Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Federal Judge J. Foster Symes has confirmed the sale of the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad to the reorganization managers for $17,935,700, thus completing another important step in the reorganization of the property. The property was sold at public auction on Oct. 29 last to Donald C. Swatland and Hayward A. Hibberd of New York, representing the reorganization.

Confirmation of the sale yesterday practically completes the reorganization of the property. The managers said yesterday afternoon that the next step would be to turn the property over to the joint control of the Missouri Pacific and the Western Pacific in accordance with the reorganization plan. The directors of these roads will then decide on the management of the Denver & Rio Grande.

BIG CROP ESTIMATES FORCE COTTON DOWN

Liquidation Continues and List Closes 6 to 17 Points Lower on the Day.

EXPECT 13,000,000 BALES

Increased crop figures from private sources caused liquidation of cotton yesterday and the list closed 6 to 17 points lower on the day. A New York firm put out an estimate of 13,300,000 bales, while a prominent Memphis publication raised its previous estimate 190,000 bales to 12,995,000. With eighty-seven members of the Exchange giving an average guess of 13,000,0000, the market came under selling pressure throughout the session. Mill buying increased on the decline and advices from spot quarters indicated cotton was less easy to buy in the South following the decline of a cent a pound the past week. Transactions at Southern markets fell off below 20,000 bales.

The circulation of the largest crop estimate issued so far this month has a depressing effect on Liverpool. Prices abroad declined over 30 English points which more than equalled the loss on this side late Wednesday. Several operators evidently feared a larger official estimate today than had been considered probable for active liquidation, started on the opening. Blocks of contracts were offered in each month during the progress of the call, and pressure developed the first hour to a degree not previously experienced the past two weeks. Lines kept coming out as prices receded until May contracts touched 24.09, 25 points from previous closing. This brought January to 24.03, compared with 25.14, the high level of last week. While certain houses continued the distribution of cotton, operations between New York and New Orleans, combined with increased volume of trade buying, absorbed contracts, halted the decline and later in the session brought about a recovery of quarter of a cent. December liquidation continued a depressing factor until prices here went over quarter of a cent over New Orleans. Not only December but January sold below quotations on the Southern Exchanges, which created active straddle business between the two markets as houses bought both December and January here and sold in the South.

A feature of the session was the narrowing of July discounts under May. Some weeks ago July sold 70 points under May, but differences have gradually narrowed until the two positions were only three points apart. At the close May traded on 24.75, while July was 24.75. A year ago yesterday May closed at 34.90 and July at 34.32.

ALL GRAINS DROP ON CHICAGO MARKET

Forecast of 50,000,000 More Bushels in Canada Helps to Send Wheat Down.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—Grain suffered an all-around decline in value today owing largely to the wheat market depression at Liverpool. Beneficial rains in Argentina were reported, and there were optimistic reports about the wheat yield in Australia. Another weight on the wheat market was a crop estimate by Canadian railroad officials suggesting that 50,000,000 bushels more wheat had been raised in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta than was indicated by the latest Government forecast.

Liquidation continues in December wheat, and it dropped to around 8 cents under May at one time, the greatest difference of the season and finished at 7¾ cents under.

The market fluctuated in a most erratic manner, breaking early on the drop of 3¼ to 3¾d in Liverpool. A strong rally followed with a New York trader credited with taking 2,000,000 bushels, but later he was said to have sold out and helped along the closing decline, with the finish 1¾ to 2¼ cents lower on the near-by futures, while July was off ¾ of a cent.

In the last few days there has been heavy closing of spreads between wheat and corn, the former being sold and the latter bought, which has helped to depress wheat and to strengthen corn. At the low point wheat prices showed around 7 cents under the recent high.

Export sales are estimated at over 1,000,000 bushels in all positions. Clearances of domestic wheat and flour for the first four months of the crop year are estimated at 121,000,000 bushels, including 53,000,000 bushels cleared in October.

France is expected to remove the import duty on wheat into that country next week and will start to buy freely as soon as this is done.

Primary arrivals for the day were 2,029,000 bushels; week ago, 3,103,000; last year, 943,000. Shipments were 1,416,000 bushels; week ago, 3,704,000; last year, 907,000.

Corn closed 1¼@1⅝ cents lower in sympathy with wheat and on the purchase of around 300,000 bushels new No. 4 corn, to arrive on the basis of 6 cents under the future, for shipment by Dec. 15. This is somewhat below a delivery basis and attracted considerable attention.

Husking returns are making a most unsatisfactory showing in some sections of the belt. Technically the market is in a weaker position than for some time.

Movement of new grain is increasing, with Kansas City looking for 150 cars on Monday.

Primary arrivals today were 576,000 bushels; week ago, 654,000; last year, 1,102,000, and shipments, 253,000 bushels; week ago, 270,000; last year 585,000.

Oats were off ½@¾ and rye 1½@2½ cents.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—Receipts of hogs here for the week promise to aggregate around 310,000 head, the third largest on record. Arrivals today were 62,000, with 47,000 estimated for tomorrow. The market was 10@15 cents higher at the start, but after urgent orders had been filled part of the upturn was lost. Large packers held off until late in the day. The top was $9.75 and the average $9. Fat lambs declined 25@50 cents and feeders 25 cents, due to receipts of 27,000, the largest in nearly three weeks. Aged sheep were steady and yearlings weak to 25 cents lower. An unfavorable dressed veal trade had some effect. Beef steers were generally 25@50 cents higher while common grades were slow and unchanged. The top on yearlings was $13.10, a new high on the present movement. Handy weight steers brought up to $11.50 and heavies $10.50. Receipts were 12,000.

DEFAULT ON BONDS OF RAILROADS LESS

FURTHER DECREASE LIKELY

There Still Are Securities for $136,525,000 on Which No Interest Is Being Paid.

A decline of $16,199,000 in the total of railroad bonds in default in the last twelve months reflects the improvement in the general railroad situation. A compilation of bonds in default, made yesterday, shows that there are still $136,525,000 bonds on which no interest is being paid. This compares with $153,724,000 a year ago.

Railroad bankers predicted yesterday that there would be a material decrease in the number during the coming year as the result of further improvement in the railroad situation. Among those which are expected to be withdrawn from the default list are $22,000,000 first 2½ per cent. and $16,854,000 5 per cent. bonds of the Chicago & Alton. Others declared that the reorganization of the Minneapolis & St. Louis, which will get actively under way after the first of the year, would reduce the amount by $15,244,000 when completed.

Below are given railroad issues at present in default of interest, as compiled by Dow, Jones & Co. Where the maturity date is given after the issue it means there is default as to principal as well as to interest:

TO HALT TRADING FOR COTTON REPORT

New York and New Orleans Exchanges Will Suspend Business for 20 Minutes Today.

TO ELIMINATE CONFUSION

Will Give Time to Brokers to Adjust Themselves to Government Crop Figures.

By order of the Board of Managers, business on the New York Cotton Exchange will be suspended today from 10:55 to 11:15 A. M. to give an opportunity to the trade to digest the Government cotton crop report, which will be published at 11 o'clock. A similar ruling was adopted by the New Orleans Cotton Exchange. The purpose of the suspension of business pending publication of the report is to eliminate confusion in the cotton ring. If this works well it is expected that the temporary suspension of trading on crop report days may be made permanent.

When business on the exchange is resumed, it was stated yesterday, trading will be allowed on "call" of options only, starting with November and continuing until all months have been traded in, before regular transactions in the open market will be permitted for the general list.

"The purpose of closing before the Government report is issued," said a statement by President Edward E. Bartlett Jr., "is to eliminate the confusion caused by orders reaching the ring at the last minute. It is believed that by deferring the resumption of trading fifteen minutes after the report is received the trade will have ample time to adjust itself to the report and make an intelligent appraisal of the figures, which should result in a more regular and more orderly market.

"The brokers will be in a position to give more satisfactory executions and eliminate complaints from customers which have been incident to previous reports. The closing will eliminate the so-called contingent orders which have been a bugaboo to brokers on report days, as it will give them sufficient time to sort out their orders and have them in shape when trading is resumed.

"One advantage which will be appreciated by out-of-town traders is that closing will give the more distant markets an equal opportunity to act on the report. In other words, the stopping of trading for twenty minutes will have the same effect as if the report were published after the close of the market, as is the case with the Government grain reports."

The directors of the Liverpool Cotton Association met last night to consider what action, if any, they would take. The Liverpool market closes at 11 A. M., New York time, too late to act upon the report. It is possible, however, that the directors may decide to keep the Liverpool market open an hour later, as they have done occasionally, in order to take advantage of what the Government figures show.

FIGHT AMENDMENT TO END CHILD LABOR

Founders Fear Communities' Rights to Meet Local Problems May Be Destroyed.

WARNS OF BUREAUCRACY

Convention Adopts Measure Pledging Association Members to Protect Young Life.

The National Founders' Association, in convention at the Hotel Astor, yesterday, adopted a resolution opposing the proposed submission of an amendment to the Federal Constitution empowering Congress to prohibit, or regulate, the labor of minors under 18.

"Such a proposal," the resolution read, "would destroy not only the rights but the obligations of each American community to meet its local problems and, under the guise of protecting childhood, would authorize by necessary implications the control of all the minor life of the nation, the mode of its education and training, the duties of its parents and its guardians and would substitute the bureaucratic regulation of remote, expensive and irresponsible authority for local and parental control; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we, the members of the National Founders' Association, in convention assembled, pledge ourselves to the protection and betterment of child life in our respective communities and disapprove of this revolutionary grant of power to Congress as repugnant to our traditional conception of local responsibility and self-government, tending to stimulate the growth of enlarged and extravagant bureaucracies and serving to defeat the very humanitarian purpose which its disguise suggests."

The proposed alliance between agricultural and industrial leaders of the nation occupied most of the convention's attention Monday.

Before adjournment representatives of the association, members of the National Grange, and Henry Harrison Lewis, newly chosen executive director of the agricultural - industrial merger, had agreed upon a plan of organization. Mr. Lewis will direct the twenty-two advisory committees which already have been formed throughout the East and Middle West.

"This alliance has a certain political significance, of course, but it is only secondary," Mr. Lewis said. "A homogeneous party which includes a million farmers and 50,000 industrialists naturally will receive consideration from the politicians, but the main purpose of the alliance is to further cooperation between the farmer and the manufacturer and aid the individual rather than the organization."

F. W. Woolworth Co. to Pay $135,000 a Year for Century Building in West 34th St.

LEASES FEATURE MARKET

Max N. Natanson, Operator, Secures a 63-Year Leasehold Control of Upper Broadway Corner.

Following close upon several big realty transactions in the Thirty-fourth Street zone, where there has been a very marked revival of activity during the last couple of weeks, the fifty-foot building at 1 West Thirty-fourth Street was leased yesterday for a long term of years at $135,000 a year.

According to Thoens & Flaunlacher, Inc., the brokerage firm that negotiated the transaction, this is probably a record price for a fifty-foot building in the district.

The property leased is known as the Century Building and was purchased last Monday by Mrs. Ida Gevirtz for investment.

The new owner now leases the entire building to the F. W. Woolworth Company, which will pay about $6,000,000 in the course of the forty-three-year term for which the lease runs.

The Century Building will come into their possession on May 1, 1928.

A Woolworth store will occupy the entire Thirty-fourth Street frontage, replacing Mirror Candy, Leon, the millinery importer, and the Gotham Silk Hosiery Company. This store is 50 by 112 feet and will connect at the rear with the present Woolworth store in the Acker, Merrall & Condit Building at the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street.

The aggregate floor space used by the F. W. Woolworth Company after May 1, 1928, will approximate 36,000 square feet in stores and basements. The total rental which will be paid for these two buildings will amount to about $18,000,000.

Thoens & Flaunlacher, Inc., arranged the lease for both buildings. In the case of the Acker, Merrall & Condit Building, which was originally leased to the F. W. Woolworth Company to begin August, 1929, this firm later obtained an assignment of the existing lease from the Acker, Merrall & Condit Company to the F. W. Woodworth Company, so that the latter's present occupancy dates from May 1, 1924.

Upper Broadway Corner Leased.

Max N. Natanson leased from Isadore Levy the northwest corner of Broadway and Ninety-fifth Street, having a frontage on Broadway of 75 feet, and on Ninety-fifth Street of 100 feet; commencing 100 feet west of Broadway, the property has a depth of 100 feet. On the immediate corner, on plot 75 by 100 feet, is a seven-story elevator apartment house with stores, which latter are leased to United Cigar Stores Company. Immediately adjoining to the west is a six-story elevator apartment house on plot 50 by 100 feet 8½ inches, the layout being two sevens on the ground floor and two eights on each of the upper floors. To the west of the house is a vacant lot, 25 by 100 feet 8½ inches. The lease is for twenty-one years with two 21-year renewals. The transaction was negotiated by Wood-Dolson Company, Inc., as broker.

Broadway John Street Corporation, Elias A. Cohen, President, has taken on a 63-year lease the property at the northeast corner of Lafayette and Grand Streets, a six-story building having 200 feet of frontage on Lafayette Street and 25 feet in width throughout on Grand Street. FRENCH PLAN AIR LINES TO SOUTH AMERICA

PARIS, Nov. 20 (Associated Press).—Ultimate development of aerial lines between France and South America was announced today in the Chamber of Deputies by Laurant Eynac, Under Secretary for Aviation, during the discussion on France's air budget.

M. Eynac said that the air lines to Morocco were being increased and would soon extend to Dakar, French West Africa, from which point they would eventually be continued to South America.

"We hope that airplanes soon will be sufficiently reliable to cross the Atlantic without danger," said the Under Secretary.

He said that the freight service on the French lines was at the present between 93 and 99 per cent. regular. The air lines of 1924, he declared, already surpassed in freight and passenger records those of the preceding year, and accidents were decidedly on the decrease.

Half the mail between France and Morocco, it developed, is now being transported by airplane. The French aviation industry has been building excellent motors, M. Eynac said, and had lately sold 100,000,000 francs worth of these motors to twenty-eight nations.

During the debate strong sentiment was shown for a separate Air Ministry and the necessity of France doing something to meet the competition of other countries. The recent transatlantic trip of the ZR-3 was cited, as was also Great Britain's announced intention to build a dirigible of 150,000 cubic meters capacity.

CONFIRMS VILLA EXECUTION.

Mexico City Account Says He Was Shot by Federal Troops.

HOUSTON, Texas, Nov. 20.—Confirmation of the death of Hipolito Villa, brother of Pancho Villa, near Jiminez, Chihuahua, has been received from the Mexico City correspondent of La Tribuna, local Mexican language newspaper.

According to the correspondent, Villa was "tricked" by the Obregon Government. After several months of guerrilla warfare with a handful of ragged followers, Villa opened negotiations three months ago with General Arnulfo Gomez, chief military chief of Chihuahua for surrender. Villa agreed to lay down his arms if given the hacienda Canutillo, where Pancho Villa set up a model ranch for his followers after making peace with Obregon. Gomez assented.

Villa went to Mexico City to confer with President Obregon. There the agreement to give him the hacienda was retracted. Bitter against the breaking of the compact, Villa started for El Paso. At Jiminez he was taken from the train by Obregon troops.

A court-martial was summoned, and in less than ten minutes he was executed by a firing squad.

Princeton Assistant Coach Fined.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—Howell Van Gerbig, assistant coach of the Princeton football squad, was fined $10 and costs, and Edmond C. Stout, captain of the Princeton football team, was discharged at a hearing before a police magistrate today following their arrest late last night on a charge of disorderly conduct. They were arrested as a result of a dispute with a theatrical manager. W. W. Roper, coach of the Princeton team, appeared in behalf of the men and testified for their good reputation.

HAMS & BACON
"A little higher in price—But!"
